Use of more vegetables in the diet is essential to the best and most economical nutrition. The homemaker has two things to do to bring about this larger use—know how to prepare them to preserve their nutrition and make them attractive and palatable, and teach the family the value of vegetables in the diet.

Had Gone Far Enough

A married couple were knocked down by a motorcar. The car dashed away. The police arrived and found the couple bursting with indignation. "Do you know the number of the car?" asked the policeman. "Yes," replied the husband; "by a strange coincidence the first two numbers formed my age and the second two the age of my wife." "John," said the wife, "we will let the matter drop at once."

Novel and Ingenious Style-Points in Coats

This wrap-around coat introduces a front fullness by means of three wide side plaits, which provide sufficient width without detracting from its slender lines. The embroidered lay on the collar and cuffs is distinctive and attractive—the design novel and clever.

Let your boy or girl "ring" the old Liberty Bell with his or her savings. Teach the habit of THRIFT in a patriotic way at the time when most habits are formed—in Youth.

The Liberty Bell Bank does this. It instantly appeals to every child. Your boy or girl wants one—should have one—especially when there is no expense in connection with getting a Bell Bank. Merely come in and say: "I wish to open a Liberty Bell Saving Account" $100 will do it. Then we will give you a Bell Bank.

Latest Advance in Railroad Equipment

We understand articulation when applied to speech, but the phrase "Articulated Trains" may not be so well understood. Up to the present coaches have been connected or coupled, but not articulated. There has been constant effort, ever since the early days of railways, to combine solidarity with flexibility in the making up of a train. The first passenger coaches were attached to one another by a simple chain and hook, but for many years the couplings have been much closer and more compact, the finely adjusted spring-buffers being kept always in close contact. That was regarded until recently as the last word in smooth motion at high speeds, but now that articulation has come along it is seen that much greater smoothness of motion is produced by it. Instead of each coach being a separate entity, with its four bogey-wheels at each end, the bogey-wheels are placed between the coaches, so that two of the wheels are under one, and the other pair under the other. Thus the train is all in one piece, with perfect mobility throughout its length.

Read as Death Beckoned

A reader asks whether we know which work of Voltaire it was that was found on Sargent's deathbed. We don't. But it may interest him and others to know that Tennyson died with his Shakespeare open at "Cymbeline"; Macaulay when he was found dead in his library had a number of the Cornhill magazine before him, open at the first chapter of Thackeray's "Love the Widower." Mark Twain with almost the last effort of his mind turned to Carlyle's "French Revolution."—W. Orton Tewson in the New York Evening Post.

Belief in Horseshoes

Traced to the Druids

The idea that it is lucky to find a horseshoe is regarded by authorities on folklore as a Druidical survival.

The superstition is peculiar to regions where Druidism once flourished, and the Druidical places of worship, as exemplified by Stonehenge, made their inner circle of stones a broken or open one.

The idea that a horseshoe brings the best luck when you find it lying with the points toward you—the sacred inner circle open to you, as it were—also bears upon this theory.

Druidism passed, but the superstition outlasts empires and religions, and when horseshoes became common the superstitious found ready at hand a representation of the ancient symbol of the broken circle. The idea that in attaching the symbol to the house the points should be up had a Druidical significance which has been lost. People nowadays say it is "to prevent the luck running out."

Architectural Gems

Besides Wolsey's great hall and kitchen, Christ church, Oxford, boasts two of the finest English examples of the Gothic style of architecture, both built more than a century after Gothic became merely a historical term. One of these, the stairway to the hall, was designed in 1640 by a genius known only as "Smith of London."

The other, Tom tower, carrying the Great Tom bell which every night rings 101 peals to announce the closing of college gates, was designed by Christopher Wren, architect of St. Paul's, in one of the few happy moments when he really sensed the feeling of medieval builders.
