What Shall We Do With Our Young Folks?

Concluded from 3d page. wealth combined? It you are rich and your children are a disgrace to you and themselves, where it your comfort or your pride? If you are poor and needy, but the father or mother of a noble family, richly endowed with inteligent minds, pure and happy hearts, what care you for the glitter of gold or the pomp of power? You live again in your children and are rich indeed beside the wealthy parent who mourns the fall of a cherished child.

What stronger stimulus do we need to make us declare, here and now, that we will henceforth leave no stone unturned to make our town what it should be. Let us raise the standard of our ideals, and whatever may be lacking in our conditions and surroundings let us strive to supply. Let us unite, one and all, forgetting creed and sect and ism, and devote ourselves to the upbuilding of the town and of our young folks. Let us unite, everybody, to work in the common cause, and if at first we don't succeed, try, try again. Let us leave all envy in the background, and forget that our neighbor is less worthy than ourself. Let the rising be so spontaneous that no one individual can claim the credit, but be obliged to say, "We all did it".

If the conditions above recorded are desirable, if our children are worthy our efforts - yes, if life is worth the living at all, then is there argument enough that our best efforts should be for the growth and betterment of our town. If we so will, all this and more is within our grasp. Friends, let us act while yet we may, and make of our own beautiful Silverton the garden spot, the intellectual and moral center, and withal the happiest spot in the flowery valley of the Willamette.
