Artists guild spring show set Saturday

The public can meet giant puppet "Coyote," a creation of Guild member Jill Talise, during the opening reception for Southern Oregon Guild's new spring show, "Spring to Life."

It will be held Friday, April 23 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Guild Gallery & Artists' Center in Rogue Community College's Business Entrepreneurial Center in the Kerby Belt Bldg.

The new exhibit will feature the work of more than 40 S.W. Oregon artists and fine craftspeople in media ranging from pastels, oils and photography to fiber arts, ceramics and sculpture to fine woodwork.

The People's Choice awards from the recent show will be displayed - Bea Thompson's beautiful watercolor, "Stairway to Nowhere," and award-winning doll-maker Nancy Hall's flamboyant "Lisolette."

Visitors also can meet the artists, sample the hors d'oeuvres buffet, and enjoy the classical guitar of Jackie Henry-Ross, who studied under world famous classical guitarist Andres Segovia.

Evergreen students experience Kerbyville Museum 'Heritage Day'

On Thursday, March 11, the Kerbyville Museum sponsored the third annual "Heritage Day" for fourth-grade students from Evergreen Elementary School of Cave Junction.

Approximately 75 fourth graders, around 12 parents, three teachers plus Evergreen Principal David Valenzuela participated in this day-long event.

Museum volunteers, along with members of the Sourdough Chapter, Backcountry Horsemen's Club, welcomed the students and adults to a variety of history-related programs. Additionally, members of the Illinois River Valley Arts Council assisted with an arts project.

"This program was funded by a grant from Trust Management Services of Waldport, Ore., as well as a small amount from the 21st Century Grant through Three Rivers School District," said Dennis Strayer, museum board president.

Also, local miners Steve Bethke, Mike Milner and Zack Gray helped educate the students on gold panning. They explained how historically important to Illinois Valley was the discovery of gold in the valley in 1851.

The partially restored William & Nannie Naucke Historic House was utilized to educate students through hands-on programs. They were shown how clothing was washed in pioneer days using wash boards and wash tubs, as well as a separate program on butter-making using old style butter churns.

Thomas Doty presented a Native American program in the Native American Pit House.

Sustainapalooza!

In celebration of Earth Day, Rogue Community College in Grants Pass will host "Sustainapalooza!" on Thursday, April 22 with a wide range of activities.

The free event will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the RCC Redwood Campus. Activities will be held in the Student Center/Cafeteria and central campus areas.

Sponsored by the RCC Environmental Sustainability Club and Redwood Campus student government, the "carnavalesque" celebration will spotlight sustainable vendors, businesses, and organizations, according to Britta Beckstead, recycling coordinator.

"Our goal is to promote environmental awareness and education, celebrate all the Earth has to offer, and show people how thinking sustainably can be fun and interesting," she said. "This is a chance to support local green businesses and organizations."

Music and fire dancing will be featured, and food and beverages available.

Many area vendors will be present. Participation of RCC faculty and students will include the RCC Science Dept.'s annual plant sale, free massage by massage students, Nature walks with Russ Mitchell, and demonstrations by John Salinas on brewing beer and root beer and making ice cream.

Participating organizations are THRIVE, the Clean Forest Project, Siskiyou Field Institute, Rogue Group Sierra Club, Josephine County Master Gardeners and Plant-a-Row, Wildlife Images, American Cancer Society, and Josephine County Master Recyclers.

Flower power is the unofficial name of the effort, spearheaded by the National Garden Club organization, to promote cancer awareness for those with cancer and survivors. On Saturday, April 17, the planter at Illinois Valley Senior Center was graced with pink vegetation including dianthus, flowering thyme and Sweet William to name a few. A bird house also will be added. Digging in the dirt were (from left) Kathy Lombardo and Donna Smith, of I.V. Garden Club; and Amelia Benson-Atkinson, district director of Siskiyou District Garden Club. Material and labor both were donated. (Photo by Illinois Valley News)
