Wedding Gowns Span a Hundred Years

CENTURY of wedding gowns, dating back 125 years, were modeled by Curry county women as a special feature of the May 19 luncheon of the Town and Country Christian Women's club of Langlois.

Modeling gowns (from left) are Mrs. Andrea Keeler Smith, who was married several weeks ago; Mrs. Tamara Miller who models the gown worn by Mrs. Shirley Laird five years ago, made by Mrs. Gladys Caughell;

Mrs. Clatie Smith, who is wearing Gloria Owen's gown worn ten years ago; Mary Wahl, wearing LaCreta Wilcox's 10-year-old wedding gown; next is Irene Sell who models Verna Couch's gown, 26 years old, which has the Victorian stand-up collar and sleeves;

Mrs. Everett Strain; Mary Geer who models a gown worn 30 years ago by Lucille Barklow; Mrs. Frank Pook who wears the wedding dress of her sister which is between 75 and 85 years old; and Mrs. Dennis Chesselet who wears a gown which is 125 years old, belonging to Mrs. Ollie Britton.

This gown was worn by the sister-in-law of Mr. Mabin, the former keeper at the Cape Blanco lighthouse.

An added surprise was a corset worn 57 years ago by Mrs. T. G. Sumerlin of Myrtle Point, mother of Mrs. Dick Barklow, who was present. The ornament sported an 18-inch waist.
