NATIONAL BANK CONSPIRACY.

"The New York National Bank Presidents' Conspiracy Against Industry and Property, a history of the panic of 1893; its organization and methods, by J. W. Schuckers private secretary to Salmon P. Chase; President Lincoln's great Secretary of the Treasury, during the Civil War, has been received at this office. The little book gives a complete history of the methods and workings of the bankers to bring about the financial crisis. Mr. Schuckers says, "My earnest desire has been—my earnest desire now is—that the facts of that conspiracy shall be probed to the bottom, either by a commission of Congress or by the courts. It is not worth while to appeal to the New York courts. I do not know that it is worth while to appeal to Congress. What I do know is—that if ever an investigation is had, it will develop an infamy that will appal the people, and, as I hope, will move them to execute justice upon the National Bank assassins who in 1893 did so much evil. * * * The panic of 1893 was a colossal calamity that involved tens of thousands of men and women in commercial and industrial ruin; that involved hundreds of thousands—even millions of men and women—in loss and extreme distress. My aim is to show that this destructive panic was the work of a deliberately determined conspiracy; that this conspiracy originated in Wall street; that it was organized in Wall street; that it was engineered from Wall street—and that in its front, as the active agents in carrying it into execution, stood a score of lawless New York National Bank presidents, backed and supported by the entire Associated Banks of that city. I propose to present the facts and the proofs, and to these facts I ask the attention of the people.

"The presidential preference of the New York bankers and brokers in 1692 was Grover Cleveland. They gave a practically unanimous support to his candidacy—many of them abandoning their former party associations in order to do so. Conspicuous instances of this abandonment were George G. Williams, president of the Chemical National bank, and George S. Coe, president of the Exchange National; both old men, and lifelong republicans. These men did not become democrats. They made no pretense of being democrats. They were Cleveland republicans because they expected to control Grover Cleveland to their own uses, as they subsequently did, when they involved him and his administration in their piratical schemes for panic and destruction of property. The alliance of Grover Cleveland with these malignant and criminal bankers was an unmitigated national calamity, from the disastrous effects of which no American of this generation will live to see a final recovery. Immediately that the result of the presidential election was known, the Associated National Banks and bankers of New York set up a terrific scream for the immediate unconditional repeal of the Sherman silver law—the repeal of that law being the first step in their scheme for a reconstrustion of the monetary system—a reconstruction intended to still further increase the power and control of the National Banks over the industry, the commerce and the property of the country."

The writer goes on to show the scheming and treachery of the Wall street money power in connection with President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle and other prominent public men in concocting the scheme to bring on a panic, and a stringency in the finances of this country. He shows the success of their scheming and plotting, and the distress caused thereby. In conclusion the writer says; "But whatever may be thought as to the fact of the alleged conspiracy, it should be obvious to every intelligent and thoughtful person that there is no community of interest whatever between the great banks of New York with their European connections, and the smaller banks that are scattered far and wide over the country. * * * The extraordinary percentage of failures among the Western and Southern banks should be proof to the most skeptical that their interests are with the producers, and not with the great Eastern banks. If the people of those sections could have turned their property, either real or personal, into money at fair prices, they could have met, their obligations at their local banks. Then the latter would have had no difficulty in responding to every demand upon them from whatever quarter."

The following is the state law for the suppression of impure literature, which is published in this column to inform those here and elsewhere who are uninformed, as to the existence of such a law, that they may be careful not to make themselves liable to punishment by not observing the law:

No. 1, page 949, Hill's Annotated Laws of Oregon: If any person shall import, print, publish sell, or lend, give away, distribute, or show, or have in his possession, with intent to sell or give away, or to show or advertise, or otherwise offer for loan, gift, sale, or distribution, any obscene or indecent book magazine, pamphlet, newspaper, story paper, picture, drawing, or photograph, engraved (engraving), or any article or instrument of indecent or immoral use, or if any person shall design, copy, draw, photograph, print, utter, publish or otherwise prepare such a book, picture, drawing paper, or other article, or shall write or print, or cause to be written or printed, a circular, advertisement, or notice of any kind, or shall give information stating when, where, how, or whom, or by what means, such indecent or obscene article, or thing, can be purchased or obtained; or if any person sells, lends, gives away, or shows, or has in his possession with intent to sell, or give away, or show or advertise, or otherwise offer for loan, gift, sale, or distribution to any minor child, any book, pamphlet, magazine, newspaper, or other printed paper, devoted to the publication, or principally made up of criminal news, police reports, or accounts of criminal deeds, or pictures and stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust, crime; or if any person exhibits upon any street or highway, or in any other place, with the view, or which may be within the view of any minor child, any book, magazine, pamphlet, newspaper, writing, paper, picture, drawing, photograph, or other articles, coming within the descriptions of articles mentioned in the first and second subdivisions of this section, or any of them; or if any person in any manner hires, uses, or employes, any minor child to sell, or give away, or in any manner to distribute, or who having the care, custody, or control of any minor child, permits such child to sell, give away, or in any other manner to distribute any book, magazine, pamphlet, newspaper, story paper, writing, paper, picture drawing, photograph, or other articles, or matters coming within the descriptions of articles and matter mentioned in this section, or any of them,—upon conviction thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one year, nor more than three years, or by a fine not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than fifteen hundred dollars.

