

The Happy Road to Home!

by
O. Lawrence
Hawthorne

Oh, the sun shines bright and the skies are blue
And all nature, it seems, is gay!
And a golden glow floods my spirit too,
As I hasten along the way
To a little house in the friendly hills
Where the treasures of childhood wait—
Yes, the road to home brings the same old thrills
As it leads to the old farm gate.

Though the hills are lonely and lost in snow
And the wind moans across the plain,
Still I love those scenes that I used to know
And my heart sings a glad refrain;
For the winter's cold brings the thought to mind
That wherever a man may roam
There is no delight like the joy he'll find
At the end of the road to home.

HARVEST

Harvest is practically finished in this part of the Willamette Valley. While some crops were not quite up to the average the crops as a whole have been very good. Hops have been above the average both in quantity and quality. We have had just enough rain to settle the dust, wash off the vines and cool the air for ideal hop-picking weather. At this writing the Woods yard is the only one not finished and it will be finished this week. The farmers are busy filling silos with corn that would make better than 50 bushels to the acre and filling the wood sheds with wood for winter use. A good many farmers are hogging off a part of their corn which seems to be a profitable way of harvesting. The school bells are heard again announcing the fact that the time is at hand for Young America to increase its sense of knowledge. We are having some of the finest fall weather to be had so we feel the people of this vicinity have much to be thankful for at this time.

A small town paper is always due for a great deal of criticism and fault finding from a few people who go around with their hats pulled down over their eyes, a chip on their shoulders and a smirk on their mouths. These same people you will notice are the ones who never enter the home paper office for a friendly get-acquainted chat, but rather visit every business house in town every so often for a whispered consultation with the merchants on the shortcomings of the printer and the paper he edits. The critics you will also notice are the ones, who, when they are asked for news items, say, "Why, I don't think of anything right now." And never try to think of anything. Still they complain because the paper isn't good enough, never realizing that they do not exert themselves to make it any better. As a rule they do not take the home paper but always find some one to borrow it of so they will know what it contains. And if they find an out of town ad in it, with a stiff legged trot run to the business men with complaints about it. The home paper is only too glad to print any item of news that any one will bring to it and print it in the best manner possible. Don't run your home paper down. It will do it's best to build up your town. There is always room in it for any uplifting idea its patrons may wish to have printed. Don't send your news out of town unless you give it to your home paper too. Every small town business man needs the support of the other business men. "Kill" one and you have broken a link in the chain.

Don't Wait Till I am Dead

If with pleasure you are viewing
Any work that I am doing,
If you like me or you love me, tell me
Now;
Don't withhold your approbation
Till the parson makes oration,
And I lie with snowy lilies o'er my
Brow;
For no matter how you shout it,
I won't care a bit about it,
I won't know how many tear drops
You have shed;
If you think some praise is due me,
Now's the time to slip it to me,
For I can not read my tombstone when
I'm dead!
More than fame and more than money
Is the comment, kind and sunny,
And the hearty warm approval of a friend,
For it gives to life a savor
And it makes me stronger, braver,
And it gives me heart and spirit to the end;
If I earn your praise—bestow it,
If you like me—let me know it,
Let the words of true encouragement
Be said;
Do not wait till life is over,
And I'm underneath the clover,
For I can not read my tombstone when
I'm dead!

Obituary

Mrs. Klaudena Christena Lorenzen
Mrs. Klaudena Christena Lorenzen was born in Denmark, November 25, 1874, and departed this life at Dayton, Oregon, September 21, 1925 at the age of 50 years, 9 months and 26 days.

When but a child of 9 years, she emigrated to America with her parents and brother and sisters, and settled in Iowa, where they remained for several years. About the year 1887 the family moved to Oregon where the rest of her life was spent, the greater part of it in the vicinity of Dayton.

