Pride 2018

Street Roots' vendors, staff, volunteers and friends marched in Portland's Pride Parade on Sunday, June 17. Desmond Hardison (far right), Street Roots' canvasser, waves the Street Roots flag during the parade. Chris Drake (seated) and Charles McPherson were two of the many vendors who participated in the annual event.

Peace and ...

by Daniel Cox

Silence as a tomb.
So quiet
It roars.
Not a sound could be Heard.
Nothing to disturb the Peace.

Forgotten

by Jacob C.S.

A world alone is never worlds apart.
This is heard in many ways.
The lost and the forgotten are usually in today's times those who sleep outside.
The reason I say this is for one simple reason.
It's because those who start problems are commonly never there in the first place.
Also towards those who bomb up spots that those use to ask for money or camp at.
There will always be one person that does
both of those things.
