Documenting drag

Filmmaker Alex Berry talks about filming the life of an international drag performer, Portland's Jinkx Monsoon

"Drag queens are artists — performance artists — and they're taking their perspective of femininity and filtering it through a male lens and their own (personal) lens and pointing out what gender is and what femininity is and how it's an act, a performance. By exaggerating certain elements, it's a reflection of how gender is experienced in our culture."
