DON'T SCATTER YOUR EFFORTS

When a ship sails from New York for Europe, it does not set its course merely in an easterly direction, secure in the knowledge that there is a lot of Europe and the ship is bound to run into it somewhere.

No—it picks a definite port. And it makes every move carry it one step nearer that port. It may have to turn a bit from the straight course to avoid an iceberg or a storm, but once around the obstacle—straight it heads again for its objective.

Knowing exactly where it wants to go, it gets there in the least time, with the smallest amount of energy.

There are unlimited riches all around you, there are numberless opportunities for happiness and success. But your chances of bagging any of them by shooting in the dark are about one in ten thousand. You must pick your mark—set your goal. There is no limit to the power of the Mind inside you. But you
