Television Shows are Now Movies by Rob Milliron

The new trend in movies these days seems to be making old TV shows that our parents used to like into movies. Kids today are not the same as our parents, we are cooler and into a whole new scene. This makes some of these new movies seem pretty lame.

Four flicks I have seen lately on video or at the theater are The Beverly Hillbillies, The Addams Family, The Fugitive, and the ever so popular Flintstones.

The Beverly Hillbillies is not very good for the younger crowd. It is more for grownups because they can compare it to the TV show. I watch the TV show and it is much better than the movie.

The Addams Family is a pretty good movie. It had lots of funny parts in it. The remarkable acting from Christopher Lloyd made it a winner.

I was disappointed in the Flintstones. There was not much of a plot and it seemed too much like a cartoon. John Goodman was a perfect Fred but I recommend watching the old cartoons. The adults at the theater liked the movie better than the kids.

I never saw the TV show The Fugitive but the movie was a thriller. Harrison Ford is a great actor but Tommy Lee Jones as the FBI agent was even better. I would definitely recommend this movie to anyone over ten. There is some bad language and lots of violence.

Don't waste your time this summer on the Flintstones unless you are a grownup who loves the cartoon. I give The Beverly Hillbillies a 2, don't bother renting it. The Addams Family is lots of fun and I gave it a 7. The Fugitive would be great rainy day entertainment, but all in all I say go to the beach, hike in the woods or hang out at the skate park. You can always go to the movies when school starts again.
