

Clampers look to help students good with their hands

Jason McMillen
IVN Contributing Writer

The E. Clampus Vitus known as “Clampers,” a fraternal historical society that prides itself on not taking itself too seriously, are hosting their fifth annual fundraising Super Bowl event at the Sportsman Tavern which will kick off Feb. 4 at 2:30 p.m. All proceeds will be used to facilitate a $2,500 trade school scholarship for a hard working student in Josephine County.

Tickets are $25 and can be picked up at the Sportsman Tavern at any time before or during the event. It includes a bowl of gumbo (prepared by the 1859’s chapter Humbug Tarry Frank), three tickets for the “1859” raffle, three tickets for a 50/50 raffle, three tickets for the prize raffle and one ticket for the halftime door prize raffle. The 50/50 and 1859 raffles will award cash prizes with the latter having two drawings. The first drawing’s winner will receive 18 percent of the pot while the second receives 59 percent; the remainder goes toward the scholarship. According to Frank, the standard prize raffle had around 20 items last year.

It should be noted that winners don’t necessarily have to be at the event at the time of the drawing in order to claim their prize. Should no one immediately claim their winnings, the ticket’s number will be recorded and can be collected at a later date.

Additional raffle tickets may be purchased at the event and those who don’t want to participate in the drawings can get a bowl of gumbo for $8.

The Clampers formed in pre-workers union America and tasked themselves with taking care of women and children made widows and orphans in the coal mines of West Virginia. The society, which has historically preferred to take as little credit as possible, did whatever they could to support women and children with everything they could muster including food, blankets, rent money and even manual labor.

Modern Clampers carry on the legacy by organizing fundraisers whose goal is primarily to help women and children in need. Considering themselves a historical society, they also install informational plaques at historical sites throughout the west.

Walter Danielson Scholarship offers $11,000 to study abroad

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE) offers this need based scholarship worth approximately $11,000 each year to qualifying American high school students interested in broadening their horizons by studying abroad for one academic year.

This opportunity is for academically achieving, motivated students interested in experiencing a different culture and embracing diversity. This scholarship is offered by ASSE International in honor of Walter Danielson, one of the founders of our organization, who believed that we can change the world through greater compassion and understanding and empowering youth. The Walter Danielson Scholarship is given annually to a student who is committed to opening up his or her heart and mind to understanding other people and cultures.

Students must have at least a B+ average, and prove financial need to qualify for this scholarship opportunity awarded each year to a select student in North America.

As one of the oldest and largest international student exchange organizations, ASSE is able to offer the most comprehensive programs available, where students:

- Have the largest number of countries to choose from, such as France, Spain, Italy, China, Mexico, Canada, Denmark, Netherlands, Portugal, Brazil, Argentina, and many more.

- Are not required to know the language of your host country

Carey from Alabama, our Walter Danielson Scholarship winner in 2016-17 shared, “My exchange in China has been amazing. I have learned and experienced so many different things I can’t remember all of them. I have made some lifelong friends, tried new foods, and learned so much about Chinese culture. This experience has shown me how big the world truly is. How incredible exploring it and learning about it can be!”

Now it is your turn, and the world is waiting for you to explore! Decide today to step outside of your local community, city, state and country and decide to embark on your Study Abroad Adventure!

North American High School Students interested in becoming a Walter Danielson Scholarship Student or an academic year, semester, or summer program participant, should call 1-800-733-2773. Or apply today at www.asse.com/become_an_exchange_student. Application deadline is March 1, 2018.

Sabally, Ionescu lead No. 7 Oregon over No. 18 Oregon State

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Kelly Graves’ first tastes of the Civil War as Oregon’s head coach were back-to-back losses by a combined 62 points to a ranked Oregon State team.

In his fourth season, Graves and the No. 7 Ducks finally pumped new life 100-game old rivalry.

Satou Sabally scored 21 points, Sabrina Ionescu had 15 points and 11 assists and Oregon beat No. 18 Oregon State 75-63 on Sunday night.

The Ducks (18-3, 7-1 Pac-12) broke the game open with a 28-11 second quarter and led by as many as 27 points to snap a 14-game losing streak against the Beavers (14-5, 5-3). Maite Cazorla had 16 points and Mallory McGwire 14 for Oregon.

“It was a great win,” Graves said. “That was a well-played game, a great crowd and a great atmosphere for women’s basketball.”

Kat Tudor scored 17 points and Marie Gulich 16 for Oregon State after they had combined for 62 points in the Beavers’ 85-79 overtime win Friday.

Sabally had 13 points in the first half after scoring just three in the first game. She was 9 of 15 from the field and 3 of 7 from the arc to go with five assists.

“She was looking to be a lot more aggressive off the dribble and around the basket, and that was great to see,” Graves said. “When she does that with the other kids we’ve got, it gives us a whole new dimension.”

The Ducks asserted themselves early with defense, holding OSU to 25 percent shooting (6 of 24) in the first half. The Beavers had no points in the paint by the break, and the nation’s best 3-point shooting team was only 1 of 7 as Oregon built a 40-18 lead.

McGwire was particularly effective forcing the 6-foot-5 Gulich off her favorite post-up spots before help arrived to double-team the Beavers’ top scorer at 17.1 points per game.

“I think the first 20 minutes was the best defense that’s ever been played in this arena since I’ve been here,” Graves said, “and probably ever on the women’s side, so I was really proud of how in tune and focused we were with each other.”

Oregon State was 13 of 26 from the arc in the first meeting, but that went down to 7 of 21 against a defense that was more man than zone in the rematch.

“We didn’t move the ball as well tonight,” OSU coach Scott Rueck said. “I didn’t think we saw the floor nearly as well tonight, and we didn’t get into sets.”

“They played very aggressive tonight, and that was the difference. They were the aggressor.”

Ruthy Hebard’s 10 rebounds led the Ducks to a 41-30 edge on the boards. They also outscored the Beavers 32-14 in the paint.

Oregon, the fourth No. 1 seed in first NCAA ratings released Thursday, leads the Pac-12 by a game over UCLA and Stanford. However, the Ducks will continue to tinker with their rotation without injured 3-point specialist Lexi Bando, the NCAA’s active career leader beyond the arc at 45.5 percent.

Oregon State has work to do with three conference losses and six of its last 10 games on the road if it hopes to claim a fourth consecutive Pac-12 regular-season championship.

STAT OF THE NIGHT

Oregon is 15-1 when it out-rebounds opponents, and Oregon State is 3-5 when it scores fewer than 70 points.
