

Summer

by Steven R. Miller

Summer in the south is for the start of youth
When older, wiser are about front porches and iced tea,
The young race about,
Dragging worms for fishing
And learning the birds and the bees
Sweat grimed knees,
Playing marbles on damp earth,
Getting out all of summer's worth Waiting on night with mason jars, Fireflies and katydids hold the truth of the awful heat of summer

Memories

By J. McCurdy

Memories of our laughter
Hanging in the air
Shimmer like mirages

They cascade past my pores Surrounding my skin in comfort
The way your arms used to do

They come to rescue me from us in moments
When I cannot begin to see past this broken smile
