VICTORIOUS FORCES PURSUE CARRANZA

3500 Federal Troops Captured; President is Fugitive in Mountains.

Vera Cruz.—Mexican revolutionary forces commanded by General Pedro Sanchez and Higinio Aguilar, are pursuing President Carranza and the troops which fled with him from the battlefield near San Marco, on Friday. Government troops numbering 3500 were captured by the revolutionists, following the escape of Carranza.

Mexico City.—Venustiano Carranza, defeated in battle Friday in the vicinity of Rinconada, Vera Cruz, is fleeing into the mountains of Vera Cruz by way of Perote.

Revolutionary forces captured 2000 Carranza soldiers, 24 railroad trains, four pieces of artillery, about 200 machine guns, numerous automobiles, one airplane and large quantities of ammunition and gold and silver bars.

In his official report of the battle, General Guadalupe Sanchez, commander of revolutionary forces, which for a week have been opposing General Carranza's efforts to fight his way to the Gulf coast, said the fighting began at 10 o'clock Friday morning. After three hours' heavy battling Carranza and the leading members of his party fled from the trains in automobiles, escorted by about 500 cavalry. A revolutionary cavalry column was sent in pursuit.

Human Envy.

"They say that if you save a man from drowning he is likely to turn on you and become your enemy." "It's the same way with almost any little kindness," commented Mr. Growcher. "A lot of people are so envious they can't imagine anybody would do them a favor except for the sake of showing off."

RUNS FOR PRESIDENT FROM PRISON CELL

The Socialists in convention at New York have just given to American Political History an unusual event. It is the act of nominating a presidential candidate who is confined within the prison walls of the nation he is to lead—Eugene Debs, Socialist leader, is in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., serving a ten-year term for disloyal utterances during the war period. Despite this the Socialists have selected him again as their candidate and he will conduct his campaign from the loneliness of his prison cell.

MADE BIG "BAG" OF GERMANS

Raid of Doughboys Within Hun Lines One of the Most Brilliant Exploits of the War.

It was the most audacious night hike of the great war. The infantry brigade of the Second division, American army, was making it. Platoon after platoon of rain-soaked, mud-painted Yank doughboys, in columns of two, marched silently straight through the strong German line, a distance of four miles—like a huge khaki-colored monster ready to spring at the throat of the German defense. They did.

Joseph Mills Hanson, former American field artillery officer, gives this graphic description in the Home Sector, the ex-soldiers' weekly conducted by the former editorial council of the Stars and Stripes, of how the midnight surprise experts of the A. E. F. floundered and struggled up the hill toward La Tullerle farm on the night of November 4, 1918, where German officers were living close to Beaumont, thinking that the nearest American soldier was eight kilometers away.

He says: "Silently the Americans, panting from their long march, formed and closed in upon the farm, as old Mosby's men used to close in on some devoted federal outposts in Virginia, or as George Rogers Clark's Brit frontiersmen closed in on the grimace at Vincennes.

"There was a pause as they crept up close. Then a sudden rush, a gust of cries, and through the doors and windows they burst in. Knots of German officers, bending over maps and dispatches, looked up in horror into the muzzles of rifles and the stern, white faces behind them; men curled up in blankets in the corners staggered to their feet and held their hands aloft. This sort of warfare had a tang of the new-world daring in it that the disciples of Von Clausewitz and Ludendorff could not comprehend. It set German logic at naught, but they were obliged to yield to it. La Tullerle farm, a German headquarters, four miles from the front, had been throttled by a hand reaching out of the darkness. Many of his imperial majesty's trusty officers and men had been made prisoners in a flash, though unfortunately two generals made their escape by darting out of back doors."

How She Knew.

A Hoosier school teacher received a very indignant note from one of her patrons, demanding that she stop some boys from annoying her tiny daughter on the way home from school. Immediately after she had read the note the teacher began an investigation. She asked the little girl, "How do these boys annoy you?"

"Why, they talk awful about me and to me," explained the youngster. "They cuss me and say terrible things."

"But how do you know they are cursing and the things are really terrible?" persisted Miss Teacher.

Even she was stunned by the wee child's answer. "Because," she reasoned, "they are just like the things my papa says when he gets mad at my mamma."

TIME FOR SOBER THOUGHT

In the humble judgment of this scribe right now is the time for some deep and sober thinking on the part of all the people, and yet all evidences point to the conclusion that they are doing less of that kind of thinking than they ever did. Otherwise they would not continue on this spendthrift debauch.

