Dredging At Gold Beach Asked

Gov. Mark Hatfield has retested the U. S. Army Corps 1 Engineers to immediately dredge the entrance to Gold Beach harbor in Curry County, and give him a full report on their plans for rectifying critical shoal conditions that threaten to curtail or stop lumber shipments from the harbor.

Gov. Hatfield said reports from Gold Beach indicate that the entrance to the Port is rapidly becoming too shallow Timber products from plants in the Gold Beach area are transported out of the harbor by barge to points along the Pacific Coast. The U. S. Plywood plant at Gold Beach, for example, ships 36 million feet of lumber by barge to Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif. The plant, which employs 350 persons, would have to shut down if barge traffic is stopped, according to reports re-ceived by the Governor.

Road Plans In Hopper

Persons interested in request-ing a public hearing to discuss proposed plans for right-of-way acquisitions for future construction on the Sixes River-Elk Section of the Oregon Coust Highway (US101) near the community of Sixes, Curry County, will have until Wednesday, August 3, to file notice, it was announced today by Forrest Cooper, state highway engineer. Proposed plans call for widening of existing alignment with some minor curve revision, Proposed construction basically will not change existing ingress and egress. There will be new structures at Sixes River and Crystal Creek. The plans call for two 12-foot lanes plus 10-foot shoulders on either side. There wift also be 12-foot climbing lanes on the ascending grade with 4-foot shoulders adjacent to the climbing lane. Requests for a hearing should be directed to the Curry County

Five Million Acres Of Oregon Forests In Tree Farm System

Addition of 165,889 acres of privately owned timberland in Oregon to the nation's forest industry sponsored Tree Farm Program since January has pushed Oregon Tree Farm acreage over the five million acre mark.

By mid-year on the 25th anniversary of the program, Oregen has certified 5,063,254 acres, according to figures recently released by American Forest Products Industries, the education and information arm of the forest industries.

As the figure passed the five million mark, Oregon came closer to certifying its 500th Tree Farm. There are 498 Tree Farms in the state.

Oregon has the fourth largest number of acres under the Tree Farm program in the nation. Georgia leads the nation with 7,349,884 acres certified under the program. Alabama is second with 6,914,619 acres and Florida is third with 6,630,992

Curry Road Project Bids Called For

SALEM -- Bids will be received by the Oregon State Highway Commission on July 28 in Salem for four projects estimated to cost approximately $638,000. These are in addition to the 17 projects announced earlier for this date.

The project in Curry County involves culvert lining on the Burnt Hill Creek-Lone Ranch Creek Section of the Oregon Coast Highway between Gold Beach and call for paving of inverts of eight existing culvert pipes. Completion time is set for 80 calendar days.

Forests Surveyed For Insect Damage

The 19th annual aerial survey of some 52 million acres of federal, state, and private forest in Washington and Oregon is now underway, according to Benton Howard chief insect and disease control branch, U.S. Forest Service, Portland.

The survey is made cooperatively by Washington State De-partment of Natural Resources, Oregon State Department of Forestry, and U.S. Forest Service to locate and map timber damage caused by about 20 species of destructive forest insects. Three hundred flying hours are needed to complete the job. L.F. Pettinger, Washington zone entomologist for the Forest Service, and R. L. Johnsey, forest entomologist for the Department of Natural Resources, will make the survey in Washington, R.E. Dolph, Oregon Zone entomolo-gist for the Forest Service, and L. N. Kline, forest entomologist for the Department of Forestry, will do the survey in Oregon.

Each year, most damage is done by bark beetles, with lesser damage by defiliating insects and aphids. Following the ariel survey, ground surveys are made to determine the trend of the insect damage. Prompt detection of the potentially serious tree killer is essential to give forest managers time to consider control action.

The cooperative aerial survey will be completed by mid-September, at which time the results will be published, said Howard.

Performance of "The Nutcracker" Slated for August

Forty dancers with San Francisco's Ballet Celeste will appear locally in a complete production of "The Nutcracker," one of the most popular ballets ever produced.

Ballet Celeste has performed this for sell-out houses for more than 12 seasons in San Francisco.

The performance will be presented at Marshfield High School in Coos Bay Aug. 4 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $1.25 for youngsters under 12 and $2.50 for adults.

All seats are unreserved and can be obtained at the box office the night of the performance. Tickets are also on sale now in Coos Bay at The Music Box and in North Bend's Pony Village at Jensen Music Store.

Because of this company's popularity and high caliber, it has been awarded partial sponsorship by the city and county of San Francisco. This is most unusual as there are less than six companies so sponsored in this country.

The Governor said layoffs at Albany and Springfield plywood mills are attributed to the tightening of credit and money available for the construction of new homes, and renewed his warning that unless the Federal Government makes some changes in its present fiscal course, Oregon as a leading timber products state will be hard hit economically.

The Governor pointed out that rather than asking private business to cut back on expansion programs as a means of stopping the inflationary spiral, the Administration should first take a look at its ownprograms that require massive government spending. As a start Hatfield suggested the Administra-

1. Cut foreign aid spending. 2. Postpone new domestic programs now in the works. 3. Restrict expansion of present federal programs.

Hatfield initially called attention to this crisis at the Governors' Conference in Los Angeles July 6. In a statement issued there he said, "By continuously blowing up the in-flationary balloon at one end and depending on the private sector to let some of the air out at the other, the government is creating grave imbalances, and the paradoxical situation of tight money amidst inflation." He called upon the Federal Government to curtail its spending and to set an example by living within its budget, and not to depend upon the Federal Reserve to do a patchwork job that leads to inequities in the economy. The Governor said that unless something is done now, home building will become the Appalachia of the national economy. He said that a recession in the home building industry will hit Oregon especially hard because nearly 50% of the state's economy is based on lumber and timber products, and half of its production goes either into new housing or for maintenance and repair.
