

BLAME IT ON THE STARS

BOBBY LEE ZODIAC

Aries: The roll that started last month goes on. If you haven't already bumped into someone it's fun to bump into, not to worry, you will. While you're waiting, learn to accept praise for your work with the charm and radiant grace that's made you a minor legend. Feel free to be bullish, or ram-ish as the case may be. Those with eyes to see, the only ones worth bothering with, see you clearly now. One click up and you'd be carried through the streets on their shoulders.

Libra: Just when you thought balance was some genetic dream the universe used to tease you, the tides of equilibrium turn. No, not immediately or across the board, but turn them do, especially on the home front. The sort of harmony that manifests as elegance in small things is just what you need and no more than what you deserve. Launch every creative sailboat you have and smile in the breeze.

Taurus: Okay, okay, the year didn't start off with a bang. Moping is for sissies, sweetie, and snarling won't get you anything but bit. Yes, your domestic life is a combination bog and minefield. Been there and done that, haven't we? Your most stupid move would be to bring your petty squabbles to work. Around midmonth, your social schedule picks up, and with it your mood. Expect a new addition to your Rolodex. Someone very different, exotic even.

Scorpio: Shortcircuiting, are we? Pondering what sort of violence to unleash on the telephone if it rings just once more while you're in the shower? Thinking of locking the front door and turning off the porch light? Quit panicking. Just when you start circling the confused wagons of your psyche, clarity and order gallop into the kitchen. Shift your energies outside now but don't imagine you can run on empty. Or that lighting both ends of the candle makes sense.

Gemini: It would be very smart to embrace change. Nothing endures but endurance and buckling is a tough act to follow. Yes, dear, relationships again. The Siamese twins of your love life are heading in different directions. Temptations abound, you lucky dog. Splendid fun, unless you're already sorting through the relationship you're in. Expect increased clarity, if nothing else. It's a time of process, not completion. Seize the moral high ground and wait.

Sagittarius: Mercury, the quicksilver messenger of the universal mind, tapdances on your neural framework. Only those lusting for mental collapse and reversal of fortune would avoid any opportunity to communicate. Ignore minor setbacks, this is only the second month of a very good year. Opportunities tap lightly on the window. Listen in the quiet, curled up with lofty goals and heroic visions, considering the recurrent plotlines of the human comedy.

Cancer: Unless your cosmic wiring is horribly afflicted, you should by now be wearing a smile several sizes larger than your face. Impossibly attractive people continue to howl outside your window. The ones who don't, send flowers. You should get lots of rest before Valentine's Day, nudge nudge. The moments you're not humming softly into middle space, run a quick reality check on your finances. Some unresolved tangle is finally unknotted.

Capricorn: Unless you lack a pulse, for life to get better you'd need to be twins. The world does a double take when you walk into the room. Whatever you've got, its stock just went up hundreds of points in the market. Not that you need them, but your powers of persuasion could sell deodorant to people without noses. Pitch no product that's beneath you. Consider what you might have done to precipitate such embarrassing bounty and do it as much as you can.

Leo: You continue to dance in your own element: fire. The spirit focused through affairs of the heart. Love without reservation is the answer. The question is trust. Disagreements are the result of difference, difference is the engine that drives the fluid machine of karma. Words may seem a clumsy instrument but this is a time when talk is anything but cheap. Lay bare the good and banish glitches born of misunderstanding and fear. Heal something.

Aquarius: Someone close to you seems spoiling for a fight. Consider positions rationally, chances are better than good that it's nothing worth bloodying noses over. It would be stretching the truth to call this a great month. Or even, if the truth be known, a good one. It does have this: a very deep puddle of energy to devote to the forces of discord scratching at your innards. Progress in small things is ambition enough. Frustration is progress unborn.

Virgo: Home and hearth continue to feed you. Your natural talent for creating comfort is prodded by those seeking your company. The fun is only increased by the feeling that you're enjoying unexpected good luck. Luck is the good we put out without expecting it to come back. Good job, fluffy. It should come as no surprise to find your domestic feast to lap over into your professional life. Creativity is creativity and your juices are flowing.

Pisces: Time to throw another log on the fire and contemplate the navel of your karma. Wonder who you are, where you're going, and how in the name of heaven you got where you are. The past is just the hollow bowl of memory, the future just the overflowing well of our dreams. As any quantum relativist physicist will tell you, there is only an eternal present. As the carpenter from Galilee tells us, the kingdom of heaven is at hand, right now. It's even underfoot.
