

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION

While the situation in regard to work in printing offices here shows little or no improvement, there are unmistakable indications that a wave of prosperity is slowly creeping our way.

A. N. Dwyer arrived in this city from Olympia Tuesday morning, and left Wednesday with his brother, E. J. Dwyer, who has been here several weeks, for Virginia City, Nev., where the latter hopes to recover from a severe case of tubercular trouble.

The Oregonian is installing three new linotypes, one a model 18 and the others model 19, all designed for ad work. The two latter have auxiliary magazines, and will be the first of this model in Portland.

No. 58 held a referendum election Wednesday on two I. T. U. propositions, one to decrease the number of signers necessary to obtain a charter, and the other to increase the salary of I. T. U. president and secretary.

Secretary Philo Howard, of the Northwestern Typographical Conference, in his Monthly Bulletin says "the executive committee of the conference is getting two printing bills in shape for the next legislature, one of which will have as its object the keeping of all printing in the state."

Sherman McCoskery arrived in Portland from Seattle and Tacoma Wednesday. "Mac" was last here in October, 1914.

"Dad" Zimmerman was in town from the wilds of Jennings Lodge Tuesday. He informed us confidentially that salmon fishing is getting good.

Robert A. Hunt, who has been working on the Oregonian for more than a year, took a "traveler" Thursday, and intends going to Los Angeles.

A letter from Arthur Floyd received Thursday, from San Francisco, states that printing conditions there are very dull.

Profiting by the example of a recent case wherein a member of No. 58 neglected to change his beneficiary after marriage, and died leaving his mortuary benefit to a brother instead of his wife, several members have since applied to this office for information in their own cases.

Lee M. Clark, of the Multnomah Printing Company, who has been in Eastern Oregon recruiting service for the Government, returned to Portland this week. Mr. Clark, who has the rank of captain, was mustered in July 18, and was mustered out Friday, October 13.

The condition of Fred Perry, who is ill with pneumonia, remains practically unchanged. It is expected that the crisis will be reached in the next day or so. He is unable to see anyone at present, but inquiries can be made by calling Woodlawn 814.

W. H. Bell, in charge of the San Francisco agency of the Mergenthaler Linotyping Company, arrived in Portland this week. Mr. Bell is swinging around the Nevada-Utah-Washington-Oregon circle, inspecting the agencies of the company's, and reports business as being exceedingly good.

A. K. Houghton, of Kleist & Co. chapel, is resident with a brand-new 1917 Studebaker automobile, purchased this week.

Ray Abbott, who has been holding down a combination job at Pilot Rock, Oregon, has returned to his farm at White Salmon, Wash., to harvest his apple crop.

Floyd A. Loomis is the father of a nine-pound boy, born Wednesday. Mother and child doing well. Congratulations!

The Telegram took three games from the Oregonian Pressroom team, the Modern Prints did the same to the Journal Pressers, and the Journal Composing-room team lost two to the Stereotypers Wednesday night on the Portland alleys, in the Printing Trades Tenpin League.

Word has been received from E. E. Vinson, who went to San Francisco to finish a course on the monotype keyboard, that he has graduated and has secured a situation in a San Francisco shop in which is also employed Miss Anna Donovan, with whom Mr. Vinson formerly worked at the office of James, Kerns & Abbott in Portland.

This office received a letter last week from Albion T. Gerber, one of the proprietors of the Arcady Press and a member of No. 58, who is in Troop A, Oregon Cavalry. Mr. Gerber says the troop hopes to be home shortly, but that there is nothing definite known about when they will leave.

W. A. Logue was in Portland last week from Southern Oregon, where he has been engaged in mining business for the past four months. He left Saturday for Eastern Oregon, where he also has mining interests.

Robert F. Smith left Friday of last week to take a situation on a weekly paper at Halfway, Oregon, in Baker County. Mr. Smith has been working on the Telegram.

A. C. Shoemaker has been heard from in Spokane, where he is working on the Press, and occasionally contributing articles under his own name and that of Alvaro Zapatero, which means Shoemaker, if you don't understand Spanish.

Roy Ringo arrived in Portland from Kansas City Friday of last week. Mr. Ringo left here in January of this year, and has worked in Salt Lake and later in Kansas City. He will remain here.

Frank Viereck returned from the East last Saturday, having visited several of the principal cities, including New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and has become imbued with the idea that Chicago is the only town on the map. You'd have hard work to convince him that New York has more population, and as for business—why, little old Manhattan-on-the-subway isn't in it.

F. H. Timperlake, of the Monotype Company, has returned from a Southern Oregon trip in the interests of his company.

Fred Mellinger, who took a situation on the Pendleton Tribune about a month ago, has been elected president of that local, and apparently intends to remain in the "round-up" city.

W. K. Rutter, who "hiked" from California to Roseburg, Oregon, with "Easy Pickings" Stewart, where the latter had to abandon the trip owing to a severe attack of malaria, arrived in Portland last week, and left for Tacoma Wednesday.

