Yocum attended the Oregonian Diamond Jubilee banquet in Portland last Friday as invited guests, which is proof of the fact that they have been readers of the Oregonian for at least fifty years. Mr. Yocum saw the first paper printed 75 years ago. There may have been others who attended from here but we do not have their names.

Jane Wray, the little girl who wins everyone's heart in Mrs. Wallace Reich's 'Broken Laws,' has one scene in which a playmate breaks the arm off a new doll that was given to Jane. Jane cries bitterly in this scene, and she needed no prompting for it. For the breaking of that pretty doll arm caused REAL and not make-believe tears to come. Arcade Theatre, Sat., Dec. 12.

Quite a number of our readers haven't paid us anything on subscription yet, altho they have been receiving the Tribune each week for considerable more than a year now, under our management. We know your intentions are good, you intend to pay, but perhaps think, 'Oh well, what I owe, doesn't amount to much'. Perhaps it doesn't but multiply what you owe on subscription by a hundred or more and then you can readily see that the aggregate would amount to considerable to the editor.

EXTRAVAGANCE

Have you ever observed that EXTRAVAGANCE has a great deal to do with putting the 'mis' in misfortune?

Generally the one who says he has had nothing but hard luck is the one who foolishly spent his money when he had it. One simply cannot get ahead or amount to anything in this world unless he can save a part of what he earns. Only by so doing can he accumulate the funds that will enable him to grasp the opportunities that later mean SUCCESS.
