"For Sandy Always."

BILL BOGAN SAYS:

A salt and pepper suit should be always in season.

Time doesn't seem like money to the man who hasn't anything to do.

A man may tell all he knows without giving anyone any particular information.

The child that is good in order to get something may not be good for anything.

Some folks spend their money around a gambling table, others lend it to friends.

Man feels sorry for woman because of what she has to go through for being married to someone else.

An egotist is a man who thinks that others would toady to him if they knew him as well as he does himself.

Quite often when a man's ship comes in after he has waited for it patiently he finds that it is after a cargo.

If good advice were as good as those who give it represent it to be, there would be no failures in this world.

How unhappy a miser must die thinking of how that for which he has suffered so much is going to be squandered.

It is a noticeable fact that the person who does the most to deserve friendship is usually the one who has most of it.

If some men could make up their minds as quickly and as effectively as some women do their faces, it would help some.

Strangely enough those who refuse to drink water have a hard time keeping their heads high enough above water to keep it from running in.

In a South American country a man is expected to kiss every woman he is introduced to. If that practice prevailed here we men would have to train our minds to forget previous introductions.

A member of a legislature 49 years of age boasts that he has never been kissed by anyone but his mother. He shouldn't be in the legislature. He is either a blasted liar or else lacks much in practical experience.

A man who makes fun of mollycoddles is quite often a fellow who will remain standing without hitching while some frivolous female pats and pets him and makes him believe she loves him as long as he makes good with the theater tickets and luncheon after the show.
