Evergreen on best behavior for ‘Trashion Show’

Evergreen Elementary students and staff showed off their superior fashion sense in the monthly themed Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports (PBIS) assembly Friday, April 22.

April’s theme wasn’t just a fashion show, but a “Trashion Show,” where participants turned recycled materials like cardboard boxes, pie tins, dog food bags and garbage bags into designer outfits for the assembly.

According to education assistant Molly Kitchens, a PBIS team of school staff members come up with themes for each assembly. But the Trashion Show has been a recurring theme for the last few years to strong responses from teachers and students.

“They come up with some of the most creative ideas,” Kitchens said. “They love it; they look forward to it and seemed thrilled to come all dressed up in unique outfits.”

Some teachers joined students and dressed up in their own outfits, such as dresses crafted from tin foil. After the assembly, many of them continued wearing their creations later in the day.

“The kids really step up and parents help students making outstanding costumes,” Kitchens said. “They use just about anything you would find in a recycle bin.”
