Suit Over Roadway

Urias Landis and Mary J. Landis, his wife, of McMinnville, filed suit to restrain A. K. Bentley and A. S. Hilligoss from closing a roadway across the defendant Bentley's land leading from the Landis house to the County road. The plaintiff alleges that the roadway formerly went over a hill but in the year 1919 by an agreement between Landis and the defendants a change was made so that the roadway ran around the hill, and that the defendants now threaten to close up this latter roadway and remove the plaintiff's gates. Landis asks the Court for judgment of $300 and an order restraining the defendants from closing the roadway. The plaintiff also alleges that upon one occasion the defendant Bentley "maliciously violently assaulted and beat him." Frank Holmes, attorney of McMinnville is handling the case for the plaintiffs.

Championship Game Saturday

FLASH — Linfield Gym., 9:30 p. m., March 21 — Willamina won the first game of the championship series here tonight by the score of 17 to 16. Carlton was in the lead at half time, 10 to 8.

Many Dayton people were disappointed Monday evening when they found that at 7:15 the game between Carlton and Willamina had been called off because of lack of permission from the Board of Control of the Oregon High School Athletic Association. The board rules that no championship games can be played after March 15 without special permission which had not been received by the time of the game.

Tuesday the matter was taken up again and permission was granted on the grounds that several of the county league teams had been forced to postpone games because of infantile paralysis. At the time of going to press the outcome of the Carlton-Willamina game played Wednesday is unknown. Dayton will meet the champions Saturday at Linfield as scheduled.

Interesting Speakers At M. E. Emphasis Meetings

When Dr. Levi Pennington spoke last Sunday night at the Methodist church, he presented his subject, "Why be a Christian," in a very clear and forceful manner. He gave two big reasons for being a Christian. Because of what Christianity is, and because of what it does for a person. He pointed out that all religions show man trying to get to God, but that Christianity is the only religion that shows God trying to get to man. He said that Christ offers Pardon, Purity, Peace and Power to all those who believe on him.

At the Monday night meeting the male quartette from McMinnville was well received, and Rev. S. W. Hall presented in a very interesting and effective manner, the subject, "What Constitutes Being a Christian?" He said that going to church, reading the Bible, praying, contributing to the church, tithing, being active in church organizations, do not necessarily constitute being a Christian, although a Christian is pretty sure to do all these things. But, he said, the thing that determines whether a person is a Christian is whether they are conscious of the will of God for their life, and are trying to follow it.

Rev. M. A. Marcy, a former pastor of the Dayton Methodist Church and now of Forest Grove, will be the speaker tonight. His subject will be, "The Challenge of Christ for Youth." All young people are particularly urged to be present, but everyone is welcome. The largest crowd of the meetings is expected at this meeting.

Rev. H. E. Rarey, the pastor, will speak Friday evening on the Subject, "Putting Christ into Our Work," and on Sunday evening on the subject, "Victorious Living." There will be enthusiastic congregational singing and special music each evening.

Blockhouse Murmurs Against Neglect and Wear of Years

By J. E. B.

One nice sun-shiny day recently I was walking by the old Sheridan Blockhouse which is situated in the park at Dayton when I heard a faint murmur. At first I thought it was the gentle rustle of the tall fir trees swaying in the breeze. I stopped my interest caught by the strange life like tone of the murmur and I heard these words:

"Friend, another spring has arrived and it makes me sad to think that I stand clothed in dust and bleached white by sun and rain. I stand unnoticed, my fame is leaving me—I feel so lonesome—I am the Blockhouse."

The faint tremor of the words sent a thrill through my bones, my eyes sought the source of the words but all I could see was the grey dingy exterior of a once famous building; from the outer wall hung an oxen yolk squeaking plaintively as it rubbed against the structure. Again I heard the voice:

"Years ago I was built by the strong hands of soldiers to protect white families from red-skins. My life was easy and peaceful for the Indians proved friends. At one time the camp in which I was located, on the Grand Ronde reservation, was commanded by Captain Phil Sheridan, who later became world famous through the civil war. I was faithful to my cause and years later I was heralded as a monument to pioneers and removed to my present location where I was exceedingly happy. People brought into my two rooms many articles connected with my early days. People would visit me from many places, many writing their names upon my walls. The long winter has gone past, during which I was very lonesome. Very few times were my doors even opened to permit friends and the light of day to enter.

"Perhaps I should not be sad, no doubt with summer friends will again renew my acquaintance and I shall meet new people—but why have my friends forgotten me? I am their monument into the past and I need a coat of oil to freshen my appearance and preserve me into the many years to come."

Barn on Sims Farm Takes Fire Sunday

The barn on the J. W. Sims farm about three miles from Dayton caught fire Sunday night and but for the timely arrival of chemicals from Dayton would probably have been destroyed. As it was, little damage resulted except for a portion of the roof.

The fire resulted from the explosion of a gasoline can which was open allowing the fumes to reach a lantern hanging near. Elizabeth Sims received a burn on her hand in an attempt to quench the blaze, her brother Robert, who had brought the lantern into the barn escaped injury.
