VML basketball trophy visits three centers in one week

Photos by Rick Simon

The "revolving trophy" of the VML basketball league took quite a trip last week. On Monday it was held by the West Stayton team. They played Woodburn on Wednesday and lost, so the trophy visited the Woodburn Center. Then, on Friday, Woodburn played Independence, and lost. So the trophy took another trip, to Independence. That is where it is now on display.

When the season began it looked as if West Stayton was going to keep the trophy all year. But the way things are going now, it probably won't even get to stay in one place for a week.

The only center it has not visited is Dayton. Phil Peters' team is getting stronger each week. Last Wednesday they almost beat Independence, and they will come up against Woodburn this week. When Dayton finally gets the trophy it will have visited all of the centers. Then the big question will be, who will be the league champions and keep it until next year? The way things are going, we will not know until March 4, when the season ends.
