An exceptionally large audience was present in the Methodist church here last Sunday evening to listen to a prepared program consisting of speeches from some of the Methodist minute men and some special singing. The Rural Church was the theme spoken of by B. A. Felton who handled the subject well and was attentively listened to. The special song by George Thompson was well received and appreciated. J. D. Landess spoke from the farmers standpoint and caused us to believe some farmers had strong minds as well as strong backs. Rev. Marcy then delivered an excellent sermon on "Gods message as revealed by nature." The manner in which he handled this theme ever surpassed his former achievements in his sermons. The social half hour under the management of the other mens wives added to the evening's pleasure.
