HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 5 "THE MERRY-GO-ROUND"

A whirl on this Merry-Go-Round won't make you dizzy, and your disposition will be perfectly safe, although you won't be able to do it with the w. k. rolling-off-a-log ease.

Horizontal. Vertical.

Get Acquainted

Don't be afraid to get acquainted with your neighbor publisher. He isn't a half bad sort of scout, when you come to know him. You may think he is trying to put you out of business, but he isn't. He's just trying to make an honest living for himself and his family the same as you are. If you get acquainted and become friends, it will be a good thing for both of you, and for the rest of your neighbors.—Michigan Bulletin.

Did he die a natural death?
Yes, he was run over in the street.

Pipe-Organ Evolution of Twenty Centuries

More than 20 centuries ago a barber made the discovery that in moving his mirror in the pursuit of his duties he was forced through the tubes of the crude contrivance, causing a sweet musical sound. So struck was he by this peculiarity that he set about making an instrument which was the foundation of the modern organ. After several experiments he made a water flute, in which air was forced by bellows through an inverted cone which led to flutes controlled by a keyboard, the pressure being kept uniform by water. After a thousand years a rival instrument made its appearance. This was of a similar pattern, but, instead of water, weights regulated the pressure. In 851 an organ was erected at Winchester, England. It had 28 bellows and ten pipes to each key. Two men who sat at the keyboard "blew and sweated enormously." Later, a firm of organ makers in Germany succeeded in erecting the first really big instrument. The primary stops did not differ very much from those of today, although various novelties were introduced. Among the innovations were the nightingale and cuckoo stops, while others represented cock-crowing and goat-bleating. Though these novelties have now fallen into disuse, an organ with one of these nightingale stops is still to be seen in Rome. It was not until the Nineteenth century that the problem of the regulation of air pressures was solved by the introduction of the hydraulic blower.

Dime Novels Brought Him Fame and Fortune

Erasmus F. Beadle, the originator of the dime novel, which type of publication occupies a chapter in Edmund Lester Pearson's "Books in Black or Red," published the first dime novel, according to Mr. Pearson, in 1860. It was a small pamphlet with orange pink covers. The firm of Beadle & Adams continued their business until 1887.

Beadle, a descendant of American pioneers and soldiers, was born in Otsego county, New York, in 1821, says the Detroit News. Working as a boy for a miller, he found a need one day for letters of some sort to label the bags of grain. He cut the letters from blocks of hardwood, as Gutenberg's predecessors had done. This expedient interested him in printing; he learned the art, and by 1852 had a printing shop of his own. In 1838 he moved to New York to test an idea which had come to him; the publication of books to be sold at 10 cents—song books, joke books and finally novels. The first of these books were mainly historical novels of the American Revolution, or early pioneer life. About nine-tenths of the settings, then and later, were American.

Little Known About Saint

Very little is known regarding Saint Bartholomew, one of the disciples of Christ. He is supposed to be also the Nathaniel mentioned in the first chapter in the gospel of St. John. He is believed to have traveled on a mission into Armenia, and to have there suffered martyrdom by being flayed alive. Himself one of the gentlest of men, he was destined by the irony of fate to give his name to one of the most frightful massacres recorded in history, and to the London Saturnalia known as St. Bartholomew's fair. This famous festival was celebrated annually in Smithfield, where many Huguenot refugees located, on August 24, for over 750 years, and was finally abolished in 1865, by which time it had degenerated into an orgy of drunkenness and debauchery.

Mythical Snake Stories

There is a snake of the South Atlantic states, foolishly feared by the negroes, who say it will put its tail in its mouth, stiffen its body and roll along like a hoop, aiming to let go of its sting-tipped tail and dart it into the first person it meets. Similar stories are told of a closely related species, the wampum snake, common in swampy ground in the South, and both are called horn snakes. In fact, both species are perfectly harmless and spend most of their time beneath the ground, burrowing deeply into the soil. The former is blue black above, marked with three red lines, and flesh-colored below, with black spots; while the latter is uniform bluish-black above and banded with red on the abdomen.

