

EAGLE FRIENDLY FOLK

The ghost of the old North Coast Times Eagle caught up with me in mid-Pacific Ocean and snapped me back to the Oregon coast like an overstretched umbilical cord 25 years ago. I printed the first issue of the Born Again Bird on July 20, 1979. The same feeling that brought me nearly halfway across the planet goads me still a quarter of a century later in a new millennium, against presumable logic.

The Times Eagle's circulation is minuscule and its impact hardly shakes the big trees, yet I am continually surprised and impressed by the variety of folk who regularly read the newspaper and contribute to it. The quality of writing, art, poetry and photographs that are submitted is usually as high as seen anywhere, which speaks notably of the indigenous and repotted talent on this coast who are responsible for what is good about this newspaper.

The persons named on this page are only a few of the very many who have contributed their arts and their hearts these past 25 years to the Times Eagle.