On January 15, 1893 she was joined in holy wedlock to Richard James Lorenzen. Her husband died in an accident May 4th 1903, leaving the mother with five small children to care for. One of these children, Richard James Jr., died on May 28, 1905 at the age of two and one half years, but the others have all grown to maturity. John L. Lorenzen of Amity; Lamick and Elvin, of Dayton; and Mrs. Lyle H. Willard of Corvallis. Besides her children she leaves 4 grandchildren, a twin sister, Mrs. R C Jensen of Tidewater, Oregon and another sister Mrs. Albert Livengood of Dundee, Oregon, besides more distant relatives and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Lorenzen became a Christian and joined the Evangelical church while her family was still young in years. The years since have been fraught with the necessity for the utmost sacrifice and economy for the sake of her family but her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ gave her courage to surmount every obstacle. Always and everywhere she was known by her stalwart Christian character, manifested in her humble life of thoughtfulness, love and devotion to her family first, but reaching out to all whom she could help. Up to the very last she had a warm interest in the Church and Christ whom she loved and served for so many years.

Funeral at the Evangelical church, Dayton. Rev's G L Lovell and F E Fisher assisted the pastor in the service. Interment in the Dundee cemetery.

Rev. Lyle Willard and wife of Corvallis returned to their home this morning after spending a couple of weeks here with their parents.

I. O. O. F. Convention Week.

This is I. O. O. F. convention week at Portland. Tuesday a bunch of them drove out here on a sight seeing tour, and while here were treated to a watermelon feed and each given a sack of fresh prunes that grew in this vicinity. There were delegates from various parts of the world. We rather depended on the local committee to see that we got an appropriate write-up but guess they are so busy with the festivities that it has slipped their minds. Perhaps by next week they will have come back to earth and we will be able to give a more complete article about the convention and its activities.

School Notes

The Dayton High School made its annual beginning Monday, September 21, with an enrollment of 73 students, all of whom seemed to be glad to begin their school duties again.

The new bus, which is a very welcome convenience to those of the students living in the country districts, carried 24 to Dayton the first morning. It makes a 25 mile trip each morning and evening, traversing the districts of Unionvale, Pleasantdale and Webfoot.

Enrollment:
High School 73
Grades 100
Hereafter we hope to have more school notes, but due to the rush of opening, the news notes are brief this week.

Items of Interest Among the Schools of Yamhill County

Nearly all of the high schools of the county are in session. Many of them opened Sept. 14, the others opened on the 21st. The enrollment is much greater than it was a year ago, but we are not able at this time to give the exact figures. The grades, so far, do not show any marked increase, and in some cases there is a decrease.

The Amity high school is running four buses and two smaller cars to bring in from other school districts those who will attend the high school. The Dayton high school is running a bus into the Webfoot and Unionvale country. The bus has a carrying capacity of 32, and it well filled to overflowing. Every boy and girl seems determined to get a high school education, and the arrangement for transportation will be a great aid to many.

A turnstile has been arranged for by the S. P. R. R. Co., in the R. R. fence at St. Joe, and the children of that school may now reach the building without going around by the subway.

The annual institute was restored by the last legislature, and all teachers of Yamhill County will close their schools on November 9-10, and attend the institute, which will be held in the high school building in McMinnville. Teachers will be paid in full for the days of the institute.

The Beacon charts that were used in the schools last year may be used this year. Please note this fact, as many questions are coming to the office with reference to the matter.

The apportionment of school funds will be made as usual about Nov. 15. The funds distributed by the county school superintendent are county school fund, state school fund, and elementary school fund. The high school fund is paid out as tuition as the bills are sent in, and not distributed on the same basis as the other funds.

The Oregon Blue Book will soon be ready for distribution among the teachers. Call for your copy, or drop us a card. Many teachers get a copy direct from the Secretary of State, hence we distribute only on application.

The census blanks will go to the clerks soon. Place on your census roll all children between 4 and 20 that are actual residents of your school district on Oct. 25, 1925, no matter if they move out the next day, or if they moved in on the 24th. There is no deviation from this law.

In driving among the districts we find many wells out of commission, so that the children will not have a water supply on the opening of school. Of course the directors will correct these matters in good time.

Two stock judging teams will be in the fair circles from the stock clubs of Yamhill county this fall. Leo and Glenn Fletcher, and Austin Stevens will go to the Salem fair, and Alex Cruickshank, Randall Pine, and Melvin Shirley will judge at the Portland fair. All of these boys live between McMinnville and Dayton and all belong to clubs of which Alex Cruickshank is the leader. The boys have done splendid work, and Alex and Austin will represent the clubs of the county at the Boys and Girls club camp at the state fair. Ollie Cummings of Springbrook, and Kathleen Smith, will represent the girls of the county at the camp.

