

From the Program Director

As March closes out and April rolls in, many are facing new and uncertain challenges. The Landing is available to help with emergency food boxes for any community member. We especially want to reach out to those that are considered high risk due to medical conditions or age. If you need food, please call us at 541.865.3500. We can have someone deliver to your door if needed.

I want to give a huge thank you to Michael and Susie St. George and Todd Merrill. They served 45 households during the March 27 pantry. They gloved and masked up and worked hard to make sure families and individuals in this community do not go hungry.

I would also like to thank the Butte Falls Charter School for donating their perishable food to the Landing for us to give out to the community. During the week of March 16-20 those perishable foods were added to boxes that were put together by Julie Freeman, Kari Carlton, Shane Smith as well as myself and given out to feed 65 people! Many of the boxes were delivered to the seniors and high-risk families.

Another thank you to Loretta Ellis, our preschool teacher. She is getting creative to help the preschoolers continue their learning. She put together packets and will be doing video schooling with them.

Until further notice, all regular activities at the Landing are suspended. Hopefully, we will be back to our regular lives soon.

On that note, I will finish by reminding you all that Butte Falls is an amazing community, filled with outstanding people that are always willing to jump in and help those in need. I am thankful to live here and be a part of this little mountain town with a huge heart.

Sincerely,
Bridget McGonagle
