L. H. S.

The English classes are reviewing their English grammar.

The high school boys are practicing for track work. We will have a good team—maybe.

Four of our prospective graduates are pursuing an extension course in English from the University of Oregon.

The Junior Science class is taking up the study of magnetism.

B. K. Werner of Marshfield, called at L. H. S. Thursday and tuned up the typewriters and also repaired the sewing machines.

Rev. Iverson of Medford, called at the high school Tuesday and gave a very interesting talk on

"Church Building."

The present graduating class will hold their graduating exercises Friday, May 19.

The Seniors voted to invite Rev. Donald Henry to deliver their baccalaureate sermon and Rev. Ranton, of Myrtle Point, to deliver the graduating address.

A gentle reminder! Nine more weeks of school after this one.

The Senior class play is progressing. The date of appearance will be announced next week. The name of the play is "Wild Ginger" and the characters are: Jake Tallman, Art Russell; Geoffrey Freeman, Court Boice; Sanford Lakey, Alyce Kreutzer; Marwood Lakey, Graydon Thom; Wuzzy Walker, Marguerite Sabin; Mr. Peterson, Donald Cook; Virginia Tallman, Inez Cox; Miss Rachel Lee, Gladys Edwards; Miss Stanley, Violet Hopper; Miz Walker, Ruth Woodruff; Bonita Lakey, "Haiti" Guerin.

Sister—Did you get your arithmetic today?

Little Brother—Yes, (hesitating) but I forgot to put down the answers.

value from any investment," say the authors. "In times of prosperity it may include spending for many values, which, though unessential, add richness to living. In times of economic stress a thrift program consists of getting all essential values with little financial investment."

"This bulletin is to aid in maintaining a desirable standard of living with little expenditure of money but with a very substantial investment of the homemaker's time, ability, skill and interest."

This menu and recipe bulletin, which is free to Oregon citizens, is but one of a series of pamphlets and circulars published recently to help Oregon homemakers in saving safely. Others deal with economical school lunches, the use of powdered skim milk in the home, how to make American cheese at home, making homemade soap, and wild spring plants that are palatable as greens.

County Aiding In Planting of Gardens

Coquille, March 15—Coos county is cooperating to make it possible for needy persons to provide themselves with vegetables this year, through furnishing the latter with free seed potatoes, as well as permitting them to use vacant city lots upon which to raise a garden. This does not pertain to farmers.

Speaking of the plan, Judge Thompson says that indigent and needy persons can secure seeds through application to the persons in charge of direct relief in each of the communities of the county, as follows: Miss Ellen Rudas, Marshfield; H. L. Crawford, North Bend; W. A. LeGore, Bandon; Lawrence Rackleff, Myrtle Point, and the county judge, Coquille. Vacant lots, for use as garden plots, are being awarded to needy families, also on application, one to a family.

Fish at the Fair

THE Company which received the Gold Medal Awards for its exhibit of canned sardines and tuna in San Francisco in 1915 and in Philadelphia in 1926, and the Grand Prix in Paris in 1929, the only places where it has ever exhibited, will have an exhibit at the Century of Progress International Exposition in Chicago this year. This is the Hovden Food Products Corporation of Monterey, California.

Many Styles and Sizes

The exhibit will be partially in museum style glass jars so that the fish can be shown in their natural form in a solution that will preserve them for the duration of the Fair. The fish will also be shown partially open so as to reveal the texture of the flesh, and, if possible, a part of this exhibit will also show these fish in glass as they appear after they have been processed and canned.

Included in the exhibit will be sardines in various styles and sizes packed in olive oil, in olive oil and tomato sauce, and in olive oil and curry sauce. Also tuna fish, especially those white meat tuna caught in the Bay of Monterey which are said to be the finest tuna caught. The exhibit will also probably include various kinds of salt and pickled fish, shown in glass, in the same booth.

Thus visitors to the Exposition, which opens on June first of this year, will be furnished an unusual opportunity to see how the fish look in their raw state as well as after having been cooked and packed in cans.

WEEK'S FOOD LIST BOUGHT FOR $3.94

New Bulletin Gives Menus and Recipes for Whole Month of Economical Meals

Can a family of five—two adults and three children—buy every item of food for an adequate diet for a week for less than $4, here in Oregon in 1933?

Believe it or not, that is exactly what a new publication of the home economics extension service at Oregon State College says can be done. In fact it gives prices item-by-item for a week of menus that total at retail in Corvallis just $3.94, which is less than allowed by most standard relief agencies.

Not content with putting out a theoretical list of foods for a week, this publication, prepared largely by Lucy A. Case, extension nutrition specialist, contains actual menus for an entire month on this basis, with complete recipes for all the dishes listed in them.

While the menus and recipes were prepared primarily for use of relief committees throughout the state, they were gathered into bulletin form in the belief that many self-sustaining families faced with the necessity of drastically curtailing expenditures, will find them useful.

Steamer Baskets

THE great steamers laden with passengers are drawing away from the docks, and the latter are looking forward eagerly to the art and old time architecture, the unusual foods and quaint customs, the foreign languages and lovely landscapes which are awaiting them on the other side. For things are not looking so badly, after all, and it has turned out that almost as many tourists as usual are leaving our shores.

But some people who formerly went first class are now traveling tourist third where the food is very good but not so varied as that to which they were accustomed on previous trips. So this is the year of all others to supplement their menus with a carefully chosen steamer basket which will make their crossing a success.

For that sweet tooth put in fruit cake, figs, cookies, candies and pineapple, jellies, jams and perhaps some orange or grapefruit juice to help breakfast along. These all have the advantage of being obtainable in cans so that those which are not used going over can be kept and consumed on the return trip.

If there are children along, cans of apple butter or applesauce and some tins of fine crisp crackers should be included. Be sure, also, to put in some of the new canned sandwich spreads—ham, tongue, liver and mixed meats—and cans of anchovy paste, deviled ham and potted meats. And a few cans of tomato juice, which retains all its popularity, would be a most thoughtful and welcome surprise.
