AT THE HEILIG.
Motion pictures of the 1913 Round-Up at Pendleton will be shown four afternoons and evenings at the Heilig. The big Wild West show with over 1000 of the "real-thing" cowboys, cowgirls and Indians doing their stunts kept the "movie" camera man busy making the films. The pictures cover all the contests, races, and, in fact, everything of the biggest Round-Up ever held.

AT THE ORPHEUM.
Vaudeville boasts no greater favorites than Sam Chip and Mary Marble, who come to the Orpheum in their new picture-book playlet, "The Land of Dykes." Portland first met this attractive pair in "The Dream City," and since then they have played twice at the Orpheum in their quaint little story, "In Old Edam." Their present vehicle is even superior to their delf-blue creation and they still remain the two Dutch kiddies. John Dunne is still their very capable partner in frolic and fun.

AT THE PANTAGES.
With all their native charm and gorgeous stage settings and magnificent costumes, the Eight Boris Fridkin Russians come to the Pantages for the week. The Fridkin organization offers a series of native Russian songs and dances that are peculiarly charming. The costumes were designed in Russia and are elaborate, while the scenic effects of the act are excellent.

the stellar act at the Empress this week. Nellie Brewster is the star of the production and she is supported by a company of 12. More Orpheum players to shine at the Empress this week are Fletcher Norton and Maude Earl, who held the stellar roles of "The Antique Girl" at the Orpheum last year.

AT THE BAKER.
A play of criminal life in New York, one of the first really successful ones of all the numerous plays of this character that have since arisen, is Paul Armstrong's "The Deep Purple," which the Baker players will be seen in for the week. The phase of crime dealt with is white slavery, and so completely has the author covered the subject that after witnessing a performance one has a much clearer idea of the methods generally followed by this class of society vultures and the detail of their operations than he could get in any other way.

AT THE LYRIC.
"The Land of Manana," the new musical comedy tabloid which opens a week's run at the Lyric, is one of the brightest and breeziest among the Sampson repertoire and promises to be a big hit. While the skit is filled with musical specialties, comedy and late

Two Functions of the Newspaper

The present day newspaper is the most inexpensive means of gaining practical everyday information regarding those things which are of elementary importance to all. For these reasons it is read by all classes representing all walks of life and exerts a greater influence than any other form of printed word in forming public opinion quickly. It is therefore of vital importance that its pages make the strongest appeal to busy people, and it cannot do this if it lowers its standards by publishing the sensational and inaccurate news so offensive to a great majority—particularly those who wish the newspaper to fulfil its highest mission.

Appreciating the value of an advertising medium read by all classes, the advertiser uses it in which to present his offerings to the public.

That newspaper which is freest from sensation is most welcome in the home, and the wise merchant realizing this uses it as a means of advertising his most attractive values. The woman, then, who follows this advertising becomes expert as a buyer for the household and thereby increases the purchasing power of the money she spends. The habit of advertisement reading, once formed, enables every woman to be as well informed and sure of what she buys and the relative value of merchandise as the business man who keeps in close touch with the pulse of the business world.

Every woman should be a trained buyer, and an observant, intentionally interested reader of advertising.

In Portland the medium highest in standard for uplift and decency is the Portland Labor Press.

popular song successes, there is a real plot, funny enough to bring smiles to the face of a cigar store Indian.

"The Test" at the Globe.
A widely advertised production of the Vitagraph Company is the chief attraction at the Globe. "The Test," which tries all three, departs far from the ordinary and furnishes the thrilling climax of a strong production. The Pathe Weekly is also on the program. It presents scenes in Shanghai during the Chinese rebellion.

Economy Not the Remedy.
No one can rationally approve heedless extravagance; no thinking man or woman does. And it is doubtless true that the poor and the relatively poor are led by the example of the prodigal into petty, silly extravagances, into the artificial disregard of cost, the imitative heedlessness of expense, the trailing after idiotic styles, styles purposely rigged, set and advertised as snares of commerce for the thoughtless, the waste of substance upon the inconsequential or even the vicious. But the proscription of the niceties and the substantialities and the comforts of life for the poor and the prescription of intemperate so-called economy are arrogant, cruel vapidities when considered as cures for the inequalities in the enjoyment of the decently good things of temporal existence and as aids to the more natural and just distribution of them.—Robert S. Doubleday, in The Public.

Cleveland Has "Home" Plan.
Cleveland, home of the 3-cent street-car fare and other similar successes along progressive municipal government lines, is contemplating another venture. Cleveland is going into the real estate business. The city will undertake the establishment of a model village or a community of homes for working men that will stand as a model of the ideal American home.

Homes Fast Disappearing.
There were in New York City, July 1, 901,500 living apartments or suites, according to figures compiled by the Tenement House Department. The number of buildings with accommodations for three or more families was 101,518.

Work in Trades Kills.

Statistics kept for Massachusetts, covering a period of 42 years and including 229,897 deaths, show that women in trade live on an average of more than 12 years less than does the average person engaged in the usual employments. Their average is 39 years and 1 month, while the average for the cases studied is 51 years and 7 months. Relative to the death rate from tuberculosis, it is found that the three occupations showing the highest rate are female occupations, while of the eight occupations showing the highest death rates six are those where women are the employees.

Taylor Wins Honors.

J. C. Taylor, district business agent and organizer for the International Association of Machinists in the Pacific Northwest, and well known in Portland, has been chosen one of the four delegates who will represent the Machinists at the 1914 and 1915 conventions of the American Federation of Labor. Taylor is now spending the greater part of his time on the Pacific Coast, endeavoring to settle the strike in the contract machine shops of the Coast cities.

Commission Form Defeated.

The proposed new charter for Minneapolis, Minn., providing for a commission plan of government, was defeated, 23,127 to 9,991, the other day. The laboring men and Socialists both advanced the argument that since, under the proposed charter, commissioners would be chosen by city-wide votes, poor men could not afford to make the contest, and their class would therefore be unrepresented.

Shopmen Win Again.

The machinists and other shop crafts have signed an agreement with the Denver & Salt Lake Railway company providing for an increase in wages of 1 cent per hour and a nine-hour day until April 1, 1914, at which time the eight-hour day goes into effect. This is the first signed contract the unions have had with the management of the Colfax road.

Carpenters Growing.

The total membership of the combined locals of the country is the largest in the history of the brotherhood of Carpenters, the enrollment being 255,000, an increase of 23,000 during the last year. Wage increases are reported by 350 locals.

Young In Spokane.

C. O. Young, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, has gone to Spokane to assist in building up the trades and labor organizations of the city.

Secretary, and expended, in a set of books belonging to the Local and render every quarter a statement of total receipts and disbursements with the balance on hand. It shall be his duty to deposit all money in such banks as the Association may direct. All bills shall be paid by check. All sums in the checking account not required for immediate use, in excess of $500, shall be transferred to the Trustees to be applied to the funds in their possession. He shall not be held responsible for the funds in the hands of the Trustees, he shall, before he enters upon the duties of his office, give a bond subject to the approval of the Board of Directors, for the faithful discharge of his duties. He shall, at the expiration of his term of office, deliver into the hands of his successor all moneys, books and property belonging to the Local. He shall receive such salary as the Association may determine.
