

Dad's Old Breeches

When dad has worn his trousers out,
They pass to brother John.
Then mother trims them round about,
And William puts them on.
When William's legs too long have grown,
The trousers fail to hide 'em,
So Walter claims them for his own
And stows himself inside 'em.
Next Sam's fat legs they close invest,
And, when they wont stretch tighter,
They're turned and shortened,
washed and pressed
And fixed on me—the writer.
Ma works them into rugs and caps
When I have burst the stitches.
At doomsday we shall see (perhaps)
The last of dad's old breeches.

To Slumber—or Not to Slumber

Mrs. A. B. Litscher entertained the members of Phi Beta Mu sorority of Linfield College at a slumber party last Thursday night.
Nineteen girls with Mrs. Andrew Wakeman journeyed to Dayton on the 10 o'clock stage from McMinnville, and with blankets and eats made their way to the Litscher home. After a general jollification slumber was sought at the wee sma' hours. An early breakfast and stunts under the big walnut tree completed the party and all reached the Linfield Chapel on time at eight thirty Friday morning.

Pacific Coast Rescue and Protective Society

The Pacific Coast Rescue and Protective Society requests its friends to remember the girls of the Louise Home and the babies of the Albartina Kerr Nursery Home when canning fruit and vegetables this year.

The Louise Home and Albartina Kerr Nursery cared for last year respectively two hundred four unfortunate girls and two hundred thirteen homeless babies and youngsters. The babies and girls were committed from twenty eight counties of the state.

Please send a note stating how many jars you will fill so that the freight may be prepaid and arrangements made to pay the freight for the return of the fruit. The notes should be addressed to the general office, 195 Burnside Street Portland, Oregon.
W. G. Mac Laren, General Sup't.

"The labor movement in this country is so far in advance of that in any other country as to make comparison impossible," says the Chicago North Shore Bulletin. "In European countries, including Great Britain, labor organizations and labor leaders are still pursuing antiquated methods that are comparable to the attempt of a man to lift himself by his boot straps. In this country instead of fighting capital they are beginning to recognize its power and to use it as an implement for their own improvement."

Hessler-Hamlin

Victor P. Hessler of Dayton and Miss Ava B. Hamlin of Corvallis were married near Corvallis in an outdoor ceremony Monday. Mr. Ira Cave and Miss Verna Miller, both of Corvallis, were the best man and bridesmaid. Rev. C. W. Reynolds of the Christian Church performed the ceremony in the presence of a few friends of the bride and groom.

The bride has been a student of O. A. C., receiving a Bachelor of Science degree on her wedding day. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hamlin. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hessler of this vicinity.

Portland, Ore., June 10th—(Special)—The week of June 29th to July 4th has been set aside as the second annual "STOP FOREST FIRES" campaign to be observed throughout Oregon, it was announced today by officials of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce. The campaign, initiated by the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce last year and taken up by the state body, will also be observed this year in Washington, Idaho and California.

Local chambers of commerce and commercial clubs throughout Oregon have been requested to take charge of the "STOP FOREST FIRES" campaign in their respective districts. The purpose of the movement is to instill in the mind of the individual a sense of his personal responsibility in the protection of our forest wealth.

Services in the Evangelical Churches next Sunday will be as follows: At 11 A. M. Rev. R. B. Culver, of Portland will preach at Unionvale at 8:00 p. m. Rev. G. L. Lovel of Salem, will preach at Lafayette. There will be communion at all three services.

"Why does a man stop and listen when the fire bell rings, and pay no attention when the church bells ring?" "Duties dodged destroy devotion."

Mrs. John Milton of McMinnville, president of the Ladies Episcopal Guild for a number of years, is visiting Mrs. Rob't L. Smith of the Unity neighborhood who was secretary of the Guild until her change of residence to Dayton.

Rev. Wilson preached in the Apostolic church here Sunday.

Itinerary

Sarah Barnes Goodrich Smith

Sarah Barnes Goodrich Smith was born in Pennsylvania, September 14, 1836, daughter of John and Amanda Barnes and passed from this life June 3, 1925, at the age of 88 years, 8 months and 19 days and at the time of her decease was living on the farm where she had made her home for 71 years. While a young girl she went with her parents to Iowa where they lived four years, at the end of which time they joined a company of people who crossed the plains and in 1853 arrived in Yamhill County, Oregon, to make their home. In March 1854 she was married to William C. Goodrich who preceded her to the better land in 1894, March 16. To this union was born four sons, one of whom passed away two years ago, S. R. (Dick) Goodrich. She leaves to mourn her, three sons John, Sanford, and Wallace, thirteen grandchildren, eleven great grandchildren, and three sisters, Mrs. Jemima Smith and Flora Frisbee of McMinnville and Mrs. Amanda Dee of Dayton. In 1900 she married Judson Smith who passed away about ten years ago. A great company of more distant relatives, friends and neighbors also sympathize with them in their sorrow and remember the deceased for her many kindly virtues.

