Proposed CJ budget ...

A line item for travel and training has risen from $3,000 to $5,000. Polk said that is so that new city councilors Carl Jacobson and Trisha Arias can attend conferences to learn more about city government. Jacobson has already attended one such training, Polk said.

Allocations for legal fees have doubled from $5,000 last fiscal year to $10,000. Polk said that is due to the "potential of pending litigation."

"We have some issues coming up," he said. "We will probably be using legal counsel more in the next year."

The Cave Junction Budget Committee consists of Moore and the four city councilors, and residents Roy Hewson, Mary Orton, Eileen McLean, Barbara Ford and Willa Gustavson. Jacobson, Arias and McLean were absent May 20.