"Tragedy" and "Comedy"

At first tragedies were brought on the stage as means of reminding men of the things which happen to them, and that it is according to nature for things to happen so, and that, if thou art delighted with what is shown on the stage, thou shouldst not be troubled with that which takes place on the larger stage. After tragedy, the old comedy was introduced which had a magisterial freedom of speech, and by its very plainness of speaking was useful in reminding men to beware of insolence.—Marcus Aurelius.

Few Druses in America

Druses are people of mixed origin who inhabit a district in Syria. Their religion is fundamentally Mohammedan, but their faith mingles the teaching of the Mosaic law, the Christian Gospels and the Sufi allegories with those of the Koran. They believe in the transmigration of souls with constant advancement and purification. Their teachings enjoin abstinence from wine and tobacco, from profanity and obscenity, and polygamy is unknown among them. There are a few hundred of this sect in the United States.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON.

Eugene, Jan. 8 —(Special)—Eight sons and daughters of Oregon newspapermen and a daughter of a Washington editor are enrolled in the University of Oregon school of journalism, pursuing the work of the four years' course to qualify themselves for the profession of their fathers.

Barbara Blythe, the daughter of E. N. Blythe, co-publisher of the Vancouver, Wn. Daily Columbian, is a freshman in the school of journalism. Mr. Blythe was for years a Portland newspaperman, and before going to Vancouver, he was superintendent of the Oregon Journal copy desk. Barbara was for a short time on the staff of the Oregon Journal acquainting herself with the atmosphere of city journalism.

Blanche E. Hurd, the daughter of G. Lansing Hurd, manager of the Corvallis Gazette-Times, is enrolled as a sophomore in the school of journalism.

C. Genevieve Morgan, daughter, and Wayne Morgan, son of W. D. Morgan, publisher of the Harrisburg Bulletin, are journalism students. Miss Morgan is a sophomore. Her brother has freshman standing, entering in the fall.

Sophomore standing in the school of journalism is held by Marian Morton, daughter of S. C. Morton, publisher of the St. Helena mist; Faith Jean Kimball, daughter of Z. C. Kimball, publisher of the Independence Enterprise, and Parker Branin, son of Charles E. Branin, veteran Associated Press operator, Portland.

Margaret Vincent, daughter of S. B. Vincent, for many years the Portland correspondent of the Associated Press, and Edward P. Koen, son of E. A. Koen, publisher of the Oregon City Banner-Courier, are juniors in the school of journalism.

A few grains of salt added to cocoa brings out the flavor.

Cranberries may be candied cheaply by boiling them carefully in a thick syrup. They can be used in place of the more expensive candied cherries for decoration of cakes.

Marshmallow flowers for cake decoration are made by clipping marshmallows into long pieces and arranging them to represent petals. A bit of candied cherry or gumdrop may be used for the centers.

Candied cherries make pretty candle holders for birthday cakes, suggests the household science department.

If the skin of cranberries is disliked, the berries may be put through the meat grinder before cooking.

The Silhouette's the Thing

If you would be well dressed, plan your costumes along the line of the becoming silhouette. No dress, however well made will be a success if the silhouette is not "vogueish." Lines as well as colors express your temperament. To those who are no longer slender the present interest in flares should be tempered by a careful consideration of the flares shortening effect.

The small or average-sized woman has more latitude for selection than the stout or thin woman. Those in the stout class: Should avoid all flared curves, shun the round neck line and all circular C-cuts in fabrics; avoid large heads, and keep to unbroken lines.

That the Scots are a thrifty race, of course, needs no arguing. The father of the family, about to set off on a business tour of some weeks, was giving his parting exhortations.

"Good-by, my dear," said he to his wife, at last, "and dinna forget to mak' wee Sandy tak' off his glasses when he's no lookin' at anything."

If your competitor talks about you put him on the payroll; it doesn't matter what he says just so he talks.

After God finished the rattlesnake, the toad and the vampire, he had some awful stuff left with which he made a traitor. A traitor is a two-legged animal with a cork screw soul and a water sogged brain, and a combination backbone of jelly and glue. He carries, where other people have their heart, a tumult of rotten principals. When the traitor comes down the street men turn their backs, and the angels of heaven take refuge behind the golden harp and the devil looks the gates of hell.