Peace has come to thee, dear one,
Poor weary, pain racked soul,
You've reached your heavenly mansion,
You've reached your heavenly goal.
You've earned a splendid mansion
By good deeds done on earth,
There never was a truer friend,
Or of more sterling worth;

We'll miss your smile of welcome,
We'll miss your word of cheer,
We'll love you just the same though,
Whether you're there or here.

A long and weary road you had
Through life as a pioneer,
But peace and rest both now will come
With those you hold so dear.

And though we're sad to lose you,
And miss your cheery smile,
We know that God does all things well,
Your life has been "worth while".

Gard of Thanks

We wish to thank the many friends for their kind assistance during the illness and death of our beloved Mother, Mrs. Sarah Goodrich Smith; and also to thank them for the many beautiful floral offerings.

The Family.

Gradually there is spreading throughout the country an appreciation of the need for automatic sprinkler protection in schoolhouses, and it is no surprise to learn that the Great Southwest is not waiting for the East to take the initiative in thus safeguarding the lives of the rising generation.

The Peninsula Needle Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. E. J. Hartman yesterday.

Youthful Forest Protector Wins High Praises

Eleven year old Trevor Kavanaugh of Dryden, Washington, saddled his horse at 11:00 p. m., on the night of May 2, and rode from the T. & S. Ranch to the nearest telephone, a mile and a half away, to report a forest fire to the forest ranger. The next day he carried water and lunches for the fire fighters, and helped in the suppression of the fire.

A simple act of good citizenship! And yet a striking contrast to the thoughtless thousands who leave smoldering camp fires or toss matches and cigarette stubs into the brush and twigs along a forest roadside.

According to Forest Ranger Chartland, to whom the fire was reported, it threatened valuable yellow pine timber and might have done serious damage but for the prompt action of young Kavanaugh.

Appreciating the value of the service rendered, Chartland forwarded a report of the incident, which has just come to the attention of Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine. The Secretary has written Trevor a personal letter of commendation. After recounting the incidents which make this boy's action so commendable, the Secretary's letter concludes:

"I am writing this letter to thank you on behalf of the Department of Agriculture, which is charged by Uncle Sam with taking care of our Forests. By discovering this fire and giving notice of it so that it could be put out promptly you have rendered a very real public service and you are entitled to the thanks of the Government. I have not the opportunity to shake hands with you and tell you this personally, so I am doing the next best thing, letting you know my appreciation by letter."

The Oregon Osteopathic Association is to meet this year in annual convention with the Washington Osteopathic Association, at Longview, Washington, June 10-11-12-13. There will be a four day session with speakers of National prominence on the program. The program is as follows:

- Dr. E. S. Comstock—Chicago College of Osteopathy—Acute Infectious Diseases.
- Dr. C. H. Downing—San Francisco—Osteopathic Technique
- Dr. Leon E. Page—Kirksville College of Osteopathy Principles of Osteopathy—Applied Anatomy
- Dr. John H. Styles, Jr.—Kansas City College of Osteopathy—Treatment of Spinal Curvature.
- Dr. Ernest G. Basher—Los Angeles College of Osteopathy—Obstetrics and Gynecology for the General Practitioner.
- Dr. T. A. McKay—Tacoma, Washington—Physiology of the Spine.
- Dr. A. B. Ford—Seattle, Washington—Osteopathy in Heart Disease.

Mesdames E. Demary and F. W. Hole were delegates of this lodge to the Grand Chapter of O. E. S. in Portland Tuesday.

Veteran Dean Is Honored For 30 Years of Service

In recognition of 30 years of service to Oregon agriculture on the staff of the state college, Dean A. B. Cordley of the school of agriculture was deluged with words of praise and affectionate appreciation by more than 100 of his staff, associates, and friends at a banquet in the new Benton hotel Thursday night in celebration of his initiation into Alpha Zeta, national agricultural fraternity. Dean Cordley is the first man to be elected to Alpha Zeta as an honorary member from Oregon and one of the few ever elected in the United States.

The work that Dean Cordley has done alone for the agricultural interests of Oregon is worth more than the entire cost of O. A. C. since its inception, declared W. K. Newell of Eugene, former state food and dairy commissioner. He cited the work of Dean Cordley in discovering lime sulfur spray, said to have saved millions of dollars in Oregon alone.

A beautiful silver service was presented to the dean by his staff in agriculture at the close of the banquet. Telegrams from former students and associates from all over the country were read, expressing the widespread appreciation of the lasting results of his long service as teacher, scientist, and leader in scientific and practical agriculture.

