PARLIAMENT WILL REASSEMBLE

The Government Actively Preparing for a Great Struggle in South Africa.

London, Oct. 9.—Whatever may be the result of Great Britain's conflict with the South African republic every department of the government today is as busy as though actual hostilities had begun.

The electric flash that announced the mobilization of the parliament, set every wheel of the government machinery in motion.

After the Gazette appeared, executive orders were being dispatched from the war office to every section of the kingdom, and the 10,000 bulletins which appeared posted throughout the country today are said to have been identical with the proclamation prepared for use had the Fashoda incident required such a step.

At the same time Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour were issuing the necessary orders for the reassembling of parliament, and the admiralty was concentrating its transports. So complete were the preparations that 25,000 recruits have already individually received coupon tickets which contain instructions where each man shall report for railway transportation to the place designated, and a money order for three shillings for provisions on route.

At Woolwich today, it was asserted that 95 per cent of the reserves would be fully equipped within six days. In the meantime, the members of the two houses of parliament are arranging to return to London, and a force of men is busily engaged in completing the improvements at Westminster.

The important news from South Africa comes from Mafeking, where twice on Saturday the British camp was aroused, the men stood to their arms, and were limbered and patrolled by the direction of the border.

The garrisoning and fortifying of the town are practically completed. The streets are barricaded, and a perfect system of mines has been laid.

Two armored trains have arrived at Mafeking, consisting of three bullet-proof cars, the first of which carries a searchlight, while the rest of the cars are loop-holed. Each train is complete in itself and carries its own provisions.

Mr. Way to Avoid War. Southampton, Oct. 9.—Sir St. John Christopher Willoughby, who accompanied Dr. Jameson into the Transvaal in 1896, and who, for participating in a banquet, was sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment, but was subsequently released, was a passenger by the steamer Mexican, which sailed for the Cape of Good Hope Saturday.

Mr. Wessels, member of the Cape assembly for Vryburg, was also a passenger by the Mexican. In the course of an interview, Mr. Wessels declared that he saw no way to avert war between Great Britain and the Transvaal, and if not long, it would be terribly severe. He believed it would be impossible to restrain the younger Dutch residents of Cape Colony, with whom blood would prove thicker than water.

The Boers, said Mr. Wessels, were armed in, and would fight desperately, and a trouble might be expected with the natives.

TRIED SELF-DESTRUCTION. The Barbare Act of a Polish Woman. Seattle, Oct. 9.—A special from Bucooda says: A most interesting and barbaric attempt at suicide occurred at this place yesterday.

Mrs. Leo Prabuksi, a Polish woman, became angered at some little domestic occurrence and determined to do away with her life. She procured an ordinary hatpin six inches long and drove the pin into her stomach through the navel.

Pressing hard against the pin, she drove it until it could go no farther, as it had lodged in the spine of the navel, with the intention of forcing the pin out at the back, she procured a rusty darning needle, and drove this into what she thought was the hole made by the hat pin. Not until 12 o'clock last night did she tell any one what she had done.

Today Mrs. Prabuksi repented of her act, and accompanied the Bucooda physician to this city, where Dr. Redpath removed the pin and needle. Dr. Redpath thinks she will live. She is 48 years old and has 19 children, five of whom are living.

Native of the New Hebrides Roasts a Hawaiian.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 9.—A remarkable story of cannibalism was brought to Sydney, Australia, a few days before the sailing of the steamer Aorangi to this port, by the French steamer Jeanette. The victim of the display of savagery was a native of Hawaii, named Amaru, who acted as orderly to the immigration department at Noumea, in the New Hebrides.

About six months ago Amaru married a native woman of Aoba, in the New Hebrides group, and on passing that island on the second day of the voyage of the Jeanette to one of the outlying islands, he decided to visit his wife's tribe. Accordingly the couple were put off in a small boat, and it was only a few weeks ago that the steamer made a second call and learned their fate. By mistake they had landed on an unfriendly shore and were taken prisoners.

The man was tied to a stake and his torture begun. This consisted first in allowing vicious jungle snakes from which the poison fangs had been removed to attack the man's legs. Then a fire was made at his feet and his legs were horribly burned, though the injury was superficial so that the victim would not die under the treatment. Then he was made the target for the spears of the tribesmen, who finally killed him. He was torn to pieces and placed over a fire with two sheep. In fact, according to the story he was eaten with the sheep.