As soon as the schools are all open for the autumn term, J. E. Calavon, the club worker from the office of the state school superintendent, will be in the county again, and with what assistance the county school superintendent can give him, we hope for greater success in the work than we had this past year. The lack of a county fair as a place to exhibit club work is a slight handicap which we hope to see removed in the near future.

Health inspection among the pupils of the schools will be a new phase of the teacher's work this fall, and the cards for the purpose will be sent to each school in the county at once. They were received from the state office recently.

Supplies for the organization of the Junior Red Cross will reach all schools of the county this week. Remember there is no fee for enrollment in the Junior Red Cross. The only money that will be accepted from the schools is a fifty cents subscription to a Red Cross paper which will contain splendid lessons on service to humanity that all children should learn. We hope that each school will enroll, send for the paper, and give the pupils the training that will make of them men and women who will be ready to help those less fortunate at all times. The subscription price will be sent by each teacher direct to the publisher. Send all subscriptions to the American National Red Cross, Washington, D. C. This address will be found in your supplies.

The library books for the county were mailed to the clerks of the various school districts with the exception of a very few, which were sent out by some one from the district. Cards and pockets for recording the books may be had by applying to the county school superintendent.

Teachers supplies are sent to teachers only on application, as many supply themselves when in the office, and many secure what they need in other counties before they come to the county. We supplied a teacher from Wallawa County only recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hadley who have been afflicted with cold and asthma were able to attend the funeral of Mary Jane Newlin at Newberg, Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Mrs. Newlin was 87 years old. Her husband Milton is still living and in his 92 year. Mrs. Newlin was a first cousin of Mr. Hadley's first wife the deceased, had been an ordained minister in the Friends church for more than fifty years and was highly respected and loved by all who knew her. She had directed her own funeral to be preached from a portion of the 91st Psalm: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high, shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress; My God, in him will I trust." The services at the church and the cemetery were very impressive, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held. It may be truthfully said that a mighty one in Israel hath fallen.

Weep not for her who is now at rest
Where care and pain no more annoy,
She has reached the haven of the blest,
And realized immortal joy.
Her spirit smiles from that bright shore
And softly whispers, "Weep no more."
C. Hadley.

Good Health Habits

"Any act often repeated soon forms a habit and habits allowed steadily gain in strength. At first it may be but as the spider's web easily broken through, but if not resisted it soon binds with chains of steel."—Edwards.

Good health habits are dependent on the power to show control over the common-place and ordinary situations of life. Habits may become assets or liabilities. Good health habits are assets that contribute to the well being of the individual. Good habits in regard to the care of the body—eating, sleeping, eliminating, bathing, are easily acquired and build up a wealth of health. Good habits usually spell good health. Habits that are detrimental to health are also easily acquired and constitute a growing liability which sooner or later reduces the efficiency of the individual. Many failures are due to bad habits. Good training makes difficult tasks easy while bad training makes a simple task difficult.

Health habits affect the whole life of the individual. Habits determine the active control of the whole human mechanism.

Good health habits begin with the habit of right thinking. It is fundamental that good habits be formed in early life. Every one should be trained to meet the small problems of living and in this way power will be developed to meet the more weighty problems of life. Good health is dependent on regular habits of muscular exercise. The refreshing and stimulating habit of regular bathing assists in maintaining a healthy body. Deep breathing, out door living, moderate eating, moderate exercise and regular hours of sleep are the fundamental habits necessary to insure good health.

The only difficulty lies in overcoming the inertia of acquired bad habits. After one has changed his habits, it is just as easy to live rightly as to live wrongly. Good health habits are not restrictive but liberating. Good health habits are simply a means of emancipating ourselves from our real limitation.

Crepes Maintain Lead in Spring's Negligees

All the soft, light crepe weaves are well suited to this pretty and practical negligee, whether they are of silk, cotton, or the two combined, and nearly all of them are washable. When crepe de chine is used the plaiting is of self-material, but on cotton negligees it is usual to make the plaited frill of silk.