Burning up money like a Coal Oil Johnny is always a boomerang that flies back and knocks the burner silly.

It has never failed yet and it is not going to fail this time. This inflation is abnormal, and anything abnormal adjusts itself sooner or later. Things inflatable are always filled with gas or wind, and that is just exactly what this present balloon is inflated with—bank credit and hot air. The puncture is due to arrive inside of a year, and the sensible man and woman will get ready for it now while the fish and fools who have no brains or judgment will go right on hitting the high places up to the last minute, and then when the crash comes be out of both job and money. The drunk is not confined to the working classes altho they are doing their full part, but infects every walk and class. Profiteering and dishonest dealing also infects all classes, and the dispatches are full every day of greed, graft dishonorable actions and dishonest commercialism.

There was never anything like it in the history of the world before, and if old Diogenes were out with his lantern looking for honest men now he would have a similar job to that of thousands of government sleuths out searching for concealed booze.

Memorial Cottages.

The number of lives the war took has not been adequately reckoned. The number of families it broke up is likewise uncounted. Yet right after it we have a greater shortage of housing than ever. There is interest in this connection in a letter to the London Spectator, evidently from one of the sufferers of the war. It contains a suggestion which may or may not be new in this country.

The writer calls attention to an article in the London Chronicle telling of the building of 120 cottages for ex-service men in Westmoreland, called war memorial cottages. It is not clear to him whether these were built by public or private funds, but never mind that. "Would it be possible," he asks, "for individuals to do likewise? What more practical memorial of any fallen hero than to provide a home for a disabled soldier or sailor or for his widow and children?" "Though our war widows and orphans and our disabled soldiers are few compared with the losses of Great Britain, we have need enough for more houses, and the memorial cottage idea is not a bad one.

THE WORST SPEEDER

Old Father Time breaks all the speed records and defies all the speed cops.

Years ago somebody wrote him: "Backward, turn backward, Oh, Time, in thy flight, And make me a child again, just for tonight."

But it is a safe bet he didn't do it.

We do not notice what a speed burner that old guy with the scythe and Bolshevik whiskers is until we begin to feel rheumatic pains chasing up and down our frame and discover the silver threads among the gold. In youth we run the old man a merry race and give him the laugh, and then he steps on the accelerator and throws everything into high, and next thing we know we are full of grouch and indigestion, and the doctor tells us to cut out coffee and red meat and go on a diet of boiled hay and predigested chips. Then our eyes go on the blink and we can't read what the senators and congressmen are calling each other until we cough up $20 to an oculist, while microbes raise large families in our teeth in spite of the dentist who plugs them with zinc.

The speed burner proclivities of Father Time are the worse bumps the human race gets up against, and ultimately he runs every one of us down finally and fatally.

Londonderry Ruled by Mob.

Londonderry, Ireland.—Rioting Sunday night between Nationalist and Unionist mobs was even fiercer than Saturday's fighting. Groups of men and women in the Unionist quarters of Fountain street and similar groups in the Sinn Fein quarters of Bridge street followed an exchange of party cries with stone and bottle throwing. Then more than 100 revolver shots followed. In addition to the killing of a former soldier named Doherty, three others were wounded. When the hostilities broke out the police were withdrawn and for a few hours mob law was supreme.

Germany to Pay $30,000,000,000.

Paris.—It is understood in official circles here that the Anglo-French conference at Hythe, which closed Sunday, decided that the sum total which Germany should pay as reparation would be fixed at 120,000,000,000 marks gold (approximately $30,000,000,000).

Washington Democrats Meet.

Spokane, Wash.—The largest delegated convention ever seen in the state of Washington was held in the state Army here Monday when the democrats of this state went into session for their state convention.

HELPS HER HUSBAND SEEK PRESIDENCY

She lived in Washington when her husband was a member of Congress, now she is helping her husband in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination and election—which, of course, would send her back to the capital—the first lady of the land. She is Mrs. Frank A. Lowden, wife of the governor of Illinois—and popular in Washington society.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL ASKED BY RAILROADS

Officials Request Interstate Commerce Commission to Handle Crisis.

Washington.—Railroads of the country, through the association of railway executives and the American Railway association, have asked the interstate commerce commission to exercise its emergency powers to relieve the car shortage and freight congestion.

In a statement filed with the commission, the railroad officials declared the situation was such as to "warrant and to require emergency action similar to that taken when this country entered the war."

