The News is as ably edited as many papers in a great deal larger towns and cities and certainly does credit to this part of the state.

The question for discussion at the literary last Friday night was resolved that truth is stranger than fiction. One speaker on the negative to show the strangeness of fiction, quoted from Arabian Nights and Aladdin and his wonderful lamp with its attendant genii and slaves of the lamp. Aladdin merely rubbed the lamp and the slaves of the lamp at once did whatever he desired. The affirmative in closing said the Aladdin lamp wasn't in it with the standard oil lamp for Aladdin never had one tenth of the riches owned by the modern Aladdin, old Rockefeller, who when ever he rubs his lamp, up goes the price of kerosene and gasoline and we poor dubs, all slaves of the lamp, have to get busy and dig up for this old money monster and while Aladdin used his easily acquired riches to aid the needy our Aladdin was never known to relieve the awful distress of poor in our cities. His aid is all given to powerful churches, colleges and big newspapers to hold public opinion in his favor.

The ladies sewing society met at the bungalow last Wednesday.

Mr. Reitsma, of Portland, was out to visit his daughter, our teacher, last week.

Heron's Foot For Bait.

So great is the heron's reputation as a fisher that it has long been thought that its feet, owing to some peculiar scent or oil which they were supposed to possess, attracted the fish, more especially eels, to within easy reach of its beak. In some places the rustic angler still believes that if a heron's foot is placed with his worms the latter are more eagerly taken by fish.—London Outlook.

STORY OF A RIFLE

The Derringer Used in the Graves and Cilley Duel.

AND ALSO BY DAVY CROCKETT

It Was Made About a Century Ago and Is Still in Good Condition—The Meeting That Resulted in the Death of the Maine Congressman.

Among the thousands of relics in the United States National museum at Washington there are few objects more replete with historical interest than a certain derringer rifle, catalogue No. 3509. This rifle was used by Colonel David Crockett of Alamo fame and was also the weapon fired by Hon. William J. Graves in the duel with Hon. Jonathan Cilley, resulting in the death of the latter. It was made about a hundred years ago and is still in excellent condition.

Colonel Wright Rives, U. S. A., who deposited the rifle in the museum, states that it was made for his father, John Cook Rives, by Henry Derringer John C. Rives was one of the publishers of the Congressional Globe, now the Congressional Record, and knew many congressmen, several of whom he was accustomed to take out to a field for rifle practice. Among them was David Crockett, pioneer hunter, soldier and congressman from 1827-31 and 1833-5, who later lost his life at the Alamo in the Texas struggle for freedom. Crockett seemed to particularly like this rifle and often joined the shooting parties to use it.

The circumstances which led to the fatal duel between Messrs. Graves and Cilley of the house of representatives, in which this rifle figured so conspicuously, were quite unusual and more or less complicated. The report of the investigating committee appointed by the house covers the story of this duel well. An abstract of it taken from "Notes on Duels and Dueling," by Lorenzo Sabine, follows:

On Feb. 12, 1838, Henry A. Wise of Virginia presented to the house a copy of the New York Courier and Enquirer, charging a member of congress with corruption, and asked for an investigation of the charge. Mr. Wise stated that the author of the article was vouched for by the editor of the paper and that the house was called upon to defend its honor. Jonathan Cilley, member from Maine, opposed the resolution and in debate said that if it was the same editor who once made charges against a certain institution and later received facilities amounting to $52,000 from the same institution, which he then gave his hearty support, he did not think the recent charges were entitled to much credit in an American congress. Mr. Cilley was quoting a published house committee report on the subject, but a few days later the editor of the paper, Colonel James Watson Webb, addressed a note to him asking if he were the editor referred to and, if so, demanding an explanation.

This note was directly responsible for the duel between Cilley and William J. Graves of Kentucky, who undertook its delivery on the floor of the house for his friend Colonel Webb. Mr. Cilley refused to receive the note, because he chose to be drawn into no controversy with Colonel Webb, stating that by so doing he meant no disrespect to the bearer. But he refused to affirm or deny anything in regard to Colonel Webb's character. Mr. Graves was not satisfied, however, and several notes between them were exchanged, with the result that Mr. Graves finally challenged Mr. Cilley because he would not say whether he refused the note on the grounds of any personal exception to Colonel Webb as a man of honor.

Naturally Mr. Cilley denied Mr. Graves the right to demand an absolute "yes" or "no" answer and accepted the challenge.

Their seconds, Hon. George W. Jones, delegate from Wisconsin territory, for Mr. Cilley and Hon. Henry A. Wise of Virginia, for Mr. Graves, arranged the details of the duel, which was fought with rifles at a distance of about ninety yards near the road to Marlborough, in Maryland. Mr. Wise experienced some difficulty in securing a rifle for Mr. Graves' use, but finally succeeded in borrowing Mr. Rives' derringer rifle.

The duel was scheduled for 3 p. m. on Feb. 24, 1838, and the two parties met near the boundary line of the District, on the Marlborough road. Mr. Cilley was accompanied by his second, Mr. Jones; his friends, Mr. Bynum of North Carolina and Colonel James W. Schaumburg, and by Dr. Duncan of Ohio as his surgeon. Mr. Graves was attended by Mr. Wise, his second; by his friends, Senator Crittenden and Mr. Menefee of Kentucky, and Dr. Poltz of the city of Washington. The ground was marked off and the contestants took their places, with rifles cocked and triggers set. Mr. Jones gave the word, Mr. Cilley fired first and Mr. Graves a second or two after him, but both missed. Despite the efforts of their friends to adjust the matter after each had been exposed to the fire of the other, no satisfactory arrangement could be made, and they exchanged shots again, also without effect. Still being unable to agree after much further argument, their rifles being loaded, they went to their positions the third time. This time Cilley was shot through the body and killed.

The congressional committee found Mr. Graves guilty of a breach of privileges in the house, but held that Mr. Cilley had remained within his rights. They recommended the expulsion of Mr. Graves from the house and that the seconds and friends be censured.

Girls in Guatemala.

None of the maidens in Guatemala are allowed to go abroad from their homes without the company of a chaperon, and a lover is only allowed to come and court his sweetheart through the heavily barred windows of her father's home. After they are married they pass along the streets in Indian file, the woman marching ahead, so that the husband can be in a position to prevent any flirtations.
