A HARD FIGHT.

Organized Labor's Battle With the Tobacco Trust.

The tobacco trust is beginning to feel the effect of the Union Label agitation in Rochester by the loss of a portion of their trade, and larger inroads will be more particular and demand honest-made goods.

The trust has been compelled to take a number of their salesmen from other cities and put them at work in Rochester as an agitating committee; in fact they have placed ten additional men at work this week to push their non-union goods. We should ask all dealers in tobacco to refuse to buy any more trust goods. It is well known how they are trying to smother all competition, and, although the dealer may buy trust goods a few cents cheaper during the present agitation, and, while the fight is on, to place Union Label goods; but if the trust comes out victorious, there is not a particle of doubt but what the price will be boosted and profits of the retailers cut in two, says Organized Labor. In all fairness the dealer should, —if he expects to receive the trade of Union men—refuse to handle trust goods, and if it is a possibility to get along without them, it should be done. An opportunity now presents itself for dealers and their customers to demonstrate to the tobacco trust that their goods are not wanted under any circumstances. Let every tobacco user appoint himself a Committee of One, and see that no goods are bought or sold that do not bear the Union Blue Label. Let the retail dealers of this city inform the trust agents that no new brands will be purchased and the old ones killed as rapidly as possible. The trust has gone so far as to refuse to sell goods to dealers who handle union-made products. It is about time that the trust was informed that they do not own the whole trade and that their system of doing business is excessively obnoxious to fair-minded people.

To union men, we would say, keep up the good fight you are making; demand union-label goods, ask your dealer to cease handling trust goods, and you will find that union-made goods will have a wonderfully increased sale. Of course the trust will fight and fight hard, but so can the union men—and it costs them less to fight than it does the trust.

This is one case where all can do something for the good of organized labor, and it will not cost one cent. Use union label tobacco and urge your friends to do likewise. If a union man is caught using scab tobacco, call him down and make a thorough job of it. Of course it is thoughtlessness on the part of some, but others use non-union goods and do not seem to care.

Union men have a very hard fight on their hands to drive the tobacco trust out of Rochester, but with a solid front on the part of all members, with the assistance of the dealers and jobbers, the trust will realize that it is up against "the real thing."

Demand Union Blue Label tobacco, and take no substitutes.

The following is an extract from a speech by Congressman Jno. J. Lents, of Ohio:

"Unorganized labor is the timid, crouching, servile instrument of capital, yielding its head and stretching its neck to the yoke of the master. Unorganized labor stands before the American people as a pitiable example of that old saying that 'necessity knows no law.' They have become so hungry and so naked that to satisfy their immediate physical wants they are perfectly willing to sacrifice every mental and moral want, not only of themselves, but of their posterity, even to the fourth generation and all other generations. Unorganized labor promises to the people of the United States nothing except in the final analysis, a condition of labor not unlike that in China."

INTERESTING TO ELECTRICIANS.

The Niagara Falls Power Company makes a nominal charge for allowing visitors to see the installation. The receipts go to charity.

The use of electricity to cut wrought iron girders was recently successfully accomplished during repairs on a Chicago building.

The penny-in-the-slot system of distributing gas through the poorer and artisan districts of London has been so successful that attempts are now being made to supply the electric light in the same way.

It is reported from London that Marconi has succeeded in transmitting a message by the wireless system from Boulogne, France, to Dovercourt, England, a distance of 60 miles.

Electricity reports that a company with $5,000,000 capital has been formed in New York to run suspended cigar-shaped aluminum cars 200 miles per hour by means of electricity from a rail, says an exchange. A similar railway is projected between Manchester and Liverpool, in England, the speed to be 110 miles per hour.

In a paper read before the Physical

Society of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Herr Schafer described a coherer designed for use in connection with wireless telegraphy. The coherer is made by pasting strips of tin foil on a glass plate. If the glass be silvered, it will answer the purpose equally well, provided the silvering be divided into strips by a knife. A current of electricity across the metallic strips gives an electric resistance of 50, but when the electric waves impinged on them the resistance was increased a hundredfold. The coherer works in a vacuum.

A new telephone fire alarm system has just been patented, the whole system being operated by magneto current and dry batteries. After the system is once installed the only thing to get out of order is the burning out occasionally of a fuse, which may be quickly repaired. A separate wire is used for each fire district, and any number of telephones may be connected with any district wire. By means of this system every house and factory along the line of the wires can be connected with the alarm wire, and thus protection may be had at a low cost. The wires can also be used to connect with the long-distance telephone for other uses.

AMATEUR AFFAIRS.

THERE IS NOTHING that brings about social intercourse like amateur work
THERE IS NOTHING that liquidates a standing debt or swells the funds of a favorite secret or fraternal society, church, military or other organization like an amateur performance by local talent.

THERE IS NOTHING more entertainingly educational than to take part in an amateur affair.

THERE IS NOTHING more enjoyable than attending rehearsals evenings.

THERE IS NOTHING more satisfactory to all concerned than the success and praise when it's all over.

THERE IS NOTHING that will compare in any way with the list of Plays, Dialogues, Charades, Pantomimes, Minstrels, Mock Trials, Monologues, Guide Books, Wigs, Beards, Mustaches, Make-Up Materials, Sheet Music, etc. offered by The Pettibone Bros. Mfg. Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio this season.

Send for a copy of their 112 page Catalog describing these goods. The Catalog is free.

YOU CAN DO THIS TOO.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 2, 1900.
The Pettibone Bros. Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, O.
Gentlemen:—Enclosed you will find clippings from some of our leading newspapers in regard to our play called "The Ancient Order of Hercules". The play was a grand success. We realized $150.00 clear of all expenses. It was given in the largest hall in the city of New Orleans. We had at least 3,000 people present—it is still the talk of the town. We had everything against us, such as complimentary balls, Buffalo Bill's Show and cheap theatres, but we came out all right. The cast was splendid and every one took their part like professionals. Later I will send you names of the cast.
Wishing you success, I remain,
Yours,
W. R. Smith, Chairman,

JOHN DELLAR'S ADMIRATION.

Great friendship is shown by John Dellar to all the union organizations, and he assists them in every way he can to attain their wishes. Having been a hard-working man all his life, Mr. Dellar appreciates the position of the working classes and always selects his friends and companions from among them at all times.

He carries a stock of men's and boys' clothing, men's, ladies' and children's shoes, almost entirely made by union labor.

Mr. Dellar does not believe in extravagant expenses; that's why he conducts his business on the corner of First and Yamhill streets, where the rent is not one-third of what other stores pay. The profits are generally fixed by every merchant according to his expenses.

We carry none but good qualities, which explains why our trade is so well satisfied.

Does your head ache? It ought to if your hat does not bear the union label.