George A. Stahley, who went to Astoria last week, intending to remain in the fisher village by the sea, returned Saturday, and is again at Kilham's. George couldn't stay away from the paved streets. Get him to tell about his experience with auto tires on the way back to town.

Arthur Hansen has about finished his course on the monotype keyboard at the company's school in Philadelphia and doubtless will soon return to Portland.

W. H. Bathgate returned last Saturday from a trip to Anaconda, Butte, Helena, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Chicago. He reports business in the printing line as good in all places visited.

A letter received Wednesday from Beryl D. Budworth, dated Redwood, Cal., states that he is foreman of a printing plant there and is taking very active interest in union affairs.

John Schmid of the Schmid Linotyping Company left Wednesday for a hunting trip to Carson, Wash., on the Columbia, and will return today or Sunday.

Guy McGreer and wife are entertaining a brother, John T. McGreer and wife, from Lincoln, Neb.

Arthur W. Lawrence, State Printer, was in town last Saturday and paid this office a visit.

The officers reports and convention proceedings distributed during the past week to the various chapels contain some very interesting and instructive information regarding the workings and actions of our International Union.

Of special interest are the reports of the international president upon the general conditions of the craft, and of the secretary-treasurer upon the financial condition of our union.

It would be well for every member to study these reports carefully and to better acquaint themselves with the actions taken by our officers, and to fully understand the questions which must be decided by a referendum vote.

A. Kummer is still unable to resume his work at the Oregon Engraving Company. He is now well onto the road of recovery, and it is confidently expected that he will again be at his old stand next Monday.

L. M. Lasley was confined to his bed by illness last week. Len refuses to divulge the real trouble. He claims he had every disease imaginable from a headache to scarlet fever and tuberculosis, and that the union was fortunate in not having to pay his death benefit.

The Central Labor Council last week endorsed several candidates as being fair to organized labor, and urges every union man to vote for them. It especially urges every union to do all in its power to defeat Beveridge, who is running for County Clerk.

His campaign managers are especially antagonistic to organized labor. Among them are A. A. Bailey, the labor renegade, and political turncoat, recently employed at Stockton Cal., by the M. M. & E. in an effort to destroy unionism in that city. Others are A. L. Amidon, whose name has always been associated with political scandal.

CARPENTERS NO. 1106

Met in regular session at Laurelwood Hall, Wednesday evening, Oct. 11, with President P. E. Baines in the chair.

Roll call found all officers present.

A cordial invitation was sent to us from Local No. 226, to attend open meeting to be held in their hall Tuesday, Oct. 17. No. 1106 expects to be well represented.

Considerable discussion on the Katsky job as being unfair. The following committee was ap-

Under the auspices of the Oregon Consumers' League in room A of the Central Library, Wednesday, October 25 at 3 P. M., Mrs. P. P. Munger will deliver an address in which she will compare the conditions existing in Portland restaurants with those of Boston restaurants. Her subject is "The Regulation of the Restaurant to the Pure Food Laws."

The suggestion that we set aside one meeting night each month for educational discussions was disposed of with a motion to set aside the second meeting night in each month for said purpose, and the president to be instructed to procure black board and put same in hall.

Meeting adjourned at 10 P. M. H. HILL, Rec. Sec.

PAINTERS UNION NO. 10

By Ima Dauber.

Many things besides wages and hours occupied the time of the boys at the last meeting.

Several big jobs which we were in doubt about have been straightened up, and union men are breathing easier now.

From the report of the delegates to affiliated councils, things are coming our way. It is the consensus of opinion that the Chamber of Commerce fight against us ought to have been started long ago.

We initiated three new ones Wednesday, George Reed, J. M. Cox and H. L. Stafford.

Little Pickthorne didn't show up Wednesday. Guess why. The sawed off little rascal has gone and got married without tipping us off. Told us all the time that all he was after at the beach was clams and here it turns out that he has been flirting with the mermaids and got hooked by one of the nicest of the lot. Well, here's luck to you Shorty, but do show up once in awhile. She'll let you.

Gus Nauratil surprised the bunch. He showed up at the meeting looking like a two-year-old ready for a mile race. He's gone and shaved his handsome mustache and it surely does transform his physiognomy. I never believed a bunch of alfalfa would disguise a man so well.

Come down next week and have a free look at Portland's handsomest painter. Gus Ehrlicke take notice. If you want such favorable comment about yourself, follow suit.

Don't forget the meetings of the Label League each Sunday at 2 P. M. It is well on its way to success and deserves your support. Bring your women folks along. Next meeting in the big hall at the Labor Temple. Everybody come.

LEHANE TO LECTURE

Cornelius Lehane, the great Irish orator and labor leader, will speak in Arion Hall, Second and Oak Streets, next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, on "The Irish Revolution." No admission will be charged. All welcome. Special invitation to the Irish and union labor men and women.

GAIN $1.50 PER WEEK.

Negotiations covering several weeks by Canton, Ohio, Typographical Union, have resulted in a substantial wage increase for a members of the union. All printers working under the jurisdiction of the union will receive $1.50 per week more than heretofore.
