entist, in a lecture at Chicago, termed the American college professor as "a hired man in a cage."

HAPPENINGS HERE IN OREGON

LOOKING FOR LOST PACKAGES.

Baker City Receives a Visit by Postoffice Inspectors.

Two special inspectors of the Postoffice Department are at Baker City investigating the mysterious disappearance of two registered money packages, which have been missing since last March. The packages were deposited in the postoffice in this city by the First National Bank, on March 17 last. One was addressed to Brown & Pearce, at Cornucopia, and the other was addressed to a Mr. Hun-aker, at Pine. Neither package reached its destination and the bank made inquiries concerning them at the office in Baker City.

At first it was claimed that the postmaster at Keating, the first way station on the route out from Baker City, had received them, but some time afterwards it was discovered that the Keating postmaster had reported the packages short when the mail reached there, and the matter had been overlooked by the Baker City office. The total amount of money in the two packages was $450.

LAND ORDERED WITHDRAWN.

The Oregon Office has received orders concerning Grant and Morrow.

A telegram has been received by the La Grande land office officials from Washington as follows:
"Withdrawal of land in Oregon, or any part thereof, townships 4, ranges 28 and 30; townships 5, ranges 28, 29 and 30; townships 6, ranges 27, 28, 29, 30; township 7, range 27; the north half of township 7, ranges 28, 29 and 30; the west half of township 8, range 27; all south and east."

J. H. FIMPLE,
Assistant Secretary.

The land lies in Grant and Morrow counties.

MAN FOR HARRISBURG.

Hon. R. A. Booth, accompanied by Hon. E. A. Klobdahl, have been at Harrisburg surveying a site on which to erect a large sawmill, work which will be begun in the early part of next year. Lines will also be run by which to increase the capacity of the Harrisburg water ditch, now the property of the Booth-Kelley Company. Mr. Booth said that the mill to be erected would be one of large capacity. Experts say that there is no better site for a sawmill in Oregon than at that point, and that more logs can be congregated here by floating than any known place in the world.

Four Days of Celebration.

The celebration to be held at Union is announced to be one of the most elaborate ever held in Eastern Oregon.
It will continue for four days, July 1, 2, 3 and 4, and will be under the management of the Eastern Oregon Veteran Association, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Union County Pioneer Association, and the City of Union.
United States Senator Mitchell has been invited to deliver an address here on the Fourth of July, which will be the big day of the meetings.

Star Company to Resume.

The Star Consolidation Mining Company is planning to resume operations in a few days on an extensive scale.
Superintendent V. H. Behne has just returned from the east, having been successful in raising additional funds for all necessary improvements. This property is located on Martin creek, in the Bohemia district. They have over 1000 feet of tunnel, and also a five-stamp mill on the ground. Many very rich specimens of ore have been found on this property.

Against Sunday Ball Games.

The antagonism to Sunday baseball has broken out afresh at Eugene, and a complaint has been made by a large number of citizens, who went before the County Court and secured a temporary injunction prohibiting baseball on Sunday. This action is only preliminary to a case that will come up at the June term of the Circuit Court, when it is the hope of the plaintiffs to have the restraining order made permanent.

June Salmon in the River.

The regular June run of fish has evidently arrived in the lower Columbia, and for the first time in several years salmon are really plentiful, although there is no big run. The fish are large and of fine quality, those ranging from 40 to 60 pounds each predominating.
At the best catches are being made in the lower harbor and around the mouth of the river, the indications are that a new run is entering the Columbia.

Latest Music for Chautauqua.

Music will be made an especial feature of the meeting of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Association this week. Mrs. Walter Reed, of Portland, who has been placed in charge of this department, will organize a large chorus from among the singers of Oregon City. Six of the very latest musical productions will be selected for presentation during the Chautauqua.

Receipts of State Land Office.

The receipts of the State Land Office for the month of May amounted to $56,647.74. This is the largest month's receipts in a period of 12 years, with the exception of one month in 1899, when holders of land certificates made payments of arrearages in order to secure a reduction of the rate of interest. Practically all the receipts this month came in during the first 21 days of the month.

President Given Vacation.

President H. Edwin McGrew, of Pacific College, has been granted a year's leave of absence by the board of management, and will spend next year in special work at Harvard University.
Professor C. E. Lewis, of Colorado State, has been elected as acting president of the college, which insures good management for next year.

Made Large Additions to Lodge.

A celebration by the Women of Woodcraft was held at Roseburg, a few days ago, the occasion being the close of a three months' campaign for new members. During that period the lodge increased from a membership of 60 to 175, and a large number of applicants are still on file.

Western Normal Commencement.