Ten years after entering the course in agriculture at Michigan Agricultural college in 1885, Dean Cordley came to O. A. C., where for 30 years he has been a leader in scientific work and the development of the strong school of agriculture at the college, now recognized throughout the country for the high quality of its courses and graduates. He holds the degree of doctor of science from his alma mater in recognition of his services to agriculture and the nationally known value of his scientific contributions, particularly the the development of lime sulfur sprays, and control of anthracnose and codling moth in the northwest.

Baccalaureate Service

The Baccalaureate Services for Class '25 D. H. S., were held in the Evangelical Church with Rev. F. M. Fisher speaker of the evening. The house was prettily decorated with the class colors, green and white. Green and white crepe paper was hung around the electric lights giving them a chandelier effect. The class motto, "Today decides tomorrow" was on the wall behind the pulpit, in letters of white crepe paper. The services were delivered in a very pleasing and effective manner.

Those graduating are; Bernice Finicum, Neva Gabser, Wilfred Hibbert, Merle Riechstein, Madelene Roszner, Grace Teagus, and Harold Litscher. This office extends heartiest congratulations and best wishes for their success in life.

Mrs. Shippy Gives Recital

Mrs. J. W. Shippy presented her piano class in a recital at the Evangelical Church last Friday evening. There are some very promising young musicians in the class and Mrs. Shippy's to be congratulated upon her work with them. They played to a full and appreciative house and everyone feels well repaid for the time spent there.

Have a Home if Possible

No family can ever feel for a rented house that deep-seated affection which is naturally developed for a home they own. There is little incentive to adorn and beautify the house and the yard which belong to another. But when the place that shelters the family group is their own every added beauty, every tree and shrub and flower planted, adds new charm to life and strengthens the ties that bind the happy hearts.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Business Text

"The kind of booster we like," says the Tifton Gazette, "is the one who spends his money at home. Boosting by word of mouth is fine, and it helps, but boosting business by trading at home is even better. Be selfish enough to spend your money where you will have a chance to get it back."

Civic Pride Contagious

Did you ever notice how contagious is the spirit of civic pride, which causes our citizens to keep neat, clean, attractive yards? An exchange asks. Other citizens up and down the street catch the spirit and soon the whole street presents an attractive appearance.

Concerning Vacations

Why are vacations, anyway? Why do we break into the ordered routine of a perfectly cheerful and useful life, and go wandering off into the various ends of the world in search of whatever it is we are looking for? What makes us shift restlessly on our office chairs when the balmy breezes of early summer begin to ruffle the papers on our desks? And why did we catch ourselves wandering absentmindedly in to a sporting-goods store, when wife asked us to bring home two pounds of steak last night?

Change is a wonderful thing. It's natural to develop a craving for surroundings and life we miss in our daily routine. The yearning of the lonely prospector for a good blowout in the biggest place nearby is no stronger than the desire of the city dweller for a spell of "back to nature". Both these feelings are perfectly normal, and on the way we go about fulfilling these wants of ours for a change depends the success or failure of our vacation.

Change is the first essential to a vacation. For a real rest, we must leave our usual haunts and occupations and find new ones. Rest is not an entire lack of occupations but indulging in pursuits which are strange to us in our ordinary life. The lonesome worker in the open wants gaiety and social diversion; the worried office worker needs physical exercise and enough mental exertion to keep his mind off his problems.

The greatest danger in taking vacations is that of overdoing. We are supposed to return to work rested, refreshed and ready for another period of our daily work. Instead we often come back home to recuperate from our vacation. It is very easy to get carried away by the joy of the unusual outdoor life, or by the attractions of the social whirl, and to attempt feats that would have taxed our powers when we were much younger and in better condition to stand the strain. We must pick the place which will give us the sort of relaxation we need, and then we must take it in the proper doses.

The best plan is not confine the vacation to one lump, once a year. A longer vacation at that time is very useful, but it is much better to get entirely away from our work oftener - once a week, tho it be only a few hours. When we do that, we are not apt to overdo things; we spread our enjoyment over a longer period and get the good effects of vacation permanently. This need not rule out the usual holiday but let us plan definitely to leave our routine behind us for one day a week, or half a day all thru the year. Then let us seriously organize the time so that it will be a true vacation in every sense of the word—as far removed from business as possible, and giving us what we do not get the rest of the week. This will be the very best kind of a holiday for us.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, June 4: George Hessler of Dayton is one of the 10 members of the school of commerce to be graduated with honors on commencement day, June 8.

The honor students, those who in four years collegiate work have made an average of 90 per cent or above, are determined by the committee on honors and awards from recommendations submitted by the faculty of each school. Not more than 10 per cent of the seniors in each school may be selected. Mr. Hessler is a member of Acacia fraternity.
