'Elvis,' 'Wolfman Jack' set for concert in GP July 27

Seen "Elvis" lately? How about "Wolfman Jack"?

Care to see them "in person" with "Janis Joplin, Buddy Holly and Brenda Lee?"

You've got a chance to do just that Friday, July 27 at Rogue Theater in Downtown Cave Junction. Doors will open at 7 p.m. for the family oriented performances comprising "The Ultimate Tribute" to the late entertainers.

Tickets are available from Z Coffee Roasters in Cave Junction, Blue

Moon Antiques in Grants Pass, and Larry's Music stores in Grants Pass and Medford. Advance ticket prices are less expensive than those that will be available at the door.

The event, "a blast from the past," is the brainchild of Steve Zabriskie, of Z Coffee. It's his plan to provide a scholarship to an Illinois Valley High School senior who will major in business. This year's designated winner of a $2,000 award is Alexis Medina. She will attend University of Oregon at Eugene.

Zabriskie and his wife, Wendy, have geared the criteria for student applicants involved in part-time jobs for at least three years of their high school time. They must have good references and a minimum grade-point average of 3.5.

Zabriskie notes that many students who work during their school years have no time to participate in sports or other extracurricular activities. This can lessen their chances for scholarships.

The performers for the show "are fantastic," said Zabriskie. Including the Wolfman Jack impersonator, who is endorsed by the real Wolfman's family, the entertainers are recognized as tops in their field.

They all come with superb performance records and have drawn rave reviews, noted Zabriskie. He added that the Elvis impersonator, James Reynolds, not only looks like "The King," but sounds just like him too.

"It's going to be a fantastic show for a great cause," he said. "It's an effort with a positive backlash, and we're looking forward to a terrific evening."

Club & Organization Notes

Though our staff and customers will miss her, we wish her a rewarding career in her new profession as she continues to serve the community in another capacity.

Thank you, Nancy, for being a dedicated part of our Coffee Heaven family for the past nine years.

SOG photo classes designed to aid artists

Southern Oregon Guild (SOG) is offering two new classes designed to help artists and others create the quality photographs needed to sell their work or get into juried shows or galleries.

The first class will be held Saturday, July 28; the second on Saturday, Aug. 18. Both will be at the SOG Artists Center & Gallery in the RCC Learning Center in Kerby. SOG President Jerry Work will teach both classes.

By the end of these two sessions, students should be able to comfortably come into the Artists Center, use the photographic equipment, and walk away with excellent, properly lighted photos of their work.

The July 28 session is about properly controlling exposure and white balance to obtain optimum results while photographing art work or other objects for sale or display. Students will learn how to control exposure, as well as how to manipulate exposure and the white balance settings on digital cameras and in photo editing software to create stunning presentations.

This class runs from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, July 28. The cost is $5 for SOG members and $15 for nonmembers.

The Aug. 18 session will be a hands-on workshop, "Studio Lighting for Perfection." This will be a four-hour workshop starting at 10 a.m. with a break for lunch from noon to 1 p.m.

Students will receive instruction and practice in how to set up and use SOG's backdrops, lighting and light boxes with their own or the Guild's cameras and lenses to photograph (a) large three-dimensional objects like furniture, (b) smaller 3-D objects like jewelry and pottery, and (c) flat objects including paintings, drawings and maps.

The fee for this workshop is $10 for Guild members; $20 for nonmembers. To sign up for one or both classes, phone Work at 592-5360, or SOG at 592-5019.

'Cavern less traveled' tours offered public

Want to definitely get off the beaten path?

Oregon Caves National Monument is conducting "Introduction to Caving" tours on Saturdays at 12:30 p.m. through Sept. 1.

Attendees, who must be at least 15 years old, should allow approximately four hours for a tour, which has a $30 per person fee. Participants will learn about caving techniques, etiquette, and conservation.

They will encounter a variety of caving challenges, including climbing and descending over rocky slopes and boulders; crawling on hands and knees; crossing uneven surfaces; and belly sliding.

Due to the strenuous nature of the tour, participants must be in good physical condition and must be able to support their body weight with their arms. Participants must be at least 5 feet tall and not exceed a maximum size requirement.

This tour is not recommended for those with a history of heart or respiratory problems; or back, shoulder, or joint problems; or if they are prone to panic attacks or claustrophobia; or if they have recently sustained whiplash.

Participants must wear clothes that allow a free range of movement, and boots with traction and ankle support. Long sleeves and long pants are required. Participants should not wear watches, jewelry, or other valuables on the tour.

Safety equipment and caving gear will be provided. Included are helmet, headlamp, kneepads, and gloves. Spelunkers should bring a change of clothes, because they will get muddy.

To make reservations for a tour, phone 592-2100, Ext. 237. Messages can be left, and a tour leader will respond to complete the sign-up procedure. Tours are booked in advance first-come, first-served.

The number of "cavers" on each tour is limited to six participants.

Oregon Caves is located approximately 20 miles from Cave Junction. For further information phone (541) 592-2100, Ext. 262; or visit www.nps.gov/orca.