The railroads' formal petition asks the commission to assume its emergency power under the Esch-Cummins bill, which gives it power to supervise distribution of cars and motive equipment, curtail passenger service and issue priority orders.

Appeals of the railroads for help have brought to light new dangers. Developments showed that a decidedly menacing condition confronted the commercial world through the tie-up of the financial resources of business houses. Delay in movement of products was declared to have brought many plants face to face with an immediate shutdown.

Interest rates at this time are so high as to make it out of the question for most of the manufacturing concerns that borrow to finance further production, according to treasury officials. It was said the congestion was costing the nation "millions a day" through under-production.

Wholesalers and retailers alike are suffering through inability to obtain delivery of good, railroad men said.

PEACE RESOLUTION ADOPTED IN SENATE

Washington.—The senate adopted, 43 to 38, the republican resolution declaring the state of war with Germany and Austria-Hungary at an end.

The measure was in the form of a substitute for the peace resolution recently adopted by the house, which dealt with Germany alone. The two proposals will be adjusted in conference.

Leaders of the Knox substitute and the party alignment were about that anticipated. Three democrats—Reed of Missouri, Shields of Tennessee and Walsh of Massachusetts—joined the republicans in supporting the resolution. Two republicans—McCumber of North Dakota, who was paired, and Nelson of Minnesota—lined up with the democratic opposition.

Predictions by leaders on both sides that the treaty of Versailles would remain in its present unratified position indefinitely were made.

The number of votes mustered by backers of the resolution in the senate would not be sufficient to pass it over a veto.

FAT BEANS AND REDUCE LIVING COSTS

Potatoes are high, almost out of sight, price is going up, everything is exceedingly high in price except beans. A large consumption of beans on the part of the public will materially lower the cost of living and they are about the only important food product that is reasonable in price at this time, in fact, materially lower than prices which prevailed two years ago. Beans are sold closer to the cost of production than any other staple food and are therefore the most economical edible in daily use.

Domestic beans are an excellent substitute for potatoes and meat, and with the warm weather coming on, being rich in protein, the importance of their food value and low cost should be more fully realized by the average housewife.

This is especially important when the housewife is having great difficulty in trying to keep the grocery and meat bill within the limits of the family income. Another advantage that beans have over the ordinary edible is that they can be purchased in quantity and put away in the pantry without any possibility of deterioration. Every housewife should avail herself of the present low price and put in a supply against a rise in price later in the season.

Beans are healthful, nutritious and of high food value. A comparison of the nutritive value of other staple foods shows one pound of beans at the average price of 10 cents to the following: 1 pound beans at 10 cents 10cents 5.1 pounds potatoes at 9 cents per lb 46 cents 1.6 pounds sirloin steak at 40 cents per lb. 64 cents. 20.8 eggs at 50 cents a dozen 87 cents 5 pints of milk at 8 cents a pint. 40 cents 1 pound ice at 18 cents.

The average housewife thinks of beans only as something to be boiled or baked. This is a wrong idea. Beans may be prepared in many different and palatable ways. They are also one of the few foods that may be cooked, set aside and afterwards reheated and served.

In fact, the second cooking improves them wonderfully.

One of the most economical ways to prepare beans is to cook them at the same time the Saturday or Sunday roast is being prepared, or when baking bread, cake or pastry, making the same heat do double duty. Beans do not necessarily have to be eaten the same day, but can be put away in the ice chest or cooler and served either as the main dish or with the "left overs" from the preceding day. Those housewives who have a fireless cooker will find it a very simple and convenient matter to prepare beans with practically no trouble or fuss. The high cost of potatoes and other starchy foods, so necessary to human consumption, can be met by substituting more domestic beans, thereby keeping the grocery bill within the limit allowed by the family income. Eat Beans.

WAR TAX ON TOILET PREPARATIONS CHANGED

Under a recent ruling by the Treasury Department the tax on toilet preparations is based on the selling price of each article and not upon the total price of a number of articles. If a person buys five packages of 5 cent cough drops, a 1 cent stamp must be attached to each package. If a person purchases a tube of tooth paste for 35 cents and a bottle of perfume for 65 cents, a 2 cent stamp must be placed on the tooth paste and 3 cents on the perfume,—a total of 5 cents. In other words, the tax is on each article and not on the combined purchase price. This revokes a ruling previously made by the Department.

When a man intimates he is going to tell you something for your own good that is a sign you are going to hear something disagreeable.

HOW CAN WE PLOW IF WE CAN'T HARNESS.
