Kim McCarthy is a young Astoria artist. It is nearly impossible to pin her down on artistic style because she seems willing to try everything. These are stencils she cut out and spray painted for a book by another artist on how to make stencils.

(Friends gave her a piñata because they claimed its happy red-lipped face and curly black hair resembled her. So she painted the rest of it to look like her — it hangs from the ceiling of Godfather's Books & Espresso, where she works a few days each week. Its name is "Kimyata.")

She is the mother of two very intelligent and individualistic children, a son Tristan, who is 10, and 4 year old Minuet, who is herself a consummate artist. Her website is KMCCARTHY5675@HOTMAIL.COM.
