

As the Years Roll On

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

Do you ever pause a moment
In the journey of the day
Just to rest your faithful team-mate
From her toiling on the way?
Do you pull a little harder
Than you really need to do
Just to make the burden lighter
For the one who's helping you?

When she finds a duty irksome,
Do you come to her relief?
Do you speak a word of comfort
When her heart is torn with grief?
Do you often say "I love you?"
Do you try to cheer your wife?
Do you give her little joy-rides
Down the happy side of life?

Do you set aside your business
For a moment or a day
And refresh her drooping spirits
In a breath of care-free play?
Are you making good those pledges
That your sweetheart can't forget?
Are you certain that her future
Will be free from all regret?

Change in Auto Lighting System

We are publishing in this issue an article telling the citizens of this state that they are up against another new law, regulating the lighting system of their automobiles; which, they must comply with by the first of next month, if they operate on the highways of Oregon. It would look as though this were just another graft. You pay 3 cents per gallon tax on the gasoline you use, pay from 2 to 5 times as much for a license as it costs in other states, and now not satisfied they impose another regulation that will cost you anywhere from $10 up, to no telling where. And according to the best information we can obtain to date there has been no provision made to pass tourists who enter this state from other places. They are to be held up also, which virtually means they will pass up this state. You know the voters had to rise up in their wrath a year ago and do away with the State Income Tax law which was keeping capital out of the state and now it's up to them again to put on their fighting harness and subdue this new monster which says you go to a certain place and dig up whatever cash that fellow tells you to for new light equipment or you can't drive your car in the state of Oregon.

Southern Pacific Laying Track On Natron Cut-off

Southern Pacific is now laying 6,000 feet of track per day in the construction of the Natron Cut-off according to Geo. W. Boschke chief engineer, on his return from an inspection trip over the new line. The new construction will provide an alternate route through Oregon between San Francisco and Portland.

That the 118 mile gap between Kirk and Oakridge is fast being closed with new rails and that the ends of the east and west construction will be within eight miles of each other at the summit of the Oregon Cascades by January 1, is the report made by Boschke. The new construction will reach a maximum elevation of 4817 feet at Odell Pass. With favorable weather conditions the work will continue long into the mountain winter, said the official.

Laud Settlement Department Portland Chamber of Commerce.

The first ten days of August have registered fifteen homeseekers, who have called at the Laud Settlement Department of the Portland Chamber of Commerce for information. Nine new settlers have been reported so far for August. Five were reported by the Oregon City Chamber of Commerce as having located in Clackamas county. They are W. T. McDonald, from Stafford, Kansas; D. Hauff, Lodi, Calif.; J. J. Walsh, Winnemucca, Nev.; S. B. Trail, Oakland, Calif., and Carl Uleky recently from Nashua, Mont.

It is also reported that Geo. W. Hines, of Los Angeles, had bought 38 acres in Jackson county, and E. M. Carl, Onaga, Kansas, had bought 17 acres in Josephine county. Among those who are interested in locating in Oregon and who are at the present time looking over the country, is G. E. Josephson, of New Windsor, Ill. Mr. Josephson is an experienced horticulturist and is interested in the walnut industry in Oregon. He is now looking over Yamhill county with a view to locating. F. A. Ramsey, of Maricopa, Calif., who is visiting his cousin, Frank Ramsey at Forest Grove, is favorably impressed with what he has seen of Oregon, and is thinking of locating here. M. E. Culbertson, Yakima, Wash., is here looking for a sheep ranch.

Arthur Foster, who recently succeeded W. G. Ide, as manager of the Land Settlement Department, is looking for an increase of out-of-the-state arrivals during the latter part of August. During the 1924 season, according to Mr. Foster, the rush at the Portland Municipal Auto Camp was after Aug. 15.

Sunlight or Cod Liver Oil?

When examining children in Oregon, one is strongly impressed with the large proportion who show signs of slight rickets. As many as three-quarters of the children attending clinics often show "bumps" on the head, grooving of the ribs, slight bowlegs and other signs, and give histories of delay in the appearance of the first teeth and in starting to walk. The symptoms are rarely very severe, and are usually found in artificially fed children, though not always.

Rickets is a disease of infants and younger children in which the bones do not become hard quickly as they should. It was formerly thought to depend on the amount of lime in the food. While this may sometimes have something to do with the case, we now know that the true cause is a queer mixture of lack of vitamins in the food and insufficient sunlight, it rarely develops rickets. On the other hand, the sunlight may be insufficient, and yet the rickets be prevented or cured by giving some fatty food which contains the necessary vitamins. Cod liver oil is one of the best of these foods. Other fats, which do not ordinarily cure rickets, may develop this property when they are exposed to sunlight. Cod liver oil might be termed "bottled sunlight".

