OUTDOOR RAMBLINGS . . .

Food For Thought

By LANS LENEVE

We just recently heard from an old friend of ours. The letter was postmarked at Anchorage, Alaska; the three previous ones from from various other points of the compass—France, Scotland and Australia. You see, this friend of mine is a nomad and he wanders hither and yon about the world. But it seems that Alaska holds the greatest allure to him and he eventually returns to that sportsman's paradise.

Yes, Clint is a wanderer. Reminds us of that plant known as the Wandering Jew; not content to remain within the small space in which it is planted, but starts wandering all over the place . . . creeping up the walls of a home, over the window sills, exploring every spot that is available to its clinging tendrils.

to those of you—including this writer—who neglect a friend at times.

The poem entitled "My Friend," and written by Clinton Rowley follows:

"Around the corner we had a friend, / In Alaska—the land that knows no end. / Yet days went by, and weeks rushed on, / And before we knew it a year had gone. / And we never saw our old friend's face, / For life is a swift and terrible race. / 'He knew we liked him just as well, / As in the days when we rang his bell, / And he rang ours. / We were younger then, / But we got to be busy, tired old men, / Tired with playing a foolish game, / Tired with trying to make a name. / 'Tomorrow, we'd say, we'll write to Andy, / And mention our mutual little pal, Sandy, / But tomorrow never comes, and tomorrow goes, / And the distance between us grows and grows. / Around the corner, yet many miles away . . . / Here's a telegram, sir . . . Andy died yesterday, / And that's what we get and deserve in the end, / Around the corner—a vanished friend.'" duck, is often thought to be an import from some exotic country of the East, but it has always been a true resident of North America.

METHOD FOR SURVIVAL
How can a parent prepare his son to survive the war in Vietnam?

Father with a mounting toll of casualties and the fact that this promises to be a war which may not be over before their sons reach draft age, this question is on the minds of many mothers and fathers today.

A fully detailed report pertaining to this vital problem will appear in this column in the near future.

The whale was probably once a land mammal which has completely adapted itself to water during the last few thousand years.

It is safe to hold a queen bee in your hand as the queen bees use their stings on other bees.

The flying squirrel begins to reach old age at three years and seldom lives to be five or six.

Although they are called "sheep," the Rocky Mountain Bighorn sheep do not have coats of wool but merely very short hair. In winter a scanty fuzz grows between the skin and outer guard hairs to keep the animal warm against the terrible chilling winds.

The ring on the ringed-neck duck is hard to see and on many specimens it doesn't even exist; so why it is called by that name is quite a mystery. The most beautiful of American water fowl, the wood
