Like many former Californians, Gina Angelique and Chris Hall moved here over a year ago to raise their family, attracted by the natural beauty and clean environment of the Illinois Valley. They were also impressed by the friendly small town atmosphere and the nascent art scene.

“One of the reasons we moved here was because Cave Junction has an Art-Walk,” Angelique explains.

The couple boasts a long history of artistic achievement in Southern California. Together, they founded and directed Eveoke Dance Theatre in San Diego between 1994 and 2007. Angelique provided creative inspiration for the group while her husband, Hall, was the company's producer and technical director. He designed lighting and scenery for every production.

The organization produced three performance works per season. They also began operating an arts education program which grew to serve thousands of youngsters every week in extensive outreach partnerships with over 45 city schools and many community organizations. The dance-theatre also continued to produce shows with an evolving group of performers.

Their productions routinely received rave reviews from the San Diego Union-

Tribune with over a dozen earning "Critics Choice" and "Top Ten Dance Events" designations in annual listings. Hall wrote and won over 60 grants to help fund the programs.

The cornucopia of activities generated by the organization included a company school, an outreach program, a youth performing group and a concert company. In addition, Angelique has served as a master teacher for the annual California Dance Teachers Association convention at UC Irvine. She also served as the artistic director of "Celebrate Dance Festival" for ten years, programming 75 regional dance companies on four stages over a three-day weekend each summer in Balboa Park. The free event is one of the largest of its kind.

Angelique co-founded “Durga” the San Diego Women’s Performance Festival and worked as a choreographer for regional theater including San Diego Repertory Theater and Ford Theatre in Los Angeles; winning many awards and accolades including “Woman of the Year in Arts” from the San Diego Center and the Tariq Khamisa Community Leadership Award.

Seeking new horizons, the family moved to Shasta County in 2007, and created dancefarm — a dance theatre retreat combining sustainable homesteading techniques and on-the-farm performance classes. They began growing certified organic produce and herbs and brought those skills with them to the Illinois Valley, where Hall became manager of the

I.V. Farmers Market last year. The couple also managed their own produce booth at both the I.V. and Grants Pass Farmers Markets.

Angelique taught at Southern Oregon University over the summer, as well as weekly acting and theatre classes at Tiger Studio on Caves Highway through December. She also began teaching a combined arts program at IV High School in October. Art Stars Performance Troupe is an after-school program offered in partnership with Illinois River Valley Art Council (IRVAC) as part of the free 21st Century Learning Center program funded by the federal government.

Beginning February 17, Angelique will begin teaching theatre and dance classes at the Kerby Belt Building, 24353 Redwood Highway. These classes are offered on a sliding scale of $6 to $12 per class. A monthly unlimited family pass is available for $75. A portion of tuition fees will be donated toward IRVAC's Learning Through Art public school programs.

The new classes, offered through a dancefarm / IRVAC partnership, include Basic Inter-generational Dance on Mondays from 6 to 7 p.m.; Theatre Games and Improv, a beginning acting class, on Mondays from 7 to 8 p.m. and Intermediate/Advanced Modern Dance Technique on Wednesdays from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Both Monday classes are drop-in friendly, while regular attendance is encouraged for Wednesday's jazz, hip-hop and ballet class. For further information, call 541-592-3569.