The Western Oregon State Normal School at Weston, is now busy with preparations for commencement. The week opens with the baccalaureate exercises Sunday, June 7.

APPEAL OF OREGON.

To Secretary of Interior From Land Commissioner.

General W. H. Odell, as attorney for the State of Oregon, has appealed to the Secretary of the Interior from the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office in the matter of the land selections upon mineral lease in Southeastern Oregon. The Commissioner had rejected the selections of land made by Mr. Odell for the state, assigning as a reason therefor that the state had already sold the lands which it seeks to use as base.
Another reason assigned for the rejection was that the mineral character of the land had not been proven.

The Commissioner also held that the proceedings for the adjudication of the mineral character of the land were irregular for the reason that they were commenced before application had been made for the selection of the indemnity lands.

Governor Chamberlain has written a letter to the Secretary of the Interior advising that official that General Odell has authority to represent the State of Oregon in this proceeding, and that it is his desire, as Chief Executive, that the selections be approved. The appeal made by the state shall not be rendered null and void.

Klamath Lake Railroad Running.

Trains are running regularly on the new Klamath Lake Railroad from Laird, on the Southern Pacific, to Pak-egama, the temporary terminus in Klamath county, and stages and freight wagons are able to make their trips in half the time they did when they went to Ashland and Ager. Mail still comes by stage from Ashland, but it is expected the government will soon arrange to have it brought via the new railroad, thus greatly improving the service. Particularly in winter, when mud and slush impeded travel, the Stanford Union, which is carrying the mail and gains the appreciation of people who hanker for letters and papers before they become ancient history.

Jackonville Box Factory.

The machinery of the big plant and box factory at Jacksonville has started up and everything, as far as tested, works like a charm. This is the largest and heaviest plant of the kind ever shipped here. The machinery is the latest and most approved. The plant will be completed in 25 to 40 hands. About 300,000 boxes will be required to ship the fruit product from Jacksonville this year. It is not known whether this company will supply the local trade.

Carnival at Salem.

Salem will not celebrate the Fourth of July in the usual way, but will hold a street carnival from June 25 to 28, 4 inclusive. All the plans have been perfected and a committee of active and enterprising citizens have the work of carrying them out so well in hand that the success of the carnival is assured. City Recorder N. J. Judah is general manager and has 11 assistants.

Honor for Oregon Boy.

Homier Martin, son of D. B. Martin, of Mount Pleasant, near Oregon City, who was recently graduated from Stanford University, has been elected to the chair of history in the county of the Palo Alto High School. Professor Martin has accepted the office for a year, and will begin his labors in the fall.

Carrier Lumber for Mills.

The Benton County Lumber Company has completed a flume for the transportation of lumber from its sawmill in the woods on Gray creek to Philomath on the line of the Corvallis & Eastern Railroad. The length of the flume is 6 1/2 miles, and its capacity is 25,000 feet of lumber per hour.

Will Can Sardines.

The Hemlock Sardine Packing Company has been organized at Astoria, and articles of incorporation filed.
The capital stock will be $50,000. The object of the company is to engage in the sardine canning business in As-toria.

Training Department Exercises.

The closing exercises of the training department of the Southern Oregon State Normal School, at Ashland, took place at the opera-house last week under the direction of the principal, Dr. Andrew D. Ward.

ONLY A FARMER'S
DAUGHTER.

By
MRS. FORRESTER.

CHAPTER IV.

Had it been possible for Winifred to guess Errol Hastings' real feelings she would have been forced to confess how much she had misjudged him. He was for the first time in his life unreasonably, in love, and his judgment was at war with his passion. Reflection did not help him, either.

"I have heard," he thought, "of men counting the world well lost for a woman they love. I never realized the feeling until now. Now I feel that I would give all I possess if I could raise her to my position, or sink to hers. She is only a bright, charming girl yet, but what a divine womanhood she will grow into when she begins to love. I cannot imagine any greater happiness than to look into the depths of those beautiful eyes, and read there, 'I love you,' or to take those little slender hands in mine, and hear the confession from her lips. But I could not trust myself to stay here and see her often; silence would be impossible. If it were not for our cursed Hastings pride I might tell her now, this very day, how I love her, and marry her if she would have me. But that cannot be.
Have all my ancestors kept their resolve in spite of everything until now, and shall I be the first one to break it by my weakness or cowardice? No! no! no!"

And so Errol made up his mind that he would see Winifred no more—he would not send her temptation, or expose her to disappointment, and when he passed the next day with Miss Champion he kept his face steadily averted from the Farm.
Little guessing how bitterly the woman he loved was commenting on his apparent neglect.