In this Northwest country, what between winter clouds and summer smoke, a baby is hard pressed to get enough sunlight to keep from getting rickets. This is especially true of babies who are born late in summer, and see very little of the sun through the first, important growing months. Mothers should see to it that their babies get the advantage of what sunshine there is; preferably under the advice of their physician, so that baby won't be "overexposed". Sunshine which has passed through glass windows does no good at all, because the results are due to the ultraviolet part of the light, which is filtered out by the glass.

The best plan is to give all babies cod liver oil, particularly through the dull months. In moderate doses it can do no harm, as it is not a medicine, but just a special food containing a very necessary element. Young babies do not have a well developed sense of taste, and usually learn to love the oil. The amount of rickets which usually develops in unprotected children here is not severe or especially dangerous, but may leave slight permanent disfigurements, and may perhaps even slightly cripple the child. Therefore plenty of sunshine, or else cod liver oil!

Similarity

"Good morning, sir," said the stranger. "Your face seems familiar; I've either seen you before or some one very much like you." The native pondered over this, took another chew of tobacco and replied:

"Well, I've never seen you before—or else it's some one else very much like you I've never seen before."

Frightful Heat at Interior of Earth

As to the state or composition of the earth's interior we are comparatively ignorant, except for inferences which amount to little more than guesses. An English newspaper asserts. Nevertheless, it is hard to escape the conclusion that the earth's core must be much hotter than anything ever heated artificially by man, although very high temperatures have been produced under pressure. The deepest coal mine ever sunk is, to the mass of the globe, much less than the skin of an apple in relation to the apple itself. Even if we take it that, according to the experience of mine-sinking, the heat increases one degree every hundred feet bored, the temperature of the earth's center would reach 211,200 degrees Fahrenheit. We can form some idea of what this means when we remember that the boiling point of water at sea level is no more than 212 degrees Fahrenheit, so that the earth's center would be almost exactly a thousand times hotter than the water with which you make your tea.

Nickname for Americans

"Brother Jonathan" was a once popular nickname for the people of the United States. It was originally applied in a humorous way by George Washington in the War of the Revolution to Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, and afterward became a popular designation of the American nation. When Washington went to Massachusetts to organize the Revolutionary army he found it sadly in need of ammunition. On one occasion during that critical period a council of officers was held to remedy this state of affairs, but no means were devised to supply the deficiency, whereupon Washington exclaimed, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject," referring to the governor of Connecticut. The term Brother Jonathan gained currency during the war and came in some way later to be applied to the people as a whole.—Kansas City Star.

Lotteries of Jupiter

Jupiter made a lottery in heaven, to which mortals as well as gods were allowed to have tickets. The prize was wisdom, and Minerva got it. The mortals murmured and accused the gods of foul play. Jupiter, to wipe off this aspersion, declared another lottery for mortals single and exclusive of the gods. The prize was folly. They got it and shared it among themselves. All were satisfied. The loss of wisdom was neither regretted nor remembered—folly supplied its place, and those who had the largest share of it thought themselves the wisest.—De la Motte.

Dickens' Famous Speech

At an annual banquet, which is noted for the high level of its speech-making and where many famous orators have been heard, Charles Dickens, in the last year of his life, was asked to respond for literature. The theme of his speech was the recent death of MacIver. One who was present writes: "A deathlike stillness came over the great room, and mine were not the only eyes that were filled with tears." So moved was the audience that at the close of Dickens' speech they rose from the table, and no other speech was delivered that night.

Strong Jewish Alliance

Consistent

Robinson was well known in the club as a vegetarian. The members were hardly surprised, therefore, when his friend Jones burst into the billiard room one evening and announced: "Robinson has been true to his vegetarian principles." "What's he done now?" they asked. "Haven't you heard? He's run away with a grass widow."

Ugly General Pays Penalty

Philopoemen was a Greek general, notorious for his ugliness, but also famous for having had it said of him by Plutarch that he was the "last great Greek." He was so ugly that when he arrived in a town making ready for a ceremony in honor of his coming, he was put to work helping to prepare for his own entrance into the city. He looked so common and unsightly to the luncheon in charge of the program that he was put to work drawing water and building a fire. When his identity was discovered he merely replied that he was paying the penalty for being so ugly.
