THRIFT

Thrift consists of the provident use of one's income and revenues and the careful ordering of one's expenses, so as to live not only within one's means, but to lay aside something for the "rainy day".

Thrift, rightly understood and constantly carried out, is a moral virtue which insures health, wealth and happiness and is a powerful safeguard against dissipation.

Dear Susie:

Of course you are going to the three basket ball games between Dayton Hi and Carlton Hi at the Community Hall, Friday night. I can hardly wait for them to begin; I always have such a jolly good time. The first game starts at 6:30, you know, and is between our second team of boys and Carlton's second team. Then at 7:30 the girls play. And say, haven't we got the dandiest bunch of girls on our team! They are real sports in the finest sense of the word. Always so good natured and jolly and real ladies, too, even when they are defeated. I do hope they win Friday night, don't you? The boys' game is at 8:30 and our boys are real live players. They are a manly bunch of sportsman, too, and sure deserve to win. You'll go with me, won't you, Susie dear?

Yours for old Dayton Hi,
Jake.