Several days passed, and the house was filled with guests. Everyone declared that Hastings' house was the most charming country house to stay at, and that Mr.
Hastings was the perfection of a host.
"It is quite lovely," she remarked.
"Miss Champion has an air of haughty superiority that offends me greatly. I cannot understand how it is that Mr.
Hastings seems to admire her so much."
At this moment the door opened, and Winifred entered. She drew back on seeing a stranger.

"Enter, my love," said Madame de Montolieu. "This is Winifred Errol," she added, addressing her visitor.
Lady Grace was fairly astonished at the sight of such a graceful, elegant creature.

"Come here, my dear," she said, gently, "and let me see if you are like your mother."
Lady Grace left the cottage that afternoon perfectly charmed with Winifred.
"I will see if something cannot be done to bring her into a position for which she is fitted," she thought, as she drove slowly back to the Court. "Ah, if I could only have had such a daughter! and poor childless Lady Grace sighed heavily."

CHAPTER V.

Winifred had just left the Farm on her way to the cottage, when she met and was accosted by Hawkins, the gamekeeper.
"I beg your pardon, miss, for making so free," he said, "but I thought you'd like to see some of the grand dogs up at the Court to-morrow." Winifred colored painfully, and Hawkins, remarking it, was terribly concerned.

"I am sure, miss, I meant no offense." I hope you won't take what I said as a liberty." The man looked anxiously at her.

"Indeed no," exclaimed Winifred, recovering herself. "I am much obliged to you for thinking of me, Hawkins."
"You see, miss," said the gamekeeper, eagerly, "it was in this way. I say to myself, why, the dogs at the Court tomorrow will be quite a sight; there's the ballroom done up in that beautiful way as 'ud be a show in itself, let alone all the county families coming from miles round. They tell me as how the master will make everybody promise to be there by half-past nine, so thinks I, if Miss Errol 'll just step round about ten o'clock I could let her into the little garden that the ballroom looks into, and she could see all the gay doings without being the wiser."

"Thank you, Hawkins," said Winifred, gently; "it was very good of you to think of me."
As Winifred went on her way she was terribly hurt at a proposal so injurious to her dignity; but it was impossible for her to feel any annoyance with the man, who had evidently spoken from sheer pleasure. But the idea of her, Winifred Errol, going to look in surreptitiously at a window to see the upper classes amusing themselves was a dreadful offense to her pride.

But it frequently happens that when we violently repudiate an idea at first we are all the more likely to come round to it afterward. And as Winifred walked along, insidious thoughts crept in to undermine the stronghold of her determination.

"After all," whispered Curiosity, "why should I feel so bitter at the thought of being only a spectator of this grandeur?
I shall never be able to participate in it, and why should I refuse an opportunity I have so often coveted, of seeing a really grand ball?"

Then she fell into a train of thought.
"If I had only the advantage of being Sir Howard's granddaughter, that Flora Champion has—I could let her meet Mr.
Hastings in society, and ridden and danced with him as she does, I think I could have made him love me; but as a farmer's daughter, what chance have I with an aristocratic beauty?"

Here words failed her, and she sat down on the bank in the lonely woods, and the tears streamed down her face.
Her intent was she on her misery that she did not hear footsteps approaching her, and when a man's voice sounded tenderly in her ears, saying, "Miss Errol, are you in trouble?" she started, blushing, to her feet.

"Mr. Hastings," she exclaimed, covered with confusion and crimson shame; but somehow the sight of his handsome face banished the memory of her sadness, and a bright smile came into her eyes.
"I am so glad to see a smile again," Errol said, with the tenderest inflexion of his voice, "I could not bear to see you in distress."
"When people have not very much to occupy their minds," Winifred answered, "they are rather subject to fits of depression, without adequate cause. I envy you almost now—you are so busied in en-

COLUMBIA SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

Effective 12:01 A. M., September 8, 1900.

Winifred's eyes, dropped beneath his gaze—it was so sad, yet so eager.

A voice was heard calling, "Hastings, Hastings!"

In an instant he had taken his gun, kissed it passionately, and was gone. Winifred turned away quickly, and went on her way to the cottage. She was trembling, confused, glad, surprised. She scarcely knew what her real feelings were. But as Hawkins' proposal returned to her mind, she determined to accept it.

When she arrived at the cottage, she found Lady Grace, as has been described. When she had accompanied her to the pony carriage, she returned to the little drawing room.

"Dear madame," said Winifred, kneeling beside her old friend, and half hiding her face. "I want you to take me to the Court to-morrow night."

"The Court!" exclaimed Madame de Morny. "What Court? The Court of the