Before the enforcement of the excise law in New York, Sunday was always a busy day in the emergency wards of the hospitals. The most of the cases brought in were men injured in fights in saloons, or by accidents, because being under the influence of liquor they were unable to take care of themselves. Sunday is now the quietest day of the week.

Even in "hard times," 1894, the consumption of the "filthy weed" in the United States amounted to twenty-eight million dollars.

From 30 per cent (the non tobacco users) of the Cambridge, England, students, come nine-tenths of the honor winners—a telling fact.

Miss Frances E. Willard is the first maiden lady who has ever declared her 55th birthday in a public manner.

General Harrison writes of "The Presidential Office" in the March Ladies' Home Journal, and his comprehensive article is outspoken and plain. He takes occasion to commend President Cleveland's movement toward establishing a more permanent consular service. The ex-president says: "The need of a better consular service has been getting a strong hold upon the public mind. The practice has been to make frequent changes in these offices—indeed an complete change upon the coming in of an administration of a different party. The duties of a consul relate almost wholly to our commerce with the country where he serves * * * The recent movement by Mr. Cleveland and in Congress for a better qualified and permanent consular force is to be commended. It is remarked that changes in the home administration in other countries, such as England and France, do not involve changes in the ministers and embassadors or consuls, as they do with us. The English ambassador at Washington holds right on whether the liberals or the tories are in power. He represents his country, not a party, and carries out the instructions from the home government loyally. He is never heard to make speeches attacking the policy of the opposing party—or criticising his own people. Perhaps one of the chief difficulties in our getting a permanent diplomatic and consular service grows out of the fact that the tariff question is one that is always acute in our politics, and the reports of our consuls naturally take on the views held by them upon this question. We cannot have a permanent diplomatic and consular service until we can find diplomats and consuls who will leave their party politics at home. If they are to be aign or exercised abroad then it [illegible]

A Fine Large Brick Building

With perfect sanitary precautions, beautifully situated and every surrounding conducive to health and intellectual pleasure. Reference is given to the banks and prominent business houses of Salem, and the officials of the State and County. Studies will be resumed Monday, Sept. 2, 1895, and in the meantime all other information desired can be obtained by addressing Sister Superior, Salem, Oregon.

The exposure to all sorts and conditions of weather that a lumberman is called upon to endure in the camps often produces severe colds which, if not promptly checked, result in congestion or pneumonia. Mr. J. O. Davenport, ex-manager of the Fort Bragg Redwood Co., an immense institution at Fort Bragg, Cal., says they sell large quantities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the company's store and that he has himself used this remedy for a severe cold and obtained immediate relief. This medicine prevents any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia and insures a prompt recovery. For sale by A. M. Phelps & Co.

Demorest's Magazine Free.

And what a magazine it is! For 1896 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new methods, new ideas. Each contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by some famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a dozen magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a Storehouse of interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, bric-a-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kind, etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well-being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1895 and 1896 will cover the whole country and its varied interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. It treats at length Out-of-Door Sports, Home Amusements and Entertainments; it gives a great deal of attention to the Children's Department, and "Our Girls," and has a Monthly Symposium by Celebrated People, in which are discussed important questions of the hour of interest to the older readers.

THE NAME OF THE NEXT

President of the United States

WILL BE ANNOUNCED IN

THE NEW YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE

OF NOVEMBER 4th, 1896.

Public interest will steadily increase, and the question how the men whose votes turned the scale at the last election are satisfied with the results under the administration they elected, will make the campaign the most intensely exciting in the history of the country.

The New York Weekly Tribune,

the leading Republican family newspaper of the United States, will publish all the political news of the day, interesting to every American citizen regardless of party affiliations.

Also general news in attractive form, foreign correspondence covering the news of the world, an agricultural department second to none in the country, market reports which are recognized authority, fascinating short stories, complete in each number, the cream of the humorous papers, foreign and domestic, with their best comic pictures, fashion plates and elaborate descriptions of woman's attire with a varied and attractive department of household interest. The "New York Weekly Tribune" is an ideal family paper, with a circulation larger than that of any other weekly publication in the country issued from the office of a daily. Large changes are being made in its details, tending to give it greater life and variety, and especially more interest to the women and young people of the household.
