A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Bullet Passed Through a St. Louis Man's Brain, and Yet He Recovered.

Emil Witsky, after occupying a cot at the City Hospital for over two months with a bullet in his brain, is now walking about nearly as well as any one and will be discharged a cured man in the course of a few days.

Witsky's case is one of the most remarkable that ever came under the notice of St. Louis surgeons. It is much stranger than that of the man Tesson, who attempted to commit suicide in Forest park a year ago. Tesson hanged between life and death about a month, but finally died from the effects of the bullet, which lodged in the center of his head. Tesson never got up from his bed after sending the leaden pellet into his brain, and for that matter was unconscious nearly all the time. Witsky is as rational as any man walking the streets. He shot himself over the left eye after having trouble with his wife and mother-in-law.

From the paralysis it caused in his right leg Dr. Marks decided that the bullet lodged in the back of his head on the left side. The jagged hole in the forehead finally healed over, and after remaining in a half dead state for nearly a week Witsky came to. He was not able to move for fully a month on account of the paralysis. No sensation was in the right leg whatever. Needles could be thrust into it, or it could be pinched or burned without his feeling the pain. Three or four weeks ago the paralysis began to disappear. It was thought strange indeed by Dr. Marks and the other physicians, for the bullet had not been removed, and no reason was apparent for the "deadness" to disappear. Yet go away it did, and since that time his recovery has been steady as clockwork. How that 28-caliber bullet plunged through six or eight inches of his brain and remained resting among the tissues without causing instant death or perpetual idleness causes the comprehension of every scientific man who has heard of his case.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WON AND LOST MILLIONS.

Death in California of a Man Who Won One "High Roller" in Europe.

J. S. Scanti, who had made and lost millions almost in a day, was found dead in his cabin on Albatross beach, California, a few days ago. He had died from pneumonia.

Scanti had a checkered career. Seven or eight years ago Paris was the scene of a great gambling craze, which was of short duration. Scanti, who was a native of Spain and a man 60 years of age, created more excitement in gambling circles at the time than did Billy Hart. During his short stay in Paris he managed to make several millions of dollars through cards and other gambling tricks known only in Paris and Monte Carlo. He lost his gains as easily as he won them.

Becoming disgusted with the life, he sailed for New York with quite a snug sum. Several years passed over his head, and he was without anything save the valuable jewels and trinkets which he always carried with him. Misfortune having overtaken him, as it eventually does every man of his kind, Scanti came to California. When he settled in the little cabin by the sea, he decided to live and die in obscurity. His life as a hermit did not last long.

Scanti avoided meeting people whenever possible. He lived from the sale of his trinkets and sold them at a great reduction.—San Francisco Examiner.

A ROYAL TRAIN.

The Best of Cars Which Are to Be Provided for the Czar's Concomitance.

A new imperial train for the czar of Russia is at present being built at the Alexandrovskiy wagon manufacturing at St. Petersburg. It consists of 11 carriages, of which one is reserved for the railway official, a kitchen carriage and two luggage vans. With the exception of wheels and the axles, which have been supplied by Krupp, at Essen, the whole of the material is of Russian origin and manufacture. By means of a very powerful automatic brake the train can be brought to a standstill in a minimum of time from every one of the carriages. The interior of the carriages is appointed with much taste. The windows are different on both sides. The side with the corridor has windows of a uniform size, while the windows on the other side are made in accordance with the requirements of the various compartments. The passages between the various cars are ventilated.

The carriage of the czar and carina is connected directly with the dining room; then come the large saloon car, the carriages of the grand dukes, etc. The carriages will be sent on a trial trip to Copenhagen. Some of them have already been sent to Vienna and back.—Railway Review.

The Ohio Trade and Labor assembly, in annual session in Columbus, recently resolved in favor of woman suffrage.

MOTHERS
recovering from the illness attending child-birth, or who suffer from the effects of disorders, derangements and displacements of the womanly organs, will find relief and a permanent cure in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Taken during pregnancy, the "Prescription" MAKES CHILD BIRTH EASY by preparing the system for parturition, thus assisting Nature and shortening "labor." The painful ordeal of child-birth is robbed of its terrors, and the dangers thereof greatly lessened, to both mother and child. The period of confinement is also greatly shortened, the mother strengthened and built up, and an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child promoted.

HINTS ON CHEERFULNESS.

There Are Plenty of Opportunities to Make Others Happy.

