LOCAL CANNERY GIVES EMPLOYMENT TO MANY
Plant is Putting Up Big Pack and Is a Help to Both Growers and Laborers.

(From The Newberg Graphic)
Just now the local cannery is the busiest place in Newberg. With fully three hundred employees working at breckneck pace they are doing their best to save the fruit crop and put up a pack that will mean dollars for the growers and laborers of the community as well as for themselves.

In discussing the question of this year's pack with a representative of the company he said, that the pack this year will run about the same as last, which was their big year. The Royal Anne cherries, which were supposed to be very light, are turning out well and are said to be of the very finest quality. The Bing cherries, which are usually good, seem to be poor this year, so many of them being cracked and spoiled that the cannery has finally given up trying to pack them.

Berries are coming fine, however. Following a record pack of strawberries, they are now busy on blackcap and red raspberries and logans. The loganberries seem to be very good quality for canning this year and the crop is good. The blackcaps seem to have more water than some years but are packing well as are also the red raspberries.

The peak of the rush on cherries is now past and this fruit will soon be finished, but then will come blackberries, pears, peaches, apples, etc. The local cannery places thousands of dollars into circulation here which the community would not get other wise, and is of great help to many people who would not have any employment during the summer months in any other place. The class of work done gives employment to women and young people who could not do many kinds of work but who can do this and some of them make good money in this way.

Then in addition to the employment side of the proposition the cannery helps very materially in the sale of fruits, giving a market which is more needed. That the local cannery is a big asset certainly cannot be gainsaid.

S. P. WANTS BRANCH LINE ABANDONED

(From The Sheridan Sun)
On petition of the S. P. company it is sought to abandon the track running from Broadmead south through Perrydale, Dallas and on to Airle, a distance of some 28 miles. The company claims that the business of that line has so fallen off that there is now a financial loss in its operation and that the business originating on the line is adequately taken care of by other means. The petition also asks that the spur and siding at Broadmead be also abandoned. Twenty days have been given for the state commission to inform the interstate commerce commission if there be any objections.

DISCHARGED EMPLOYEE IS QUIETED BY INCARCERATION

(From The Telephone Register)
After Ed. Hygett, employee of the St. Joe orchards, had been discharged, he became indignant Monday evening and retaliated by disturbing the peace of the other employees and the managers. Although he was imprisoned in the county jail for the remainder of the night, the case was dismissed early the next morning.

Two other culprits, M. Martin and J. J. Vanika, who were in possession of liquor at Grand Ronde Monday evening, produced a check for $250 bail and were also liberated.

MR. AND MRS. NOTT HOME FROM PORTLAND BOTH ARE ON ROAD TO FULL HEALTH

(From The Telephone Register)
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nott both returned to McMinnville Monday evening, being brought from St. Vincent's hospital in Portland by Tom Ladd in his "invalid" car. Mr. Nott is able to be up for the greater part of the day although he is still suffering from internal hurts to the muscles of his body which require him to wear a brace.

Mrs. Nott will be bothered for several months yet by the severe skull fracture she received, according to physicians. Her left arm, broken in an accident in Portland June 26, is healing nicely.

ERECTS LARGE DRYER

(From The Amity Standard)
Another local enterprise and one that is a large and valuable asset to the community is the new prune and walnut drier that Mr. W. E. Osborne is erecting on his farm just south of town.

This new building is an enlargement of the one built last year and now the size of the same is 60 by 100 feet with four large tunnels for the drying, which will enable Mr. Osborne to handle 2000 boxes of green prunes a day which is handling some fruit. Then he has bin room for the dried fruit that will hold 250 tons.

To run the industry during the season will require the services of about 30 people.

Mr. Osborne has already contracted from 60 to 100 tons of walnuts to dry and bleach. He has the upper part of the building arranged for the bleaching of the walnuts. He is to be commended on the erecting of this building and Amity and community will receive big benefits from such an industry.

Growth and development of the dairy and livestock industry of western Oregon are thought by E. L. Potter, professor of animal husbandry at the experiment station, to depend more on growth of legumes than on any other single factor. In preparing a ration for any kind of livestock in this district the most difficult thing is getting enough calcium, particularly for young stock. Growers need to pay a great deal of attention to getting enough calcium for bone growth.

The Oregon law of compulsory labeling of market potatoes is a good one if uniformly enforced, says the experiment station farm crop specialist—good for grower, the dealer and consumer. It helps dispose of potatoes that grade No. 1 or better and does not prohibit sale of any potatoes that are fit for food.
