

New Year, New Face

By Brian Marquard

When I interviewed Ashley Elmer, I asked some simple questions. The first one I asked her was, "Tell me a little about yourself" and don't get me wrong, Ashley used the most minimal words she could use. So this interview was the hardest thing I've done.

When I asked Ashley to tell me a little about herself, she replied, "Well, I was born in Southern California. Then I moved from California to White City, Oregon when I was only six years old. After my parents divorced I decided to move with my dad to Seattle Washington. Finally, I moved from Washington to my mom's in Shady Cove.

After we got done with all of that I asked her, "What kind of sports are you interested in or like to play?" She replied, "I love a variety of sports like basketball, soccer, football, etcetera." Then we talked about school. I asked her, "What do you think of your new school?" She plainly stated, "Well, I love the four day week but I hate staying in class until almost 4:00. She would also like to see more different types of classes and more teachers.

So here she is, our newest addition to BFHS.
