

5 Things about Butte Falls I Like (So Far)

Jack Worman, Student Butte Falls High School

I've gone to Butte Falls my whole life and have seen how things change, and how things remain the same. I will show you 5 things about Butte Falls School that I like and one thing that I feel needs improvement. I've always liked how there are small classes. Things are usually more laid back and the students can connect with the teachers more. I like the small school in general too. More kids know each other and get along, and when there are feuds, they usually last a very short time.

There is almost no bullying at Butte Falls and kids that do bully don't usually last long here at Butte Falls. Most students here know how each other work and can find ways around problems.

I also like that kids can make their own clubs. If you can find an advisor for your group, you can have an official club. Plus your club can even get their own picture and stop in the yearbook.

There are no bad teachers in Butte Falls. All the teachers at Butte Falls do great with connecting with students. They are good at relating to students interest and work hard to gain their student's trust and companionship.

The one thing that I think needs improvement is the organization. Particularly, the schedules and class arrangements. I don't like the classes with freshmen and 8th graders combined. It is a bit un-organized and crowded.

So that's what I think about Butte Falls School. Try to look for these things in the school.