"Cheer" and "Comfort." There are always chances in life to do both, for turn where you will, there are those who are in need of help. Often those who have every earthly thing they need—shelter, money, food, clothing, books, all sorts of opportunities—are in want of the heavenly things which "cheer" and "comfort" mean. They are depressed, low in their spirits, and disagreeable because they are unhappy. To such persons young people with bright faces and light hearts, can bring both the cheer that gives courage and the comfort that takes away pain. You haven't to do anything in a grand and heroic manner either. Simply be yourselves, and let the gladness that is in you bubble up and overflow, and you will make tired people happier.

Two school girls sat behind me in a car the other day, chatting together in low voices, and laughing immoderately every few minutes at the happenings of their day. Bless them, the sweet, gay, merry-hearted creatures! The cheer seemed to come after they reached their station, and went tripping along the road up the long hill to their home out of sight from my point of view.

Just be yourselves, dear, and you will make older people happier. I sent a loving word of thanks after my school girls, for they had been a help to me. One afternoon passing a church on a city street, I read this announcement on a bulletin board at the door: "The Pleasant Words Society will meet at 4 o'clock." Wasn't that fine? The "Pleasant Words" Society! Whatever we think of, however we feel, we may speak pleasantly, our words and our tones being in our own control. The effort to speak pleasantly will usually cause us to feel pleasant, and it is pleasant people—people who please—who get together and form societies and clubs. Who ever heard of a fault-finders society or cross-words society? Former fault-finders have to set in corners alone.—Harper's Round Table.

THE PUZZLE OF PUZZLES.

A New and Ingenious Toy Which Is New Baffle-solving Everybody.

A new and remarkably interesting adaptation of the famous "fifteen puzzle" has been put upon the market to entertain the thousands who like to bother their brains by bringing almost impossible combinations out of chaos. The new puzzle, which, from its form and the intricacy of its make, is vastly superior to the old style and is destined to be even more popular, consists of five square wooden blocks, fitted into a neat and attractive tin box, large enough to permit the turning over of one of the blocks, and thus permitting of a change—by turning one at a time—of the position and faces of all of them.

The blocks have sunken disks on each of their six sides, one of which is colored green, one yellow, one black, one blue and one white. The problem is to so arrange the blocks, by turning one at a time in the single open space, as to have all of the same color uppermost at the same time. The blocks are also lettered on one side, A, B, C, D and E. The blocks are first placed in the box with the letters up and running in alphabetical order. After they are in this order they are to be moved by turning from one space to another until five blocks are turned up, then five greens, five reds, five blues and five yellows.

All of the colors having been turned up, one is then to turn the blocks back, so as to leave them the way they were before they were turned into alphabetical order. The variations of the blocks and their position are interesting and complicated, and it is one sees that the problem is capable of being worked out, although extremely puzzling, the interest grows the longer the problem baffles one. The whole arrangement is put up in an especially attractive form.

It has already had a large sale, and its popularity bids fair to increase as it becomes more widely known. Business men find it a restful and interesting occupation to relieve their minds from the routine of work, without great mental strain, and everyone thinks it is so easy that they all at once start to work it out. The minutes grow into hours, while the worker gets so tantalizingly close to the solution in every move that he almost knows the next one will surely bring it out. But the endeavor to change one block disturbs the sequence of every one, and then one has to begin all over again. The manufacturing company have very aptly named their ingenious toy the "Puzzle of Puzzles."

Not Selfish—Why do you and Bobby quarrel so much? I hope my Willie is not a selfish little boy. "No, mamma, I'm not selfish, but Bobby is. He always wants to play the games I don't want to."—Harper's Bazar.

A Prayer With a Codicil—Little Jack prays every night for all the different members of his family. His father had been away at one time for a short journey, and that night Jack was praying for him as usual. "Bless papa and take care of him," he was beginning, as usual, when suddenly he realized, as if by a miracle, that he was praying for his father as usual. "Never did I love my father," ended the little fellow, "I love him down in the hell."—Current Literature.

LIKE A SIEVE.

The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and excrete particles which make their final exit through the bladder. The retention of these, in consequence of weakness of the kidneys, is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, albuminuria and other maladies with a fatal tendency. How better's kidneys fit out, a highly acidulated diuretic and blood purifier, impels the kidneys when inactive to renew their filtering function, and strain from the vital current impurities which infect it and threaten their own existence as organs of the body. (Caution: The leader, gravel and retention of the urine are also made easier or averted by this benign remedy, and restorative of the system. It cures malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia also yield to the Bitters, which is especially beneficial to the weak and nervous.)

Dr. Fuller—The action of winking is not without its use; people wink to keep the eye moist, to clear water out of it, and to keep it from getting too hot. The people who come in here wink to keep their throats moist.
