Back to School

by Rob Millman

I'm back in school, summer is over, no staying up late. I'm entering my 8th grade year. School is boring as ever and it's a struggle to stay awake in class. You would think the first week of school it would be easy but for me it was hard.

I play a lot of video games and have seen a lot of movies, so when they make games into movies I have to go see them. Three games turned into semi-good movies.

Streetfighter starred Jean Claude Van Damme and Raul Julia. It is about a mad man who is trying to take over the world. Van Damme is Col. Guile an army specialist who is sent to fight M. Bison, played by Raul Julia. All of the people from the game are in the movie. This movie is not the best but is suitable for the 10-18 crowd.

Super Mario Bros. is a twisted version of the video game. This also deals with a mad man, or should I say a mad reptile. The Mario Bros. are trying to save a Princess who is sucked into a counter dimension. The Bros. need to get an amulet that the bad guy has. This is filled with many special effects and explosions and is suitable for anyone.

Mortal Kombat is taken from the ultra-violent video game. This movie is by far the best game-into-a-movie yet. If I were to grade this movie I would give it a ten and a half. I loved this movie, it had fighting, a story, and special effects, it was great. Shang tsung goes around the world finding warriors to engage in Mortal Kombat. Sonya is a cop who follows her worst enemy to Kombat Island. Lui Kang is going to avenge his brothers death. Johnny Cage is going to prove he is not a fake fighter.

I have started working at a video store part time. This is my dream job, movies, games, and computers. Next month I'll be reviewing the best and worst of the new release videos.
