"Facts that are not frankly faced have a habit of stabbing us in the back."—Sir Harold Bowden.

Editorial

"WHOLE HOG OR NONE?"

From the Hyder (Alaska) Herald.

The suggestions offered last week by Mr. E. D. Haddon of the Bank of Hyder in his comments on the Cantu deal, are distinctly timely and deserve the close consideration of not only the prospectors of this region but of all who are interested in local mining development and the welfare of the district.

As pointed out by Mr. Haddon, the first requisite to early development of the numerous local "prospects" or undeveloped mining claims is a closer appreciation of the difficulties of local mining and more cooperation between claim owners and those who seek to develop mines.

Mr. Haddon did not in any degree overshoot the mark in declaring that the terms demanded by local property owners are not such as to attract mining investors or induce interest in local development.

To put it plainly in our own language, the local claim owners display too little willingness to give the prospective developer a just and fair bargain in return for his efforts and expenditures and in many instances that have come under observation have shown no willingness whatever to take an equal chance with the operator on the future of the property. To the casual observer it seems that their attitude is one that savors too much of "whole hog or none" policy to incline capital to take an interest in their properties.

CRITICISM

(Grants Pass Bulletin)

Your opinion is not worth much unless you can back it up with facts. Criticism is the cheapest thing in all the world. The most critics are failures at something and the mind has tricked them into the fault that they may do that which they will not appreciate themselves. The critic is spontaneous in his judgment. He usually jumps at conclusions and quite often misses the first jump. There is, however, one form of criticism that is of value but it must be preceded with judgment and an adjective. Constructive criticism is worth much, but unless criticism is founded on a basis of facts that builds, rather than destroys, that criticism is valueless.

Wales Is Most Dressed Man; But No Better Clad Than Americans

READY FOR THE RACES • FOR GOLF • ON THE STREET

NEW YORK.—The Prince of Wales is the most-dressed man in the world, the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America has decided.

There are as well-dressed men as the prince right here in America, but their wardrobes just aren't in the running when it comes to his, the sartorial specialists say.

"The number of different suits and uniforms the heir to the British throne wears in the course of a year makes him easily the most-dressed man on earth," says a bulletin that comes here by the Association of Tailors. A large part of the prince's wardrobe and York House, his official residence, is a colossal storehouse of epic and span costumes. If one were to line up and parade the prince's wardrobe past on models it would take a full day of twenty-four hours to them to execute a march by a street in slow time. There are, small as his more formal garbs, the towering black bearskin and gray overcoat of the Guards, the uniforms of his gth, regiments and of his naval rank, there is his Scottish tartan, somewhat like that of the Clan MacDonald; the silks and laces of his court dress; the magnificent mantles and badges of his orders of chivalry; the more magnificent robes in which he is invested as Prince of Wales, and literally dozens of morning coats, dress coats, hunting coats, Harris tweeds, dinner jackets and sack suits.

"If it would help the British Empire," the prince is reported to have said recently, "I would wear a different suit of clothes for every man I meet." He doesn't come far from being just that.

86 PER CENT OF HISTORIC WILLIAMSBURG BOUGHT FOR ROCKEFELLER RESTORATION

THE FAMOUS STATE HOUSE WILL NOT BE LONG DELAYED. THE SITE OF THE FIRST PRINTING OFFICE (1730) WHERE THE OLD VIRGINIA GAZETTE WAS FIRST PUBLISHED (1736) AND WHICH HAS BEEN REVIVED IN A TEMPORARY OFFICE, HAS NOT BEEN SOLD TO THE RESTORATION. IF THE "FIRST THEATER IN AMERICA" (1716) IS RESTORED, IT WILL BE USED FOR CULTURAL, NOT COMMERCIAL PURPOSES IN CONNECTION WITH WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE. OLD GARDENS OF HISTORIC NAMES WILL BE RE-PLANTED. MANY GIANT BOXWOOD BUSHES 150-200 YEARS OLD, FROM SOUTH CAROLINA, HAVE ALREADY BEEN PLANTED.

The present Colonial court house of 1770, it is believed, will be converted into a public library, after the new court house for city and county to cost about $150,000 has been erected, the exact location for which may or may not be determined when this appears in print. The Baptist and Presbyterian churches, it is likely will be rebuilt in colonial architecture, in the proximity to the new court house.

Preparatory to re-building the Colonial "Governor's House," or "Palace," (burned in 1781), the Williamsburg Holding Corporation has purchased Palace Green and two school buildings (which will be removed) for $200,000. A new school plant, modern in every respect, and to cost $400,000, is now under construction, William and Mary College owning the high school section, and the City of Williamsburg, the elementary section. The new building will be called "The Matthew Whaley School." The history of the name runs back to Bacon's Rebellion.

Not only buildings, but Duke of Gloucester Street will be rebuilt, on a park-line plan; but, first, all modern buildings on this street will be moved elsewhere or razed as useless for any purpose.

appearance of three centuries ago, and making a present of the completed product to the public is a job requiring an infinite amount of research. No other city in the United States has so Colonial an atmosphere. The old city just as it stands, proves a source of interest to 1,000 visitors daily. The overflow to this throng and only a few are ever accommodated in Williamsburg, finds its way to nearby Norfolk, Portsmouth, or Virginia Beach.

The restoration means, practically, the re-building of Williamsburg. Of the five great public shrines to be restored, the "Raleigh Tavern," rendezvous of Revolutionary patriots, has been rebuilt from the foundation; it will soon be finished. The old "Capitol," where the House of Burgesses met (from 1704 to 1776) and made history for the whole United States is yet in the preliminary stages of restoration; but the rebuilding of NORFOLK Va.—It was Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, rector of Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg, Virginia, who in 1926 told delegates to a Phi Beta Kappa convention there of his hope to see the ancient city restored to the glory of its Colonial days. Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who was among the delegates, guaranteed to undertake the program. Today it is said Mr. Rockefeller has already purchased outright about 86 per cent of the old Colonial City whose existence extends over three centuries.

The work of restoration has now been going on two years. The five million which were given in early announcements as required for the undertaking are now unofficially estimated at from twenty to thirty millions.

To buy a historic city for the sole purpose of restoring its streets, buildings and gardens to their ap-
