Pacific Loses Homecoming

BY LANS LENEVE

The Federal Government has always been one of the nation's biggest publishers, and certainly one of the worst. For many decades, paper money was about the only thing the Government printed that was of real public interest.

This began to change while back, especially in the Department of the Interior. And in the last ten years the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has done itself proud with its bulletins and hard-cover books. In 1964 there was "Waterfowl Tomorrow", followed by "Birds in Our Lives" in 1966. Latest in the series is "Sport Fishing U.S.A.," which is one of the best things ever done on the subject by the Government -- or anyone else.

GLASSES GET GAME

"Modern hunters rely heavily on optical glasses to increase their game bags", says Warren Page, executive vice-president of the National Shooting Sports Foundation. Mr. Page, himself a world-traveled trophy hunter, repeated this idea even more strongly in saying, "No need to sympathize with the hunter who wears glasses. He may or may not need ground-in optical corrections, but with the right glasses, he'll increase his game bag over ordinary men."

WRITING IS TOPS

"Sport Fishing U.S.A." is an excellent balance of subject matter, writing style and illustration. The 41 chapters are done by top outdoor writers and fisheries experts, and it's all highly readable... tops in its field. Editors Dan Saults and Mike Walker have seen to that. The book is worth even more than the $10 that the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, is getting for it. At least that is the opinion expressed by many of its readers.

WINCHESTER HUNTER'S HANDBOOK

Another whale of a good book which has just been released by Winchester Press, is the Winchester Hunter's Handbook, 1971 - 72.

This year's edition sports a new feature -- in fact, nine new features -- feature length stories by some of the most outstanding outdoor writers in North America. This writer is happy to note that our good friend, Francis E. Sell, of Riverton, has contributed an interesting article on shotgun ballistics, to the pages of this highly entertaining book.

In addition there are almost 100 pages of complete state and provincial game regulations, seasons and prospects for all 50 states and all 11 Canadian provinces, along with bowhunting seasons and regulations for each state and province and a special section of Winchester ballistics tables.

The Winchester Hunter's Handbook, 1971 - 72 sells for just $1.95 a copy and may be purchased at most retail book stores, sporting goods dealers and newstands.

This writer has just finished reading a copy of this outstanding book, and does not hesitate to recommend it highly to hunters in general.

SNOWS, BLUES AND CONFUSION

For years, one of the mysteries of waterfowl was why blue geese and lesser snow geese mixed so freely in the same flocks.

Today, biologists are convinced that they're the same bird -- in different color schemes.

The two color phases commonly interbreed, and a brood may include both. It's believed that the white phase was the original, and that the blue phase evolved later. The blue-phase goose was relatively rare 60 years ago, but has been increasing and widening its range ever since. One reason given for this is that hunters prefer the white goose to the darker one, thereby favoring survival of the blue goose.

The greater snow goose, which winters only on the Atlantic coast, is larger and chunkier than the lesser snow, and does not have a blue phase. - Nilo News.

HALF-TIME ACTIVITIES

During halftime activities, Diane Colvin was crowned Homecoming Queen and Keith Peterson was named Mr. Football. Musical entertainment was provided by the Pacific marching band. The Pom Pom girls also performed, along with Becky Still who presented a fire baton routine.

Pheasants, Quail Next For Hunters

The Oregon Game Commission advised hunters that they now have almost a full slate of hunting seasons to choose from. Oct. 16 marked the opening of the statewide pheasant and quail season to go along with the buck deer, chukar and Hungarian partridge, and waterfowl seasons already underway.

Bag limit for pheasants in western Oregon and Klamath County is two cock pheasants per day, four in possession. Game biologists around the state predict only a fair season for pheasants, but good for quail.

Some of the best mountain quail hunting will be found through much of southwestern Oregon.

SBA Safety Loans On Tap

The Workmen's Compensation Board announced at Salem this week that small businesses may obtain emergency loans to help them comply with new federal job safety and health standards required by the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

The loans, on which there is no statutory dollar limit, will be made by the Small Business Administration (SBA) either directly or in cooperation with banks or other lending institutions.

Proceeds of the loans are to be used by small business to make additions to or alter equipment, facilities or methods of operation to comply with the standards set by the Act, or with certain State laws if the SBA determines a concern is likely to suffer substantial economic injury without such help.

Root Weevils House Pests

If you have noticed some small black insects about 1/8-inch long in your home, chances are they are root weevils, said Walt Schroeder, Curry County extension agent.

Root weevils frequently migrate in the homes during the summer and fall months. They may cause alarm but do no damage and will not infest stored foods or damage household furnishings or the buildings.

Root weevils are usually black and if you look closely you will see a little snout on the end of the head, said the agent.

Adult weevils can be eliminated from any dwelling by sweeping them up with a broom or sweeping them up with a vacuum cleaner, or using a common household insecticide aerosol. "You must make sure that the mist from the aerosol comes in direct contact with the insect," he added.

The nuisance of root weevils migrating into homes can be alleviated by treating grassy areas or shrubbery around the home with diazinon or malathion when the weevils are migrating toward the home, he concluded.

WASHINGTON—More than eight million gallons of paint and thinner are used each year in the manufacture of one million average frame homes.

Thursday mens winners were Bill Snodgrass with 21 points, and Ralph Munsen with 19.

The winter ladies mudders tourney has eight teams with two golfers in each, and will play each other during the winter months.

Mens President's Cup play starts Nov. 1, with the entire month to play the first match, and Dec. to play the second match.

Port Orford players and their opponents are Charles Ellis vs Vern Kolen; Alex Ellis vs Don Asher; Larry Hoover vs Lowell Carter; Jim Allison vs Don Brent.

This tourney will also include a party that will be held after the first of the year at the Rod 'n Reel.

Participation in the Cedar Bend Club by everyone is the sure sign of success...come on out.

Enrollment Reaches 2,000 At SWOCC

Incomplete returns indicate Oregon community college enrollment has reached a record high. State Superintendent Dale Parnell announced Friday.

Registration at the 13 schools, according to unofficial figures reported this week, has climbed to 56,982.

"Enrollment is running substantially ahead of last year," said Carol deBroekert, Oregon Board of Education associate superintendent. "We've projected 63,000 and we don't think the projection will be far off."

The returns are far from being complete as most of the schools have not completed registration. For example, Lane Community College began registration later than planned because of the levy election. And, too, several of the schools have unique open enrollment policies allowing students to enroll at various times in the term.

Incomplete and unofficial figures reported this week are: Blue Mountain 1,485; Central Oregon 1,380; Chemeketa 4,723; Clackamas 3,117; Clatsop 1,622; Lane 8,310; Linn-Benton 3,388; Mt. Hood 7,500; Portland 19,800; Southwestern 2,000; Treasure Valley 1,030; Umpqua 1,803; and Rogue, beginning its first year, 824.

SOUTH COAST Anclin'

by Jim Martin

Chinook fishing on the lower Chetco has picked up markedly in the last week. Some large chinook salmon as well as many jacks are now being taken throughout the lower river. Trolling in the Chetco tidalwater area has been especially productive.

Hunter Creek and Pistol River continue to be very slow and probably will continue to be so until major fall rains. With the promise of impending fall rains, anglers can expect an upswing of salmon action on nearly all of the south coast streams. Until those rains, the lower Sixes, Rogue and Chetco will continue to produce best.
