A Race of Dwarfs.

A prehistoric cemetery was unearthed a few days ago in a suburb of St. Joseph, Mo., while workmen were terracing a hill on which to build a residence. The silent sleepers, who turned to dust on exposure to the air, proved to be dwarfs, and of a race heretofore unknown to this country. The bones of a giant, estimated to be seven feet in height, were also found in the dwarf cemetery. The report says this giant indicated a person of little intelligence, and very marked animal propensities. The dwarfs were savages of a lower order than any race known today, and yet it seems they honored their dead by giving them burial. Besides playthings for children, collections of loving tributes were found in the graves. No estimate can be formed of the time when these fragments of humanity were clothed with life, but it confirms what has long been believed, that the whole region of Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas was once densely populated, and that by a people who preceded the Indians.

And as everywhere else where the remains of primitive man are to be found, the evidence is conclusive that the race has not deteriorated, but has come up from the uncultured savage to the proud eminence he occupies today; a hint on which our orthodox brothers, would they stop to think, might, with great propriety, reconstruct their very defective creed about fallen man, total depravity and all the necessity of a redeemer to satisfy offended justice. — [Progressive Thinker.

"A Friend in the Kitchen."

When it is understood that our surroundings and what we take into our bodies go a great way toward making us what we are, we see that the matter of food and its preparation is worthy of no little attention. We consider the appearance of a "cook book" which is devoted to wholesomeness and healthfulness, as against the mere pandering to depraved and gluttonous appetite, a step in the right direction. Such a book is "A Friend in the Kitchen," just published by the Pacific Press Publishing Co., of Oakland, Calif. It is devoted mainly to preparation of the cereals for the table, eschewing the use of meats, lard, etc. We recommend it to those who are inclined to try the merits of a vegetarian diet, and to all who use the cereals in any form.

Remember, if you send us the names and addresses of 25 of your Liberal friends and acquaintances, we will make you a present of a copy of the Torch of Reason Song Book No. 2. This will only cost you a few minutes' work and a two-cent stamp.

Should you wish to improve the quality of your bread, use the Celebrated Magic Yeast. Nothing like it for producing a light, sweet, nutritious loaf of bread. It will retain its moisture and nutty flavor longer than bread raised with any other yeast ever put upon the market. TRY IT.

Woodworkers, don't forget to send an order for a set of the Forstner Auger Bits. Price, $2.60 by mail. See ad.