In the meantime Amaru's wife had been provided with another husband. The matter was reported to a British man-of-war, but it is thought no action has been taken.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—Bearded and bronzed, sobered by the hard campaigning of a year in a tropical country, not much like a regiment of young men that went out a year and a half ago, the First Washington volunteers returned this morning on the transport Pennsylvania.

They were glad to get back, were the men of the First Washington. They cheered the sight of land, they cheered the parties which went out in tugs to show their feeling of happiness and gratitude, and they cheered as they passed by the men-of-war in the bay.

It was a jovial, whole-souled reception the regiment got. Scarce a man in the "Fighting First" failed to find a friend in the throng which, representing the state of Washington, went out in tugs to greet the returning volunteers. Friends were reunited, husbands met their wives, some their mothers or sisters, for the first time in nearly two years. A reception that lasted four hours was held aboard the transport.

The Pennsylvania was sighted at 10 o'clock, but it was noon before the quarantine officer had finished their work and the ship was ready to receive its visitors. The official reception committee from the state of Washington, headed by Governor Rogers and Senators Turner and Foster, aboard the government tug Fearless, circled about the transport, the volunteers cheering the prominent men on board the tug, and the committee from the north yelting itself hoarse, or frantically waving handkerchiefs. The regimental band struck up to make "The Star Spangled Banner" heard.

The soldiers were delighted and eager; so much so that ranks were broken and the men who ought to have been in company formation swarmed to the side of the boat to exchange greetings. Cheers for Wholly and for Fife and Weisenberger were given by the committee, to be answered by the volunteers for Rogers, Turner and Foster. Colonel Wholly bounded down the gangway with outstretched hands to greet Governor Rogers, with the exclamation: "Governor, I have brought you back your regiment."

On board there was no attempt at a regular reception. Friends seized each other's hand or in their joy embraced at the head of the gangway. Relatives hurried away for a private chat.

Reception on the Transport. Later in the day a reception in the master's cabin was tendered Lieutenant-Colonel Fife and Major Weisenberger. The governor, General J. M. Ashton, Judge Thomas Carroll, Sheriff A. U. Mills, Captain Tuttle, of the revenue cutter Bear, Manager Higby and others were present. General Ashton toasted the First Washington, and Colonel Fife responded, saying he fully appreciated, as did the regiment, the compliment paid to the men by the presence of such a reception committee.

He said the arrival of the committee was the most agreeable sight he had seen since he had left home, a year and a half ago. Colonel Fife toasted the governor the state had ever had. The governor's attention to the regiment, Colonel Fife said, was appreciated, and the regiment felt honored by its reception.

Governor Rogers made an appropriate response, stating that the First Washington was composed of men who did not go to war to kill their fellow men, but the people of the state appreciated in this instance the old biblical statement, "greater love hath no man than that he would," etc.

"This we feel the regiment has done not only for the United States, but for the state of Washington," said Governor Rogers. Judge Carroll paid the regiment a high compliment and toasted Major Weisenberger as "Our Dewey."

Major Weisenberger responded, giving reminiscences of the regiment's war experiences. The visitors were given lunch aboard the transport, mail was distributed among the volunteers, fruit and cigars were passed aboard and divided, and the rest of the day was devoted to private greetings and welcoming.

Atoria, Or., Oct. 9.—The run of fish during the past few days has been fairly good, but the pack of the combine is not a true index of the Columbia river run, as it receives about five tons a day from Shoalwater bay, and packs them at one of the canneries here. The price for fish—which are now understood to be silversides—is 2 cents per pound. Steelheads are very scarce, but command 5 cents, or even 10 cents if they could be secured in carload lots.

All fish buyers have had a practical combination on the price of fish until today. C. Alter raised the price to 2 1/2 cents, and the Tresscott Packing Company instructed its buyers to pay the same price. The only canner that is now paying 2 1/2 cents is Warren's, at Cathlamet. There is every reason to believe that this price will be doubled before the month is over, when the usual fall fishing season shall be over.

An Astoria fisherman, who has been working on the Steels river since the opening of the season, has returned, and reports that for the first few days after the season opened there was an abundance of fish, but since then not enough have been caught to pay the living expenses of the fishermen.
