Last reports of the condition of Hiram Mellinger, who is in a Portland hospital for treatment of injuries received by falling from a railroad bridge on which he was at work, is that he is on the road to recovery. This is pleasing news to "Hi's" many friends here.

F. M. Huddleston has made quite an improvement in the appearance of his residence property, by treating it with good coat of paint. It not only greatly adds to the appearance of property to be kept in good repair—buildings well painted—but to value of property.

The Willamette river between Portland and Salem, having been cleared of all obstructions by the snag boat, and the channel deepened on the gravel bars by the dredge, and the rains having caused slight rise of water, the boats are now experiencing no trouble in navigation.

The Portland evening Telegram is becoming a first-class up-to-date paper, and may soon be considered one of the greater metropolitan daily newspapers of the Pacific Coast. Its columns are filled with the latest reliable news from all quarters of the globe. The editorials are well written and to the point.
 The market reports are full and complete; as is also the shipping and other news. The Saturday is one of the larger papers than those during the week and contain more reading and give the society news of Portland and surrounding towns and cities. One of the greatest papers ever issued on this coast, and which contains a great amount of information about Oregon, was the late Lewis and Clark Exposition issue of the Telegram. The paper contains much regarding this state, Portland and other cities in the state, that is of much interest and valuable information to home-seekers, that it would be difficult to gain otherwise. This edition was got out at considerable expense to the publishers. You would be doing your friends in the East a good turn to send them a copy of that issue. A large number of the papers were sent to Oregon headquarters of St. Louis fair for distribution.

The big brick building and large frame warehouse, built in 1882, at Salem, by the Salem, Oregon, Capital Flouring Mills Company, limited, a Scotch company, was totally destroyed by fire on Sunday night last. The structures were the most costly and valuable business property in Salem, having cost over $200,000. After operating the mill several years under difficulties, as result in a great extent, to strong opposition by the Salem Flouring Mills Co., the property was sold under the hammer, to those connected with the Salem and Portland flour mills at greatly reduced price. The mill was of 600 barre capacity a day, and was fitted with the best and most costly machinery of any mill on this coast. The purchasers took machinery out and placed it in their Salem and Albina mills, and the buildings have been unoccupied until several years past, having been occupied to store flax by Eugene Boese, who has been working for the establishment of a linen mill at Salem, and who lost 18,000 by the fire, 1,200 bushels of imported flax seed, and a large lot of flax fiber; the seed was valued at $3 per bushel; he had no insurance. Mill property was insured for only a small portion of its value.
 The property is on the river front in the northwest part of Salem, away from main thoroughfare and the fire got a good start, before the firemen could get a stream of water on it; there being no hydrants near, and water being shut off from mill race. All that was saved of the value of which was placed at $45,000 originally. There is little doubt that the fire was incendiary.
 Reporter of the Statesman says it was a grand sight to see the fire; and what was unusual, and fortunate there was no wind, which, and that the rains had caused the roof of nearby buildings to be filled with moisture, prevented a much greater conflagration. The reflection of the fire was seen at this place, 21 miles distant.

OBITUARY.
 ROBERT EVAN MILLER was born in Green county, New York, September 9th, 1834. In his youth, he, with his parents, moved to Clyman, Dodge county, Wis., where he grew to manhood.
 In March, 1880, he was united in holy wedlock with Georgiana Long, who survives him. In 1885, they came to Ashland, Oregon, where they resided one year. Then after a sojourn of several years at North Yamhill, and vicinity, they came to Dayton, the place of their continued residence.

For several years Mr. Miller had been in failing health. Lately he had been in a hospital in a hospital at Portland, and died of kidney ailment on the 13th inst., aged 70 years, 7 mo. and 2 days. His surviving companion and two children, Major and Vivian, and one brother and other relative survive him and mourn their loss.

His remains were shipped to Lake Mills, Wis., to be laid alongside of their infant son Harry, in compliance with his most earnest request. In his death his companion and children have lost a loving husband and a devoted father, and this community a respectable, upright citizen, and an obliging neighbor.

Funeral services were held by Rev. J. Bowersox of Portland, last Sunday, a. m., in the United Evangelical church of this city. A large audience was present.

Mrs. H. Kulper, who, with Mrs.
 Glass, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Webber attended the county W. C. T.
 U. convention at Newberg last week, also had a pleasant visit with her daughter, Mrs. Cahill, who resides at that place. Her grandson, Alfred Kulper, who has been stopping with his grandmother, accompanied her to Newberg, and remained with his aunt, Mrs. Cahill. The W. C.
 T. U. convention is reported as having been a very interesting and profitable session.

Harry Blanchard is now purser on the steamer Ruth. Wm. Smith late purser of the Ruth, has taken Blanchard's place on the steamer Potter, on the Portland-Astoria run.
 For several years Mr. Blanchard was purser on O. R. N. steamers upper Willamette; but of late years has been on the Portland and Astoria run. He has many friends along the upper Willamette, who will be pleased to give him a friendly grip.

THE "UNSAFE" ROOSEVELT.— Democratic editors and speakers are united in declaring that President Roosevelt is "an unsafe man." If that is so, he has at least been remarkably successful in his "unsafe" undertakings—in settling the coal strike, in enforcing the anti trust law, in acquiring the Panama canal strip, and in all delicate dealings with foreign nations.

A. C. Darr went to McMinnville Wednesday morning, and forgetting to leave the key of the hardware store, Ross Watson the clerk, could not open the store.
