FARM POULTRY

HOW TO OPERATE INCUBATOR
Machine Should Be Placed in Fairly Warm Room and Protected Against Outside Changes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
One difficulty in setting eggs as early in the spring as is necessary for early hatching, if the natural system of incubation is followed, is in finding broody hens at the proper time. If natural incubation be depended upon exclusively the poultry raiser must wait until the hens are ready to set. This is not true, however, if an incubator is available, for if the eggs are fertile they can be started at any time the operator desires.

The incubator should be operated in a fairly warm room, preferably a cellar, as a protection against outside temperature changes. Sudden changes in temperature in the room are to be avoided. The machine should be disinfected thoroughly before being used with a solution of reliable coal tar disinfectant.

Instead of using such a solution a small receptacle containing one-half ounce of permanganate of potash on which one-half ounce of formalin has been poured may be shut up in the incubator. The resulting gas will thoroughly disinfect the machine. After disinfecting the incubator should be run empty for several days to get it into good operating condition. After the eggs are in place the temperature should be held at 101 1/2 to 102 degrees Fahrenheit the first week, 102 to 103 degrees the second week, and 103 the third week.

The eggs usually are turned for the first time at the end of the second day, and twice daily through the eighth or ninth day. The eggs are cooled outside the hatching chamber once daily after the seventh and up to the nineteenth day. Moisture should be furnished in artificial incubation

Removing Hatch From incubator.

In the South, in high altitudes, and when the incubator room is dry. This may be done by sprinkling the eggs with warm water or by placing a wet sponge or pan of water under the egg trays.

During the hatching period carefully fill the lamp and trim the wick each day. It is best to trim the wick by scraping off the burnt portion rather than by cutting the wick. The lamp should not be filled entirely. After the lamp is filled it should be closely observed for a time to make sure that the flame does not get too high.

POULTRY NOTES
After all, it is the little things that count for the most in poultry raising.

Early hatching means chicks less troubled with lice and disease.

Experience teaches us that great care is needed to prevent poultry parasites and poultry diseases.

Early hatching means chicks that are past the danger point before hot weather comes.

The fresher the eggs are when used for hatching, the better, and eggs over 15 days should be discarded.

Comfort for the hens in winter is very essential if they are to lay or get ready to lay in the spring.

Lice are a menace in winter as well as in warm weather, and the only protection for the flock is the dust bath.

Hens of the American and Asiatic breeds frequently become too fat to lay, especially after they are two years old.
