What Is A Dangerous Communicable Disease?

This is an accepted name of a contagious disease and is one that can be communicated by one person to another either by contact with diseased persons or through water, milk, air, clothes or any other intermediary agent whatsoever, and that may be the cause of death.

Should every citizen be able to recognize diseases?

Only in a general way. He should know the common signs, but he should never attempt to diagnose or treat. Diagnosis and treatment require expert knowledge.

What should one do when suspicious symptoms appear?

Call in an expert on diseases. Prompt treatment may prevent a long illness.

What are the main dangerous communicable diseases in the State of Oregon?

Diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, smallpox, typhoid fever, tuberculosis and whooping cough.

Which of these diseases are entirely preventable?

Small pox, diphtheria and typhoid fever. Smallpox can be prevented by vaccination repeated every 5 to 7 years. Diphtheria can be prevented by immunization with toxin-antitoxin. Typhoid fever can be prevented by sanitation and inoculation with anti-typhoid vaccine repeated every three years.

How can we attempt to prevent the others?

By prompt isolation of the individual showing suspicious symptoms and by taking every precaution against exposure.

What should a physician or householder do when a case of dangerous communicable disease occurs under his charge?

Report it to the health officer immediately.

What is the duty of the health officer?

Investigate the case if necessary, placard the premises, enforce quarantine and report to the Oregon State Board of Health.

What is the function of the Oregon State Board of Health in the control of dangerous communicable diseases?

The State Board of Health receives and records all disease reports sent by health officers throughout the state in such a way that there is immediately available an accurate rating of conditions in the state. All epidemics are investigated and local authorities are assisted and advised in regard to control measures.

What is quarantine?

By quarantine is meant the absolute closing of the house and not permitting anyone to enter or leave it except medical attendants.

What is isolation?

By isolation it is meant that the patient and attendants shall be isolated in a part of the house away from other members of the family. No one except attendants shall be permitted to enter or leave this part of the house. Other members of the household shall be permitted to go about their regular business.

What should teachers do when pupils show symptoms of dangerous communicable disease?

Send them home at once and promptly notify the health officer. All exposed children should continue school unless otherwise ordered by health officer. All children should be carefully watched by the teacher or nurse for symptoms.

Who issues the certificate of health allowing children to return to school after a dangerous communicable disease?

The Health Officer.

What is a disease carrier?

A well person who harbors in his body, and gives off the virulent organism of disease, thereby acting as a carrier of infection. He may or may not have had the disease.

What is the value of the Oregon State Board of Health in regard to carriers?

The rules and regulations provide for their quarantine or isolation. A carrier should be treated until he is non-infectious.

A mass meeting of the citizens was held in the Arcade Theater building Monday night with Mayor Hibbert in the chair. The following were placed in nomination for offices. For Mayor, J. G. Park and W. S. U'Ren, Recorder W. T. H. Tucker, Treasurer J. E. Mellinger, Councilmen, A. L. Harding, W. L. Sheard, Chas. Simler, Archie Nichols, V. H. Ballard and E. S. Filer. Three of these are to be elected for a term of three years.
